Q and A

1 GRAMMAR revision: question formation

a Complete the following questions with one or two question words or an auxiliary verb.

- 1 How much do you earn?
- 2 Are you married?
- 3 _____ have you been learning English?
- 4 _____ do you prefer, small towns or big cities?
- 5 _____ do you go to the theatre a year?
- 6 _____ tall are you?
- 7 _____ religion are you?
- 8 _____ you want to have children?
- 9 _____ of music do you listen to?
- 10 _____ advice do you listen to most?
- 11 _____ you ever said 'I love you' and not meant it?
- 12 _____ did you vote for in the last election?

b Cross (✗) the questions above which you wouldn't ask a person you don't know very well. Are there any questions which you would not even ask a good friend? Which questions might you expect to find in a magazine interview with a famous person?

c Read the two interviews. Which question is...? the most personal the most boring the most original.

d Read the interviews again and write N (Norah) or L (Lionel).

Who...?

- 1 never has enough time for what he / she wants to do _____
- 2 has happy childhood memories _____
- 3 avoids answering one of the questions _____
- 4 feels guilty about something _____
- 5 is probably a fan of the Rolling Stones _____
- 6 is very proud about something _____
- 7 says he / she is an insecure person _____
- 8 needs help in his / her daily life _____

e In pairs, look at questions 8–12 in the Lionel Richie interview. Find an example of...

- 1 a question where an auxiliary verb has been added to make the question.
- 2 a question where there is no auxiliary verb.
- 3 a question which ends with a preposition.
- 4 a negative question.
- 5 a question where the auxiliary verb and subject have been inverted to make the question.

Young star, old star

Every week the British newspaper, The Guardian, chooses people who have been in the news recently, and publishes a short interview with them called Q&A. The questionnaire often includes quite personal questions.

Q&A Norah Jones

Norah Jones was born in New York and is the daughter of the Indian sitar player and composer Ravi Shankar and the concert promoter Sue Jones; her half-sister is the musician Anoushka Shankar. A singer-songwriter, her debut album, Come away with me, sold more than 20 million copies worldwide and won her five Grammy Awards.

- 1 Where would you like to live?
Barcelona.

Probably a housekeeper.
- 8 Who would you invite to your dream dinner party?
All my friends and Keith Richards – I think he'd be great at a dinner party.
- 9 What's the worst job you've done?
A waitressing job where I had the breakfast shift. It wasn't the job that was so bad, just the hours. I had to go in at five in the morning.
- 10 If you could go back in time, where would you go?
Summer camp in Michigan, aged 14.
- 11 How do you relax?
A hot bath.
- 12 What keeps you awake at night?
Music. A song will keep going round in my brain and keep me awake.

From The Guardian

Q&A Lionel Richie

Lionel Richie was born in Alabama, USA. He became famous in the 1970s as lead singer with The Commodores and again in the 1980s as a solo singer. He is best remembered for songs like Three times a lady, All night long, and Say you (say me), for which he won an Oscar.

- 1 What's your idea of perfect happiness?
Sunday by the pool, no phone calls.
- 2 What's your earliest memory?
My first day at pre-school. I was terrified. I'd never seen that many children in my whole life.
- 3 What's your most treasured possession?
My Oscar.
- 4 If you could edit your past, what would you change?
The Commodores never did a farewell tour. We just broke up and disappeared.
- 5 What has been your most embarrassing moment?
Forgetting the lyrics to my new single on a TV show.
- 6 What words or phrases do you most overuse?
'I'll call you back' or 'I'll see you soon'.

- 9 What makes you depressed?
That there are 24 hours in a day and I need 36.
- 10 When did you last cry and why?
At the funeral of Milan Williams of The Commodores.
- 11 Who would you most like to say sorry to?
To my kids for not being there more.
- 12 What song would you like to be played at your funeral?
All night long and Stevie Wonder's I just called to say I love you.

2 PRONUNCIATION intonation, stress, and rhythm in questions

Using the right intonation or tone helps you to sound friendly and interested when you speak English. Stressing the right words in a sentence helps you speak with a good rhythm. Intonation + stress = the music and rhythm of English.

- a 1.1 Listen to questions 1–8. In which one does the speaker sound more friendly and interested? Write a or b.
1___ 2___ 3___ 4___ 5___ 6___ 7___ 8___
- b 1.2 Listen and underline the stressed words in these questions.
- 1 What's your favourite kind of music?
 - 2 Have you ever been to a health club?
 - 3 How often do you go away at the weekend?
 - 4 Do you know what's on TV tonight?
 - 5 How long have you been living here?
 - 6 What are you thinking about?
 - 7 Are you a vegetarian?
 - 8 What do you do to relax?
- c Listen again and repeat the questions in b. Try to sound as friendly as possible. Then ask each other the questions.

3 SPEAKING

- a Look at the answers other celebrities gave to some other questions in The Guardian interview series. In pairs, try to guess what the original questions were.

La Sagrada Familia basilica in Barcelona.

1 Natalie Imbruglia, singer and actress

When England went out of the World Cup.

2 Danny Jones, from the band McFly

For the Labour party.

3 Martin Freeman, actor

Paris in the first decade of the 20th century.

4 William Boyd, writer

Going from anywhere back to Copenhagen.

5 Helena Christensen, top model

Flying, especially since 9 / 11.

6 Shaznay Lewis, singer from All Saints

- b Now choose six questions from the interviews to ask a partner. Only ask questions which you would be comfortable to answer yourself.

Three minutes to get to know the love of your life

4 READING & VOCABULARY

- a Do you know what 'speed dating' is? Read the first half of the article to check, or to find out how speed dating works.

Working out meaning from context

When you are reading and you find a word or phrase you don't know, try to guess the meaning from the context (the other words around it). Think also about what part of speech the unknown word is (e.g. a verb, an adjective, etc.), whether it is similar to another English word you know, or whether it is similar to a word in your language. If you still can't work out what the word or phrase means, either ignore it and carry on reading or use a good dictionary (or glossary if there is one) to help you.

- b Read the first half of the article again carefully. With a partner, say or guess what the highlighted words and phrases mean. Then check with Glossary 1.
- c Using your own words, answer questions 1–4 with a partner.
- 1 According to the writer, how did people use to get to know a prospective partner?
 - 2 What kind of people is speed dating designed for?
 - 3 Why does Adele Testani think three minutes is enough?
 - 4 Why do you think that the journalist pretended to be a lawyer?
- d Now read the second half of the article on page 7 and find out...
- 1 the advantages of speed dating (according to the participants).
 - 2 if the journalist thinks speed dating is a good idea.
- e Read the second half of the article again more carefully. With a partner, say or guess what the highlighted words and phrases mean.

Glossary 1

prospective partner someone who might become your partner in the future courtship the period of time when two people have a romantic relationship before they get married

Mr or Ms Right (informal) the man / woman who would be the perfect partner for somebody quick-fire (a series of things) done very quickly a scorecard a card or paper where you write the points, e.g. in a game

a 'match' when two things or two people fit together not your type not the kind of person who you would normally like or get on with

In recent years speed dating has become popular all around the world. Journalist, Anushka Asthana tried it out.

FINDING A PARTNER has always been a complicated process. It is a ritual which has evolved over the centuries; from a man taking food to a prospective partner in the Stone Age to young couples having tea together in Victorian times (under the watchful eye of an unmarried aunt) to dancing in a club to deafening music in the twenty-first century.

But now busy men and women who don't have the time for a slow, gentle courtship have a quicker way to find a partner: speed dating, where single people have exactly three minutes to decide if the person they are talking to could be Mr or Ms Right. The idea, which started in the USA, involves bringing together people for an evening of frenzied, 'quick-fire' dating. This is how it works.

Small tables are placed in a line and the women sit down at the one which has been given to them. They stay at their table all evening. The men take it in turns to sit next to each woman and have a very quick conversation. After three minutes a bell rings and, even if you are in mid-sentence, it is time for the man to move to the next table. If you like the person you have just spoken to, you put a tick in the 'yes' box on a scorecard. If the other person chooses you as well, this is called a 'match', and the organisers will send you the other person's email address a couple of days later and they will be sent yours too.

'Three minutes is enough time to talk to someone,' says Adele Testani, who runs a speed dating company, 'because you can get an idea of what a person is like in that time and you can eliminate them if you see immediately that they're not your type.'

Britain's largest ever speed dating evening took place this week at the Hydro Bar in London, so I decided to go along and see what it was all about. I pretended to be a single 24-year-old lawyer...

WHEN I ARRIVED at the Hydro Bar, the women, who were wearing fashionable dresses and smart suits, were giggling nervously as they put on badges with a number on them. 'Maybe my jeans are a bad idea,' I thought. I chatted to other people while we waited. People I spoke to said they had doubled the number of dates they had in a year with just one night of speed dating. The men included a chef, a banker, a photographer, an engineer, a management consultant, and a novelist. They were just pleased they could stop having to try to chat up strangers in bars: 'It's so hard to meet girls in London. With speed dating you meet 20 or 30 single girls in one night,' said one man. 'You can't talk to girls at salsa classes,' said another. Matt, 28, said, 'After doing this once I got several dates. There's a good atmosphere; it's safe and it's really good. It's like being at a party with lots of single women.'

Then it started. I made eye contact with the girl next to me so we could compare our opinions of the men; we raised our eyebrows for a possibility, exchanged a smile if the man was good-looking, and made a grimace if he made three minutes feel like three hours.

I thought it was boring just to ask questions like 'What do you do?' or 'Where are you from?' so I tried to think of more interesting and imaginative questions to ask, like 'If you could be an animal, what animal would you be and why?'

In the end I ticked six boxes. A couple of days later, I was told that four of the men had ticked me too. Four new dates. Not bad in 66 minutes.

Glossary 2

- 1 _____ a small piece of metal, plastic, or cloth with words or a design on it
- 2 _____ an expression on your face that shows you are in pain
- 3 _____ laugh in a silly way because you are amused or nervous
- 4 _____ move the line of hair above your eye upwards
- 5 _____ pv talk (to sb) in a friendly way because you are attracted to them
- 6 _____ talk in a friendly, informal way

- f Complete Glossary 2 with the correct word or phrase.
- g Using your own words, answer questions 1–4 with a partner.
 - 1 Why did the journalist feel a bit uncomfortable at first?
 - 2 What kind of men went to this speed dating evening?
 - 3 What kind of signs did she make to the girl next to her? What for?
 - 4 What kind of questions did she think worked best?
- h Do you think speed dating is a good way of meeting people? If you were looking for a partner, would you try it? What questions would you ask?

5 LISTENING

- a 1.3 Listen to a radio programme about speed dating. A man and a woman who have both tried it talk about their experiences. How successful was it for them?
- b Listen again. Then answer the questions with E (Emily), A (Alex), or B (both).
Who...?
 - 1 preferred to ask normal questions
 - 2 was asked an unusual question
 - 3 was asked the same question again and again
 - 4 got the fewest matches
 - 5 had a disastrous date because he / she wasn't feeling well
 - 6 was invited on a date which never took place
 - 7 had a good date in spite of having had some bad news
 - 8 realized on a date that his / her first impression was wrong
 - 9 says he / she isn't planning to go speed dating again
- c Does hearing about Emily and Alex's experiences make you feel more or less positive about speed dating?

6 SPEAKING

GET IT RIGHT reacting and asking for more information

When you ask someone a question and they answer, it is normal to show interest, e.g. Really?, Oh yes?, Yes, me too, Me neither, I know what you mean, or by asking for more information, either with another question, e.g. And what happened then? or simply with a question word, e.g. Why? When?, etc.

- a You are going to do 'speed questioning' with other people in the class. Before you start, think of five questions to ask.
- b When your teacher says 'Start', you have three minutes to talk to the person next to you. Ask and answer each other's questions and ask for more information. When the teacher says 'Change', stop and go and talk to another student.
- c Which questions were the best for finding out about other students?

V personality

P using a dictionary to check word stress; intonation and sentence rhythm

Do you believe it?

1 READING & SPEAKING

a Look at the signatures. Can you identify any of the people?

What your signature says about you

Your signature is the part of your handwriting that says the most about your personality. It is quite normal for your signature to change during your life, as your signature reflects how you evolve as a person. It is also common to have several signatures, for example a more formal signature (name and surname) when you sign a credit card or passport, and an informal signature (just your first name) when you sign a birthday card.

Your formal signature A signature usually contains either a first name and a surname, or initials and a surname, or, less frequently a first name and initials. Your first name represents your private or family self, and your surname represents your public self, how you are socially and at work.

If your first name is more prominent in your signature, this implies that you have positive feelings about your childhood and that your 'private' self is more important to you than your 'public' self.

If your surname is more prominent, this means that your 'public' self is more important to you. The more space there is between your name and surname, the more you wish to keep your public and private self separate.

If you use only initials either for your first name or your surname in your signature, this means that you are more secretive about this part of your personality (your private or public persona).

Legibility A legible signature, where names can be clearly read, implies that you are a person with clear ideas and objectives. The more illegible your signature is, the less assertive you are as a person, and the more you tend to avoid conflict.

Angle Most signatures are horizontal, rising, or descending. A rising signature means that you are the kind of person who, when faced with problems, will work to overcome them. Usually optimistic, you are in control and ambitious. A descending signature means that you have a tendency to get depressed and give up when faced with problems, and lack self-confidence. Some people's signatures go through a temporary phase where they go down, which shows that they are going through a hard time or an illness. A horizontal signature suggests an emotionally stable person who is well-balanced and generally satisfied with the way their life is going.

Size If your signature is bigger than the rest of the letter or document you have written, that means that you are self-confident and have quite a high opinion of yourself. Some people actually sign in capital letters, which suggests they are arrogant rather than self-confident. People whose signature is smaller than the rest of the text may be insecure and have low self-esteem.

b Read the first paragraph of an extract from a book about graphology. On a piece of paper, write the sentence I look forward to hearing from you, and then sign your name under the sentence.

c Now read the rest of the extract and answer the questions. According to the extract, which of the people A–F...?

- | | |
| 1 has / had no separation between their public and private self, and is / was not very assertive | 4 is / was probably rather arrogant |
| 2 is / was more identified with their public self, optimistic, and ambitious | 5 keeps / kept their public and private life separate, is / was ambitious, and has / had positive feelings about their childhood |
| 3 is / was more identified with their private self, and without much self confidence | 6 is / was secretive about their private life, and keeps / kept it very separate from their public life |

d Try to guess the meaning of the highlighted words and phrases from the context. Check with your dictionary or the teacher.

e Now look at your partner's piece of paper with his / her signature, and explain what it means.

f Did you agree with your partner's interpretation? Do you think graphology is a serious science? Why (not)?

2 VOCABULARY personality

- a Without looking at the text, how many of the ten highlighted adjectives / phrases can you remember?
- b  p.146 Vocabulary Bank Personality.
- c Add either a suffix or a prefix or both to the bold words to make an adjective that fits the sentence.
- I don't think he's going to get very far. He's totally unambitious. ambition
 - You'll have a lively evening if Jane's coming because she's very _____. talk
 - You can't trust John to help. He's completely _____. rely
 - You look very _____. Have you had some good news? cheer
 - He's a bit _____. He said he liked my sister but he obviously doesn't. sincere
 - She's not very _____. She never has any good ideas. imagine
 - People say he's _____. You can't trust him with money. honest
 - She's so _____! She won't give me a hand with my homework. help

3 PRONUNCIATION using a dictionary to check word stress

In a dictionary, word stress is shown by an apostrophe before the stressed syllable, e.g. begin /brɪ'gɪn/. Some words, especially compound words, have a primary (or main stress) and a secondary stress, e.g. good-looking /gʊd'lu:kɪŋ/. Secondary stress is shown by a low apostrophe. It is less strong than primary stress.

- a Use the phonetics to underline the main stressed syllable.
- | | |
|--------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1 arrogant /'ærəɡənt/ | 7 possessive /pə'zesɪv/ |
| 2 assertive /ə'sɜ:tɪv/ | 8 loyal /'lɔɪəl/ |
| 3 bad-tempered /,bæd'tempəd/ | 9 stubborn /'stʌbən/ |
| 4 creative /kri'eɪtɪv/ | 10 impatient /ɪm'peɪʃnt/ |
| 5 considerate /kən'sɪdərət/ | 11 unsociable /ʌn'seɪʃəbl/ |
| 6 conscientious /,kɒnʃɪ'enʃəs/ | 12 immature /,ɪmə'tʃʊə/ |
- b 1.4 Listen and check. Are the negative prefixes or suffixes stressed?
- c Practise saying the sentences below.
- He's terribly bad-tempered – you need to be careful with him.
 - She's so conscientious – she always does her best in everything.
 - He's very easy-going – he never gets stressed.
 - His mother's really possessive – she doesn't want him to get married.
 - She's so immature – she behaves like a child.

4 SPEAKING

GET IT RIGHT paraphrasing

If you don't know the exact adjective you need, use a phrase, e.g. She's the kind of person who..., He tends to...

 Remember the third person s.

Talk in small groups. Give examples where you can of people you know or have known.

What kind of person makes...?

- a bad flatmate
- a bad travelling companion
- a bad boss
- a good teacher
- a good friend
- a good politician

MINI GRAMMAR

the...the... + comparatives

The more illegible your signature is, the less assertive you are as a person.

Use the + comparative adjective or adverb to show that one thing depends on another, e.g.

The sooner you do it, the easier it'll be = how easy it will be depends on when you do it.

The colder it is, the more clothes you need to wear.

Rewrite the sentences using the...the... + a comparative adjective or adverb.

- If you study more, you learn more.
The _____, the _____.
- If we leave soon, we'll get there earlier.
The _____, the _____.
- If you are sociable, you have more friends.
The _____, the _____.
- If you are happy, you are nicer to other people.
The _____, the _____.

6 LISTENING & READING

- a Read the beginning of a magazine article. Do you know what a psychic is? Do you believe psychics have special powers or are you sceptical?
- b You're now going to listen to Jane describing her visit to the psychic, Sally Morgan. After each part, discuss the questions with a partner.

Part 1 1.6

Answer the questions.

- 1 What was Jane's first impression of the room and of Sally?
- 2 What are the first questions Sally asked her?
- 3 Why is Jane surprised by two things Sally mentions?

Part 2 1.7

True or false?

- 1 Jane lived in Ireland when she was a child.
- 2 The psychic says there will be a new man in Jane's life.
- 3 Jane is above average height.
- 4 She thinks Jane will be attracted to him by his looks.
- 5 Jane thinks she knows who the man is.

Part 3 1.8

Choose a, b, or c.

- 1 Sally says that, in the future, Jane ____.
a will have the same health problems as her mother
b will live longer than her mother
c should have plastic surgery
 - 2 According to Sally, ____ is good at reading and writing.
a neither Jane's son nor her daughter b neither Jane's ex-husband nor her daughter c neither Jane's ex-husband nor her son
 - 3 What Sally says about Jane's children makes Jane feel ____.
a convinced that Sally is a genuine psychic
b less sceptical about Sally being a psychic
c sure that Sally is not a genuine psychic
- c Read about some typical techniques used by psychics. Match the titles with the paragraphs.

- A Getting information from the client
- B Using a name
- C The flattering statement
- D Identifying common medical problems

- d Listen to Jane talking about her visit again. Which techniques did Sally use?
- e 1.9 Now listen to Jane talking a few weeks later. What was her final opinion about Sally's psychic abilities? What has happened since she went to see Sally?
- f Do you know anyone who has been to a psychic? What happened?

Can psychics really see the future?

Jane Dickson investigates.

I am almost the only person I know who has never been to a psychic. Everyone I asked had a story about how key events in their lives had been predicted in some way. So I was really looking forward to my first visit to a psychic...

Tricks of the trade?

These are some of the techniques used by psychics...

- 1 ■ Something psychics always do is say something that's true of almost anyone on the planet, preferably something positive. An all-time favourite is 'You're intelligent with a great sense of humour'. Who is going to answer, 'Well actually, I'm not. I'm really stupid and have no sense of humour at all?'
- 2 ■ Statistics confirm that a headache is the most common female health problem and almost 50% of men have a scar on their leg, so it's not really surprising when a psychic 'sees' these problems.
- 3 ■ A psychic can deduce a lot from your age and appearance, and most of them actually ask direct questions. It's difficult to avoid answering if you want results, because saying nothing is like going to the doctor and refusing to discuss your symptoms.
- 4 ■ Coming up with a few names is always impressive. The usual method is to let the client work out who it might be. 'Does the letter s mean anything to you?' is a frequent strategy.

7 GRAMMAR auxiliary verbs

- a Look at some extracts from the listening. Circle the correct auxiliary verb.
 'Australia is very important in your life.'
 '1 Is / Isn't / Was it? I've never been to Australia.'
 'Another place which is very important in your life is Ireland.'
 'Yes Ireland 2 is / does / has play a big role in my life.'

Help! My friend's choking!

Library assistant, Mrs Johnson was having dinner with friends in a restaurant. They were all having steak and Mrs Johnson had just swallowed a piece of meat when she suddenly found that she couldn't breathe. Her friends hit her hard on the back, but the piece of steak remained stuck in her throat. She was starting to panic. One of her friends shouted out desperately, 'Excuse me, can anyone help my friend? She's choking.' At another table in the restaurant Trisha Goddard, a TV chat show presenter, saw what was happening and rushed over to try to help. She stood behind Mrs Johnson and put her arms round her waist, and then pulled hard inwards and upwards three times...

Trisha Goddard

The day my little boy swallowed a tomato

'Look at me, Mum,' giggled my three-year-old son. I could hardly understand him, as his mouth was full of cherry tomatoes. He had taken them out of the fridge while I was making lunch. 'Oh Peter, don't be silly,' I laughed. This was a big mistake. Peter tried to laugh too, and as he did so, one of the tomatoes got stuck in his throat. He tried to cough, but nothing happened. He was choking. I hit Peter on the back, but the tomato didn't move. Peter began to turn blue. I ran outside into the street, screaming for help, but the road was completely deserted. I was desperate. I put my whole hand in his mouth and pushed my fingers as far as I could down his throat...

Get stressed, stay young

- 1 For decades doctors have warned us about the dangers of stress and have given us advice about how to cut down our stress levels. Everyone agrees that long-term stress, for example having to look after someone who has a chronic illness, or stressful situations where there is nothing we can do, for example being stuck in a traffic jam, is bad for our health and should be avoided whenever possible. However, some medical experts now believe that certain kinds of stress may actually be good for us.
- 2 Dr Marios Kyriazis, an anti-ageing expert, claims that what he calls 'good stress' is beneficial to our health and may, in fact, help us stay young and attractive and even live longer. Dr Kyriazis says that 'good stress' can strengthen our natural defences which protect us from illnesses common among older people, such as Alzheimer's, arthritis, and heart problems. He believes that 'good stress' can increase the production of the proteins that help to repair the body's cells, including brain cells.
- 3 According to Dr Kyriazis, running for a bus or having to work to a deadline are examples of 'good stress', that is situations with short-term, low or moderate stress. The stress usually makes us react quickly and efficiently, and gives us a sense of achievement – we did it! However, in both these situations, the stress damages the cells in our body or brain and they start to break down. But then the cells' own repair mechanism 'switches on' and it produces proteins which repair the damaged cells and remove harmful chemicals that can gradually cause disease. In fact, the body's response is greater than is needed to repair the damage, so it actually makes the cells stronger than they were before.

- 4 'As the body gets older, this self-repair mechanism of the cells starts to slow down,' says Dr Kyriazis. 'The best way to keep the process working efficiently is to 'exercise' it, in the same way you would exercise your muscles to keep them strong. This means having a certain amount of stress in our lives.' Other stressful activities that Kyriazis recommends as being good stress include redecorating a room in your house over a weekend, packing your suitcase in a hurry to reach the airport on time, shopping for a dinner party during your lunch break or programming your DVD player by following the instruction manual.

From The Times

So next time your boss tells you that she wants to see that report finished and on her desk in 45 minutes, don't panic; just think of it as 'good stress' which will have benefits for your long-term health!

Passwords reveal your personality

THE WORD OR PHRASE that you use to open your email account may provide a key to your personality as well as to your correspondence, according to a British psychologist. Helen Petrie, professor of human / computer interaction at City University in London, analysed the responses of 1,200 Britons who participated in a survey funded by CentralNic, an Internet domain-name company. The results were recently published on CentralNic's website.

Petrie identifies three main password 'genres'. 'Family oriented' respondents numbered nearly half of those surveyed. These people use their own name or nickname, the name of a child, partner, or pet, or a birth date as their password. They tend to be occasional computer users and have strong family ties. 'They choose passwords that symbolize people or events with emotional value,' says Petrie. One third of respondents were 'fans', using the names of athletes, singers, movie stars, fictional characters, or sports teams. Petrie says fans are young and want to ally themselves with the lifestyle represented by a celebrity. Two of the most popular names were Madonna and Homer Simpson. The third main group of participants are 'cryptics' because they pick unintelligible passwords or a random string of letters, numerals, and symbols such as 'Jxa+157'. Petrie says cryptics are the most security-conscious group. They tend to make the safest but least interesting choices.

Passwords are revealing for two reasons. First, because they are invented on the spot. 'Since you are focused on getting into a system, for example your email account, you're likely to write down something that comes quickly to mind,' says Petrie. 'In this sense passwords tap into things that are just below the surface of consciousness. Also, to remember your password, you pick something that will stick in your mind. You may unconsciously choose something of particular emotional significance.'

A worldwide survey casts doubt on national stereotypes

The English are cold and reserved, Brazilians are lively and fun-loving, and the Japanese are shy and hardworking – these are examples of national stereotypes which are widely believed, not only by other nationalities but also by many people among the nationality themselves. But how much truth is there in such stereotypes? Two psychologists, Robert McCrae and Antonio Terracciano, have investigated the subject and the results of their research are surprising. They found that people from a particular country do share some general characteristics, but that these characteristics are often very different from the stereotype.

In the largest survey of its kind, a team of psychologists used personality tests to establish shared characteristics among 49 different nationalities around the world. They then interviewed thousands of people from these same groups and asked them to describe typical members of their own nationality. In most cases the stereotype (how nationalities saw themselves) was very different from the results of the personality tests (the reality).

For example, Italians and Russians thought of themselves as extrovert and sociable, but the personality tests showed them to be much more introvert than they imagined. The Spanish saw themselves as very extrovert, but also as rather lazy. In fact, the research showed them to be only averagely extrovert and much more conscientious than they thought. Brazilians were quite neurotic – the opposite of their own view of themselves. The Czechs and the Argentinians thought of themselves as bad-tempered and unfriendly, but they turned out to be among the friendliest of all nationalities. The English were the nationality whose own stereotype was the furthest from reality. While they saw themselves as reserved and closed, Dr McCrae's research showed them to be among the most extrovert and open-minded of the groups studied.

The only nationality group in the whole study where people saw themselves as they really are was the Poles – not especially extrovert, and slightly neurotic.

Dr McCrae and Dr Terracciano hope that their research will show that national stereotypes are inaccurate and unhelpful and that this might improve international understanding – we're all much more alike than we think we are!

Watching the English: how the English dress

Kate Fox, an anthropologist, spent twelve years researching various aspects of English culture in order to try to discover the 'defining characteristics of Englishness'. The following is an extract from her book Watching the English.

THE ENGLISH have a difficult and, generally speaking, dysfunctional relationship with clothes. Their main problem is that they have a desperate need for rules, and are unable to cope without them. This helps to explain why they have an international reputation for dressing in general very badly, but with specific areas of excellence, such as high-class men's suits, ceremonial costume, and innovative street fashion. In other words, we English dress best when we are 'in uniform'.

You may be surprised that I am including 'innovative street fashion' in the category of uniform. Surely the parrot-haired punks or the Victorian vampire Goths are being original, not following rules? It's true that they all look different and eccentric, but in fact they all look eccentric in exactly the same way. They are wearing a uniform. The only truly eccentric dresser in this country is the Queen, who pays no attention to fashion and continues to wear what she likes, a kind of 1950s fashion, with no regard for anyone else's opinion. However, it is true that the styles invented by young English people are much more outrageous than any other nation's street fashion, and are often imitated by young people all over the world. We may not be individually eccentric, apart from the Queen, but we have a sort of collective eccentricity, and we appreciate originality in dress even if we do not individually have it.

N OTHER AREAS OF RESEARCH another 'rule' of behaviour I had discovered was that it is very important for the English not to take themselves too seriously, to be able to laugh at themselves. However, it is well known that most teenagers tend to take themselves a bit too seriously. Would a 'tribe' of young people be able to laugh at the way they dress? I decided to find out, and went straight to a group whose identity is very closely linked to the way they dress, the Goths.

The Goths, in their macabre black costumes, certainly look as if they are taking themselves seriously. But when I got into conversation with them, I discovered to my surprise that they too had a sense of humour. I was chatting at a bus stop to a Goth who was in the full vampire costume – with a white face, deep purple lipstick, and spiky black hair. I saw that he was also wearing a T-shirt with 'Goth' printed on it in large letters. 'Why are you wearing that?' I asked. 'It's in case you don't realize that I'm a Goth,' he answered, pretending to be serious. We both looked at his highly conspicuous clothes, and burst out laughing.

Air travel: the inside story

1 READING

- a Read the back cover of a book about air travel. Can you guess the answers to any of the questions?

Air Babylon is a best-selling book, co-written by Imogen Edwards-Jones and anonymous airline staff whose identities must remain secret. It tells the 'inside story' about flying and answers all these questions and many more...

What are the check-in staff really doing when they type at their computers?

Why is the heating often suddenly turned up halfway through a flight?

Out of 1,000 passengers, how many will probably lose their luggage?

Why do airport staff sometimes have a problem with wheelchairs?

Why can you sometimes smell roast chicken in a plane when they are serving you fish?

- b Now quickly read the extract from Air Babylon. Did you guess correctly?
- c Now read the extract again. Complete each paragraph with one of the sentences below. Be careful, as there is one sentence you do not need to use.
- A Wheelchairs are a big problem for us.
 B It flies into the engine, totally destroying itself and the machinery.
 C I'll never forget the last time it happened to me.
 D So you can see, it really does pay to be nice to the person at the desk.
 E This is mainly because the transport times between the terminals are so tight.
 F And, as every flight attendant knows, a snoring plane is a happy plane.
- d Do you believe everything you read in the extract?

Air BABYLON

Depending on what computer system the airline uses, check-in staff can talk to each other via simultaneous email. So when they seem to be taking a very long time to type your rather short name into the computer, they are probably sending one of their colleagues a message – usually about you or about someone in the queue behind you. These messages range from 'Have you seen this incredibly good-looking woman / man?' to 'I've got a really difficult passenger here – does anyone have a seat next to a screaming child?' 1

There is a sensible drinking policy on all airlines, which means that we are not supposed to serve passengers if they start getting noisy, but some air crew think that if you give them enough to eat and drink, they will eventually fall asleep and give you no trouble at all. 2 That's the reason, of course, why we like to turn the heating up halfway through a flight...

Some airports are notorious for losing passengers' luggage. Heathrow has a poor reputation – most airports lose about two in every thousand bags, but Heathrow loses eighty per thousand, which means for every five hundred people who check in, forty won't get their bags or suitcases at the other end! 3 When the airport is busy, which it always is, there is so much baggage being transported between the terminals and so little time to do it that a lot of the transferred luggage gets left behind.

4 Not only is there always a shortage of them for the people who really need them, but worse still, some of the people who request them often don't need them at all. I've lost count of the number of times I've pushed someone through the airport, taken them through customs and passport control, and got a porter to pick up their luggage, and then seen the person jump up in Arrivals and sprint towards their waiting relatives. One flight attendant I know gets so annoyed when this happens that as soon as the passenger gets out of the chair she shouts, 'Ladies and gentlemen! I give you another miracle, courtesy of the airline industry! After decades in a chair, he walks again!' The passenger is normally so embarrassed that he (and it's usually a he) disappears as quickly as he can.

Birds are one of the major problems for any airport when planes are taking off and landing. A swan or any large bird can easily cause an accident. 5 Smaller birds are less of a problem. In some cases they can do some damage, but more often than not they are just roasted. When this happens, there is often such a strong smell of roast bird that passengers on the plane think that chicken is being cooked, and they're often surprised when they are given a choice of fish or beef at dinner!

Hysterical flight attendant causes panic on transatlantic flight

Everything was going smoothly on Virgin Atlantic flight VS043 from London Gatwick to Las Vegas. The 451 passengers were relaxing after lunch when the plane hit some turbulence over Greenland. There was no advance warning, so many passengers were out of their seats or were not wearing seat belts when the plane started dropping violently.

Suddenly one of the flight attendants screamed, 'We're going to crash!' Panic immediately broke out. In the 30 minutes of chaos, passengers desperately clung to their seats, as drinks and magazines flew around the cabin. Amid the terror, the flight attendant screamed every time the plane dropped.

Businesswoman Angela Marshall was travelling with her partner. 'Until then the flight had been fine,' she said afterwards. 'I'd been reading my book and my partner had been having a nap. But when the flight attendant started screaming, I was totally convinced that we were about to die.'

Another passenger said, 'It was unreal, like something from a film. People started crying and being sick. That woman shouldn't be a flight attendant. After we landed she was joking and laughing as if nothing had happened, but we all staggered off the plane in a state of shock.'

- I thought he was Portuguese, but actually he's Brazilian.
- You said they'd already gone, but apparently they're still here.
- I absolutely love Italian food, especially pizza.

4 WRITING

a You are going to write a mini saga.

Your story must be 50 words exactly (not including the title) and you must include at least two adverbs. Contracted forms (e.g. I'd) count as one word. First choose one of the titles below.

A holiday romance Revenge is sweet
The lie Never again

- Think of a plot. Then write a first draft without worrying about the number of words.
- Now count the words and then try to cut or add words until the story is the right length. Write your final version.
- Read two other students' stories. Which do you like best?

5 SPEAKING

6 READING & LISTENING

Reading for pleasure

When you read a longer text, e.g. a short story, you normally don't read once quickly for gist and then re-read. You read, perhaps at a slightly slower speed, and keep going, focusing on following the story. It is also especially important to try to guess words from context. Only look up a word while you are reading if it's holding you up or you really want to know what it means. Frequently looking up words may get in the way of your enjoyment. However, it can help to pause from time to time and look back, just to check you are clear about what is happening.

- a Read and listen to an American short story. Answer the questions 1–13 in pairs.

Little Brother™

by Bruce Holland Rodgers

Peter had wanted a Little Brother™ for three Christmases in a row. His favourite TV commercials were the ones that showed just how much fun he would have teaching Little Brother™ to do all the things that he could already do himself. But every year, Mommy had said that Peter wasn't ready for a Little Brother™. Until this year.

This year when Peter ran into the living room, there sat Little Brother™ among all the wrapped presents, babbling baby talk, smiling his happy smile, and patting one of the packages with his fat little hand. Peter was so excited that he ran up and gave Little Brother™ a big hug around the neck. That was how he found out about the button. Peter's hand pushed against something cold on Little Brother™'s neck, and suddenly Little Brother™ wasn't babbling any more, or even sitting up. Suddenly, Little Brother™ was limp on the floor, as lifeless as any ordinary doll.

- 1 What kind of toy is Little Brother™? What does the ™ mean?
- 2 What do you think 'babbling' means?
- 3 What happened when Peter hugged Little Brother™?

"Peter!" Mommy said.

"I didn't mean to!"

Mommy picked up Little Brother™, sat him in her lap, and pressed the black button at the back of his neck. Little Brother™'s face came alive, and it wrinkled up as if he were about to cry, but Mommy bounced him on her knee and told him what a good boy he was. He didn't cry after all.

"Little Brother™ isn't like your other toys, Peter," Mommy said. "You have to be extra careful with him, as if he were a real baby."

She put Little Brother™ down on the floor, and he took tottering baby steps toward Peter. "Why don't you let him help open your other presents?"

So that's what Peter did. He showed Little Brother™ how to tear the paper and open the boxes. The other toys were a fire engine, some talking books, a wagon, and lots and lots of wooden blocks. The fire engine was the second-best present. It had lights, a siren, and hoses just like the real thing. There weren't as many presents as last year, Mommy explained, because Little Brother™ was expensive. That was okay. Little Brother™ was the best present ever! Well, that's what Peter thought at first.

- 4 How did Peter's mother stop Little Brother™ from crying?
- 5 What do you think 'wrinkled up' means?
- 6 What does the last line make you think?

let drop allow sth to fall

At first, everything that Little Brother™ did was funny and wonderful. Peter put all the torn wrapping paper in the wagon, and Little Brother™ took it out again and threw it on the floor. Peter started to read a talking book, and Little Brother™ came and turned the pages too fast for the book to keep up.

But then, while Mommy went to the kitchen to cook breakfast, Peter tried to show Little Brother™ how to build a very tall tower out of blocks. Little Brother™ wasn't interested in seeing a really tall tower. Every time Peter had a few blocks stacked up, Little Brother™ swatted the tower with his hand and laughed. Peter laughed, too, for the first time, and the second. But then he said, "Now watch this time. I'm going to make it really big."

But Little Brother™ didn't watch. The tower was only a few blocks tall when he knocked it down.

"No!" Peter said. He grabbed hold of Little Brother™'s arm. "Don't!"

Little Brother™'s face wrinkled. He was getting ready to cry.

Peter looked toward the kitchen and let go. "Don't cry," he said. "Look, I'm building another one! Watch me build it!"

Little Brother™ watched. Then he knocked the tower down.

Peter had an idea.

- 7 What funny things did Little Brother™ do at first?
- 8 What do you think 'grabbed hold of' means?
- 9 What do you think Peter's idea was?

When Mommy came into the living room again, Peter had built a tower that was taller than he was, the best tower he had ever made. "Look!" he said.

But Mommy didn't even look at the tower. "Peter!" She picked up Little Brother™, put him on her lap, and pressed the button to turn him back on. As soon as he was on, Little Brother™ started to scream. His face turned red.

"I didn't mean to!"

"Peter, I told you! He's not like your other toys. When you turn him off, he can't move but he can still see and hear. He can still feel. And it scares him."

"He was knocking down my blocks."

"Babies do things like that," Mommy said. "That's what it's like to have a baby brother."

Little Brother™ howled.

"He's mine," Peter said too quietly for Mommy to hear. But when Little Brother™ had calmed down, Mommy put him back on the floor and Peter let him toddle over and knock down the tower.

Mommy told Peter to clean up the wrapping paper, and she went back into the kitchen. Peter had already picked up the wrapping paper once, and she hadn't said thank you. She hadn't even noticed.

Peter wadded the paper into angry balls and threw them one at a time into the wagon until it was almost full. That's when Little Brother™ broke the fire engine. Peter turned just in time to see him lift the engine up over his head and let it drop.

- 10 Why didn't Peter's mother even look at the tower?
- 11 What makes Little Brother™ a different kind of toy?
- 12 Why did Peter feel annoyed with his mother?
- 13 What do you think is going to happen next?

b 2.15 Listen to the end of the story. In pairs, discuss what you think happened.

- 1 What did Peter do to Little Brother™ after he broke the fire engine?
- 2 How did his mother react?
- 3 What did Peter threaten to do?
- 4 How did Peter's mother punish him for his behaviour?

c Listen again with the tapescript on page 123. Were you right?

d Do you think Little Brother™ or Little Sister™ may exist in the future? Why might people want to have them?

- d Listen to the interviews again with the tapescript on page 123. Then answer the same questions with a partner.

It was only a small mistake, but it changed my life.

I had been working at JB Simpson's for ten years. It was a small ¹ _____ company which exported garden furniture. I was ² _____ happy with my job – I got on ³ _____ with the owner, Arthur Simpson but not with his wife, Linda. She was a loud, ⁴ _____ woman, who ⁵ _____ used to turn up at the office and start criticizing us for no reason. Everyone disliked her.

One afternoon Mrs Simpson came in while I was finishing writing a report. She looked at me and said, 'If I were you, I wouldn't wear that colour. It doesn't suit you at all.' I was wearing a ⁶ _____ pink shirt that I was ⁷ _____ fond of, and her comment really annoyed me. I typed a ⁸ _____ email to Alan Simmonds in Sales. 'Watch out! The old witch is on the warpath!' and pressed 'send'. A couple of minutes later I was surprised to receive an email from Mr Simpson asking me to come to his office ⁹ _____. When I opened the door, I saw his wife glaring at the computer screen, and I realized, to my horror, what I had done. I had clicked on Simpson instead of Simmonds. ¹⁰ _____ I was packing my things. I had been sacked!

- a Read the story. What was the 'small mistake'? What happened?
- b Using adverbs and adjectives helps to make a story come alive and makes it more enjoyable to read. Complete the story with an adjective or adverb from the list below.

aggressive an hour later extremely family-run frequently immediately new reasonably quick well

- c You may want to write some dialogue as part of your story. Rewrite the following with the correct punctuation. Use the dialogue in the story to help you.

sit down mr simpson said coldly i want to talk to you about an email you sent

'Sit _____

- d You are going to write a story beginning with the sentence It was three o'clock in the morning when the phone rang. Look at the time expressions in Useful language and correct one word in each.

- ² As soon than I saw him, I knew something was wrong.
- ³ Ten minutes after, I went back to sleep.
- ⁴ A morning in September I got to work early.
- We got to the station ⁵ just on time to catch the train.

PLAN the content.

- 1 Invent a plot and write what happened simply, in about 50 words.
- 2 Then think about how you could improve your story by adding more details, e.g. with adjectives and adverbs.
- 3 Think about what tenses you need for each part of the story, e.g. how to set the scene, what significant events happened before the story starts.

WRITE 120–180 words, organized in two or three paragraphs. Use a variety of narrative tenses and adverbs and adjectives to make your story more vivid.

CHECK your short story for mistakes (grammar, punctuation, and spelling).

How I conquered my fear of flying

Journalist and documentary maker Sean Langan talks about his irrational phobia of flying.

My fear of flying is not just a mild case, but a real, oh-my-God-I’m-going-to-die-any-second kind of fear. ¹ My job has taken me to dangerous places such as Afghanistan and Iraq, but I’m far more worried about flying planes than by flying bullets. After an awful flight earlier this year on a small plane, I decided I would either have to stop flying altogether or I could try to overcome my fears. Which is why, a few weeks later, I agreed to take the flight to end all fears.

The plane was going almost vertically upwards before moving sharply to the left. To make matters worse, my seat was shaking violently because of severe turbulence. My stomach was turning. The captain, sensing my fear, took his hands off the controls and turned to face me. ² In fact Captain Keith Godfrey had designed the flight, or rather the terrifyingly realistic flight simulator, to my needs.

In the two years Virtual Aviation have been running the course at Heathrow, they had never put the plane through such extreme flying before. ³ And they were right. By showing me just how far you can push a plane, and still keep it safely within its limits, they allayed my fears. I had to experience things for myself before I was able to convince myself of the truth. That planes, generally speaking, do not fall out of the sky like rotten apples.

In their careful pre-flight questioning with a therapist called Susie, they focused on what lay beneath my fear. ⁴ Something moving in an overhead locker could sound to me like an engine about to fall off. But Susie focused on my heightened sense of movement as my main problem, which is why during the flight the captain flipped the plane over like a pancake.

⁵ But by facing my worst fear, I’d overcome it. And fellow sufferers will be glad to know that I got through my next real flight safe and sound.

Judge Osvaldo Carlos decided the parrot should ⁶ send / be sent to prison until he said the name of his owner. After five days, Pepo said Jorge's name and also sung the anthem of his favourite football team, San Lorenzo. Mr Machado said, 'I knew he wasn't going to let me down. He is a real friend and we ⁷ support / are supported the same football team.'

b New grammar. Read another true story. How does the hypnotist rob banks?

Hypnotic bank robber

Bank clerks in Moldova have been told by the police not to make eye contact with customers after a series of robberies. The robber is believed to be a trained hypnotist from Russia.

He is said to put cashiers into a trance before making them hand over tens of thousands of dollars' worth of notes.

It is thought that the criminal begins talking to bank tellers and gradually hypnotizes them. After getting them to give him money, he then brings them back out of the trance and leaves them with no memory of handing over the cash. It is believed that the man has robbed at least three banks in the last month.

He wears a mask and washing-up gloves during robberies. It ³ _____ (think / he / rob) at least four shops in Stockport in recent weeks.

A police officer said, 'He ⁴ _____ (report / be) polite to his victims, but there is nothing polite about armed robbery. Last week this man used a knife to threaten shop staff. They were terrified. Saying "please" and "thank you" cannot change that.'

5 READING

- a What do you think would be an appropriate punishment for...?
- 1 a woman who abandoned some kittens in a forest
 - 2 people caught speeding in a residential area
 - 3 a man who was caught carrying a loaded gun in the street
 - 4 some teenagers who vandalized a school bus
 - 5 noisy neighbours who play rock music very loudly at all hours
- b Read the first four paragraphs of the article. What sentence did Judge Cicconetti give these people? Why? Do you think his sentences would be more effective than yours?

Sometimes when you read a newspaper article for detail, the information is not given in a chronological order. You may need to re-read the article to clarify in your mind information about people and events.

- c Read through the questions below. Then read the whole article to find the information.
- 1 The judge
What was his early life like? How successful has he been professionally?
 - 2 The punishments
Which three creative punishments get the offenders to learn from a personal experience?
Which two punishments get them to do something for other people?
 - 3 The reasons behind his system
What inspired his system of creative punishments?
Why does he think they are better than conventional punishments?
What evidence does he have that the punishments are successful?
- d What do you think of his system? Would you like to have a judge like Cicconetti in your town?

6 SPEAKING

GET IT RIGHT giving your opinion

When we are giving our opinion about the right way to punish someone, we often use should + passive infinitive:

I think they should be made to...

I don't think they should be allowed to...

- a In groups, decide on creative punishments for these crimes or offences.
- An arsonist who sets fire to a local beauty spot, for example, a forest.
 - A 15-year-old who is caught drinking and smoking.
 - Someone who parks illegally causing major traffic delays.
 - A group of teenagers who paint graffiti all over walls in a small town.
 - A couple whose dogs bark incessantly and bother the neighbours.
 - A young person who creates a computer virus which infects thousands of computers.
- b Compare with other groups and decide which you think are the best solutions.

Making the punishment fit the crime

– Mike Cicconetti, a US judge with a difference

Judge Cicconetti

- 1 When Michelle Murray was arrested for abandoning some kittens in a forest, she expected to get a fine or a short prison sentence. Instead she was sentenced to spend the night in the same cold, dark forest. In the end it was so cold that she only had to spend three hours in the woods, but Judge Mike Cicconetti had made his point. He wanted the 26-year-old Ohio housewife to feel the same pain and suffering as the animals she had abandoned, many of which later died.
- 2 Judge Cicconetti's unusual ruling was just the latest example of his unique brand of 'creative justice' which has won him national acclaim. He was elected unopposed to serve another six years in Lake County, Ohio last month, and this year won the presidency of the American Judges Association.
- 3 Cicconetti allows offenders to choose between jail, and an alternative, 'creative' sentence. For example, people accused of speeding are offered a choice between having their licence suspended for 90 days, or having it suspended for a shorter period and spending one day working as a school crossing guard. The judge says that offenders who spend a day helping school children across the street never appear in his courtroom for speeding again.
- 4 The judge also sent a man who was caught with a loaded gun to the mortuary to view dead bodies and ordered teenagers who let down tyres on school buses to organize a picnic for primary school children. He has ordered noisy neighbours to spend a day of silence in the woods, or to listen to classical music instead of rock.
- 5 Cicconetti attributes his unusual approach to his tough family background. He was the oldest of nine children and had to work part-time collecting rubbish to pay his way through college. He studied law at night school. 'I didn't go to a prestigious law firm,' he says, 'I had to get to where I am the hard way. It makes you understand what the working man has to go through, and why some of them commit crimes. I want to give people a positive lesson, not a negative one.'
- 6 A drawer in his cramped office in the Painesville Municipal Courthouse is full of thank-you letters from both victims and criminals. 'Some people will say that my punishments are cruel or unusual,' the judge said. 'OK, it's a little bit of embarrassment and humiliation. But when you have people fulfilling these sentences, you are doing it for them and the victims and the community. And above all, I can remember only two people who have been sentenced to alternative punishments and who have reoffended.'

Yesterday was unbelievable. Though we were warned there was going to be a terrible storm, no one really expected or could possibly have visualized hurricane-force winds destroying bus stops and ripping trees out of the wet soil. They told us not to cycle anywhere and to stay indoors, but I had a job interview in the centre so I had to go out.

Thank God I did manage to get there, but I had to grab hold of traffic lights so I wouldn't be blown into the road. I saw some crazy people on bikes – some of them got blown over and one even seemed to be going backwards. The canals were full of rubbish bins that had got blown in and there were piles of bikes in the streets and broken umbrellas everywhere, which people obviously thought they were going to be able to use and then couldn't. What a mess!

Yet another scorching, sunny day...

I never knew this kind of heat was possible here. Last Wednesday was the hottest day ever in this country. The roads were melting in some areas, and the underground was a total nightmare – it was like being slowly cooked in an oven.

The main problem is that people here don't seem to understand the need for air conditioning during the summer. There is no escaping the heat and if you actually want to go anywhere, you have to be prepared to sweat and learn to enjoy your task sweating. Please tell me, how do you shop? Try on clothes? No thank you. Even going for an ice-cold beer can be uncomfortable if the pub isn't at least equipped with a large fan.

So I sit here sweating in my living room. The French windows are open but the coolest room in the apartment is the bathroom and sadly, there is no Internet connection so I can't work there!

I got woken up today by my daughter screaming, 'Dad...it's snowing... it's snowing!' She just couldn't believe it – not surprising as they said on the news that it hasn't snowed here for nearly fifty years! We decided not to send her to school and we had a great time – we even made a snowman in the yard. We used dried cranberries for the eyes and a baby carrot for the nose because it was a baby snowman. People are so amazed by the 'totally awesome' weather that I've seen some people just standing there staring as if they were in a trance. You kind of feel it's the work of a clever set decorator for a high-budget movie.

It was chaos, though, for people going to work – Interstate 5 was closed in some parts and a whole load of trucks were stuck in the snow. And it's been very bad news for the citrus trees – they're all frozen. Even if it thaws tomorrow, the damage is already done. So I'm afraid we won't be eating any local oranges this year!

b New grammar. Read some of the predictions scientists are making about climate change and complete them with a word from the list below.

become closed down doubled having (x2) melted risen (x3) suffering

c Read the predictions again. Which ones worry you most? Have you noticed the effects of climate change in your country?

Storm clouds on the horizon

Climate change is now something that we cannot close our eyes to, and governments all over the world have finally realized that they have to sit up and take notice. These are some of the things that many scientists predict will happen if we carry on polluting the atmosphere with CO₂ emissions.

Short term: by the year 2050

- More than a third of the world's plant and animal species will have ¹ _____ extinct.
- The ice in the Arctic Sea will melt every summer, causing the extinction of polar bears, and many glaciers, for example on Mount Kilimanjaro, will have ² _____ completely.
- 50% of the world's ski resorts will have ³ _____ due to lack of snow.

Mid term: by the year 2100

- Sea levels will have ⁴ _____ by between 16cm and 69cm. This means that low-lying islands like the Maldives will no longer be habitable.
- The number of serious coastal storms and tsunamis will have ⁵ _____.
- Northern European cities, e.g. Paris and London will be ⁶ _____ 50 days a year of heatwaves when temperatures are over 30°C (there are currently 6–9 days).

Long term: by the year 3000

- Temperatures will have ⁷ _____ by about 15°C.
- Sea levels will have ⁸ _____ by more than 11 metres, flooding large areas of Bangladesh, and many low-lying cities, such as London. Hundreds of millions of people will be displaced.
- One third of the world will be ⁹ _____ from extreme droughts, and half the world will be ¹⁰ _____ moderate droughts. Tens of millions of Africans will have to emigrate.

d Match the sentences A–C with pictures 1–3.

- A This time tomorrow it will be snowing.
 B By tomorrow evening it will have snowed.
 C It will snow tomorrow.

Which of the tips below...? a do you already do b are you prepared to try to do c are you not prepared to try

What can YOU do to help? The top tips

- 1 Fly less. Use buses or trains instead where possible. If you have to fly, give money to an organization like Carbon Footprints to compensate for the CO₂ emissions of your flight.
- 2 Drive as little as possible. Use bikes, or public transport. And if you need to drive, buy a hybrid, a car which has an extra electric motor which charges up when you brake. You could also car share with a friend.
- 3 Use only energy-saving light bulbs.
- 4 Plant trees. Two or three dozen trees can absorb a whole household's emissions of CO₂.
- 5 Don't keep your TV or other electrical appliances on standby. Switch them off completely.
- 6 Use the cold water wash on your washing machine, and use a dishwasher, on the economy programme, which uses less energy and water than hand-washing dishes.
- 7 Try to buy organic food, if possible which has been grown locally. Take your own shopping bags when you go to supermarkets.
- 8 Turn your heating down and wear a sweater if you're cold. If you use air conditioning, don't have it at less than 25°C.
- 9 Have showers not baths.
- 10 Support an environmental organization, for example Friends of the Earth or Greenpeace.
- 11 Regularly recycle paper, glass, plastic, and household waste.
- 12 Vote for the political party which is doing the most to combat climate change.

Taking a risk

1 READING

- a Which of these things scares you more?
- being shot or drowning
 - mad cow disease or bacteria in the kitchen
 - flying or driving
 - terrorist attacks or heart disease
- b Read the article once quite quickly and find out which of the things in a is riskier.
- c Read the article again and answer the questions.
- 1 Molly's parents...
- worry too much about their daughter.
 - are scared of the wrong thing.
 - don't take danger seriously.
- 2 Having bacteria in our kitchen doesn't worry us because...
- it isn't really dangerous.
 - we can keep our kitchen clean.
 - we are too worried about mad cow disease.
- 3 People are more afraid of flying than driving because...
- they are in a situation where they can't do anything.
 - more people die in plane crashes than car crashes.
 - flying is more dangerous.
- 4 People...
- believe that terrorism is more of a threat than heart disease.
 - shouldn't worry so much about heart disease.
 - are less worried about dangers in the near future.
- 5 People tend...
- to worry too much about danger.
 - to confuse terror with danger.
 - not to do enough to stop accidents.

The risk factor

Our daily lives are full of dangers, from driving our cars to cholesterol in our food. But how good are we really at assessing these risks?

Not very good at all, according to Steven Levitt and Stephen Dubner in their best selling book Freakonomics. Parents, they say, take danger very seriously but they often worry about completely the wrong things. The authors give as an example the fictional case of a little girl they call 'Molly'. Her parents know that the father of one of her friends keeps a gun in their house, so they decide that Molly is not allowed to play there. Instead, they feel that Molly would be much safer spending time at another friend's house, where there are no guns, but there is a swimming pool. You may think this is the right choice, but according to the statistics, you would be wrong. Every year, one child per 11,000 private swimming pools is drowned in the United States. However, only one child is killed by a gun for every million guns. This means that a child is 100 times more likely to die in a swimming accident than because of playing with a gun.

Molly's parents are not unique. Generally people are just not very good at assessing risk. Peter Sandman, a risk consultant at Princeton University, New Jersey, says 'The risks that scare people and the risks that kill people are very different things.' He compares the dangerous bacteria in our kitchen and diseases such as mad cow disease: the first is very common, but for some reason not very frightening; the second is extremely rare, but it terrifies us. 'Risks that you can control are much less worrying than risks you can't control,' says Sandman. 'We can't tell if our meat is infected, whereas we can control how clean our kitchen is.'

This 'control factor' probably explains why flying tends to scare people more than driving. Levitt argues, 'Their thinking goes like this: "since I control the car, I am the one keeping myself safe; since I have no control of the aeroplane, I am at the mercy of external factors."' Actually, the question of which is more dangerous is not as simple as many people think. Statistics for the United States show that, although many more people die each year in road accidents than in plane crashes, driving isn't necessarily more dangerous. This is because generally people spend far less time flying than driving. In fact, statistically, the number of deaths for each hour of driving compared with each hour of flying is about the same. So flying and driving carry a very similar risk. It is just our lack of control when flying that makes it seem more scary.

Levitt also says that people tend to be much more scared of short-term dangers than long-term ones. The probability of someone being killed in a terrorist attack is infinitely smaller than the probability that this same person will eat too much fatty food and die of heart disease. 'But a terrorist attack happens now,' says Levitt. 'Death from heart disease is a distant, quiet catastrophe. Terrorist acts lie beyond our control – French fries do not.'

Finally there is what Peter Sandman calls 'the dread factor', that is how horrific we consider something to be. We are horrified by the thought of being killed in a terrorist attack, but for some reason we are not horrified by the thought of death from heart disease. Sandman uses the following equation: for most people risk = hazard (or danger) + outrage (or horror). 'When the hazard is high but the terror is low, people underreact. When the hazard is low and the outrage is high, people overreact.' Which is why so many parents will do more to protect their children from a gun accident than from a swimming pool accident. A gun horrifies us, but a swimming pool does not.

d Look at the highlighted words and phrases in the article and use them to complete these sentences.

- 1 Motorbikes are much cheaper than cars. _____, they are more dangerous.
- 2 _____ doctors it isn't a good idea to go swimming straight after lunch.

MINI GRAMMAR likely and probably

A child is 100 times more likely to die in a swimming accident than because of playing with a gun.

This 'control factor' probably explains why flying tends to scare people more than driving.

Likely and probably are very similar in meaning, but they are grammatically different. Likely is an adjective and probably is an adverb.

Use be + likely + infinitive, e.g. She's likely to be off work for a long time.

Use probably before the main verb in a $\boxed{+}$ sentence, e.g. She'll probably be off work for a long time, but before the auxiliary verb in a $\boxed{-}$ sentence, e.g. He probably won't come.

Complete the sentences with likely or probably.

- 1 I don't think the boss is very _____ to agree.
- 2 They _____ won't be here before 6.00.
- 3 That isn't _____ to happen in the near future.
- 4 I'll _____ be home late tonight.

4 GRAMMAR conditionals and future time clauses a Check what you know. Circle the right verb form.

- 1 If I like / I'll like the car when I see it, I'll buy it.
- 2 I don't go / won't go to work tomorrow unless I feel better.
- 3 We'll carry on playing until it gets / will get dark.
- 4 If it rains tonight, we won't have to / don't have to water the garden tomorrow.
- 5 I won't take a decision before I have / I'll have all the information.
- 6 I'll tell you when I hear / I'll hear from him.

b New grammar. Match the sentence halves.

Main clause

- 1 Don't walk too near the river
- 2 You are more likely to have an accident
- 3 They'll call us
- 4 You're going to be late
- 5 I'll probably be driving
- 6 I'll call back later
- 7 Take your umbrella
- 8 Please put everything away
- 9 I'll have already had lunch
- 10 I'm not starting the car

Other clause

- A in case it's raining when you finish work.
- B if you don't hurry up.
- C if you're having supper now.
- D if you've finished cooking.
- E if you come at two.
- F in case you fall in.
- G when you call me so leave a message.
- H until everybody has put their seat belt on.
- I as soon as they've landed.
- J if you drive too fast.

c Answer the questions with a partner.

- 1 Which sentence is a zero conditional and refers to something which always happens, not a future possibility?
- 2 In the other sentences, what tenses can be used in the main clause? What tenses can be used in the other clause after if, in case, when, etc.?
- 3 What does in case mean in sentences 1 and 7?

c In pairs, practise the dialogues. Try to say the sentences as fast as possible with the right rhythm.

6 LISTENING

- a Look at the photo and read an extract from an article about a children's nursery in Japan. What are the main safety measures? What do you think of them?

Japan's children play safe

When Ryosuke and Taemi Suzuki take their 18-month-old daughter to Fantasy Kids Resort in Japan they are guaranteed total peace of mind. Fantasy Kids Resort is one of several similar playgrounds in Japan that provides for the growing number of parents who constantly worry about possible dangers threatening their children such as disease and accidents.

First-time visitors to the playground must provide proof of identification before they enter, and shoes must be removed at the door, because they carry germs. Even the wheels of baby buggies are sprayed with an antibacterial solution.

Inside, children are watched over by about 20 staff dressed in bright yellow uniforms and more than a dozen security cameras are mounted on the ceiling. Although pets are banned from the playground, its large sandpit contains sterilized sand which is cleaned daily to remove any potentially harmful objects. Most of the bigger toys are inflatable to reduce the risk of injury. This is to protect the resort as much as the children, because parents of a child injured while at the playground might easily sue the resort.

'We've been here before and we'll definitely come again,' says Mr Suzuki. 'This place has everything under one roof, but most importantly, it puts absolute priority on safety.'

Mr and Mrs Suzuki are not alone in wanting to remove just about every element of risk from their children's lives. According to a recent government survey...

THE INTERVIEW

a You are going to listen to an interview with EZ, a 'free runner' who started the organization Urban Freeflow. Free runners use obstacles in a town or city to create movement by running, jumping, and climbing. Before you listen, read the glossary and look at how the words are pronounced to help you understand what he says.

Glossary

the South Bank /səʊθ bæŋk/ the area of London on the south side of the River Thames lamp post /læmp pəʊst/ a tall post with a lamp on top used to illuminate the street

PE physical education, especially as a school subject skateboard /sketbɔ:d/ a short narrow board with small wheels at each end, which you stand on and ride as a sport

BMX a kind of mountain bike calluses /'kæləsɪz/ areas of thick hard skin on a hand or foot.

b 3.13 Listen to part 1. Answer the questions with a partner.

- Can you do free running anywhere?
- Does EZ usually do it alone or with other people?
- What sport did he do before free running?
- Why did he take up free running?
- How many athletes are there in the Urban Freeflow team? What kind of work do they do?
- How is free running helping youth offenders and schoolchildren? Why do they like it?

c 3.14 Listen to part 2. Answer the questions with a partner.

What does he say about...?

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 being safety conscious | 4 a tree |
| 2 the sense of freedom | 5 gymnastics and football |
| 3 blisters and sprained ankles | |

d 3.15 Listen and complete the phrases. What do you think they mean?

COMMON PHRASES

Community service is the best punishment for young people who commit a minor offence.

¹ Nowadays in the UK when a young person commits a minor offence he or she is normally sentenced to prison, a fine, or community service. ² _____ I believe that community service is the best option.

³ _____, community service often persuades a young person not to reoffend. Working with sick children or old people makes young offenders realize that there are people who have more difficult lives than they do. So, community service can be an educational experience, ⁴ _____ going to prison or paying a fine is not.

⁹ _____, I believe that community service has important advantages both for minor offenders and for the community.

Burglar caught by clever cartoonist

WILLIAM ELLIS GREEN, aged 82, was making his breakfast when he heard somebody in his garden. 'I went out of the back door and suddenly I saw this bloke running towards me. He pushed me out of the way and took my bicycle from the garden shed.' Mr Green did not resist, as he knew he would come off second best in a fight with the intruder. The burglar tried to cycle away, but the tyres on the bike were flat so it was difficult to ride. 'He kept falling off the bicycle,' said Mr Green, 'at least three or four times.' After the man had fled, Mr Green called the local police.

When they arrived, officers asked him to describe the man, but instead he offered to draw them a picture. 'When Mr Green started drawing,' said one of the police officers, 'I knew straight away who the burglar was.' In fact, Mr Green had worked for more than 20 years in daily newspapers doing caricatures of Australian footballers. 'I had no difficulty in remembering the man's face because he was so close to me,' he said.

Police cruised the neighbourhood in a patrol car with the sketch in search of the alleged burglar and they found him within half an hour. 'The cartoon was a perfect likeness of the burglar,' said another police officer.

Police believe that this is the first time they have ever caught a suspect with a cartoon sketch. Phil Rushford, a senior police constable, said that in the past some victims had used their mobile phones to take photographs at crime scenes, but they had not been as effective.

A 34-year-old man is expected to be charged with theft, burglary, and assault. The missing bike was later found in a road nearby.

a Answer the questions with a partner.

1 How do you think most people react in a life or death disaster situation?

- a They panic and become hysterical.
- b They act coolly and calmly.
- c They 'freeze' and can't do anything.

2 What do you do when you are on a plane and the flight attendant starts to explain the safety procedures?

- a I don't listen. I've heard it so many times!
- b I listen but I don't take it very seriously.
- c I pay attention and also read the safety information in the seat pocket.

3 What would you do if you were in a hotel on the 5th floor and the fire alarm went off in the middle of the night?

- a I would pick up essential things like my passport and mobile and find the quickest way down to the lobby.
- b I would follow the emergency instructions on the back of the door, which I had read when I arrived.
- c I wouldn't pay any attention. I would think it was probably a fire drill.

b Read How humans behave when the worst thing happens, and check your answer to question 1 above. Then answer the questions below with a partner.

- 1 What two reasons are given to explain why a lot of people freeze in a crisis?
- 2 Is it possible to predict how people will react in a crisis?
- 3 What do you think you would do?

c A read about a survivor of the World Trade Center, and B read about a survivor from the Tenerife air crash. Then use the questions below to tell each other about what you read.

- A
- 1 Where was Elia on 11th September 2001?

- B
- 1 Where was Paul Heck on 27th March 1977?
 - 2 How did the accident happen?
 - 3 How could more passengers have survived?
 - 4 Why did Paul Heck survive?
 - 5 What previous experience influenced Paul?

d Read the whole article and in pairs, mark the sentences true (T) or false (F).

- 1 Elia Zedeño's first instinct was to run.
- 2 If her colleague hadn't shouted, she might not have reacted how she did.
- 3 She took her time to leave because she didn't know where the exit was.
- 4 Some people who died in the World Trade Center could have survived.
- 5 The 1977 Tenerife air crash happened in bad weather conditions.
- 6 The Pan Am passengers had plenty of time to escape.
- 7 Heck always worried about how he would be able to escape from places.
- 8 People don't read safety information because they aren't worried about crashing.

e Look at the highlighted words related to disasters. In pairs, try to work out the meaning from the context of the ones you didn't know.

f What survival tips have you learned from this article? Which were the best options in questions 2 and 3 in a?

How humans behave when the worst thing happens...

WE ALWAYS THINK 'it will never happen to me' but disasters can strike any time anywhere – from hotel fires to train crashes to terrorist attacks. How would you cope if the unthinkable happened?

According to experts, people caught up in disasters tend to fall into three categories. About 10% to 15% remain calm and act quickly and efficiently. Another 15% completely panic, crying and screaming and obstructing the evacuation. But the vast majority (70%) of people do very little. They are 'stunned and confused,' says British psychologist John Leach.

Why is this? Research suggests that under great stress our minds take much longer to process information. So, in a crisis many people 'freeze' just at the moment when they need to act quickly. It also seems that a person's personality is not a good guide to how they might react – a normally decisive person may not act at all quickly in a crisis and vice versa. 'Most people go their entire lives without a disaster,' says Michael Lindell, a professor at Texas A&M University. 'So when something bad happens they are so shocked they just think, "This can't possibly be happening to me," instead of taking action.'

Office workers flee the collapsing towers on 11th September 2001.

WHEN THE PLANE hit the World Trade Center on 11th September 2001, Elia Zedeño was working on the 73rd floor. She heard an explosion and felt the building actually move, as if it might fall over. Zedeño first shouted out, 'What's happening?' You might expect that her next instinct was to run. But she had the opposite reaction. 'What I really wanted was for someone to scream back, "Everything is OK! Don't worry."'

Luckily, at least one of Zedeño's colleagues responded differently. He screamed, 'Get out of the building!' she remembers now. Years later, she still thinks about that command. 'My question is what would I have done if that person had said nothing?'

Even then Zedeño still did not immediately run. First she reached for her bag, and then she started walking in circles. 'I was looking for something to take with me. I remember I took my book. Then I kept looking around for other stuff to take. I felt as if I was in a trance.' When she finally left, she went slowly. 'It's strange because the sound of the explosion and the way the building shook should have made me go faster.' But Zedeño made it to safety. Experts have estimated that at least another 130 people would have got out of the World Trade Center alive if they had tried to leave the building sooner.

ON MARCH 27 1977 a Pan Am 747, which was waiting to take off from Tenerife airport, collided with a Dutch KLM 747 that was taking off in the fog. It was the worst air crash in history. Everyone on the KLM plane was killed but 62 passengers on the Pan Am plane survived. Many more would have survived if they had got off the plane immediately.

One of the survivors was 65-year-old Paul Heck. He led his wife Floy towards the exit and they got out just before the plane caught fire, just 60 seconds after the collision. Why Paul Heck and not others? In the hours just before the crash Paul did something highly unusual. While he was waiting for the plane to take off, he studied the 747's safety diagram. He looked for the nearest exit and he pointed it out to his wife. He had been in a theatre fire as a boy, and ever since then, he always checked for the exits when he was in an unfamiliar environment. When the planes collided, Heck's brain had the data it needed. He could work on autopilot, whereas other passengers froze, their minds paralysed by a storm of new information. Why don't more people read safety information on aeroplanes and fire escape information in hotels? The answer, according to research, is that people think it's not 'cool' to do so. So next time you fly or stay in a hotel or find yourself in any new environment forget about 'being cool' and take a few seconds to find out where the nearest emergency exit is. It may just save your life.

Tenerife air crash 27th March 1977. The accident led to research into why people sometimes freeze when they need to flee.

Escape from the Amazon

Four young men went into the jungle on the adventure of a lifetime. Not all of them would come out alive...

THE AMAZONIAN RAINFOREST is roughly the size of Europe or Australia. It is the home of more than half the plant and animal species known to man, many of which are lethal.

In 1981 three friends went backpacking in a remote area of Bolivia: Yossi, 22, and his two friends Kevin, 29, and Marcus, 29. They hired an experienced guide, an Austrian called Karl, who promised that he could take them deep into the rainforest to an undiscovered indigenous village. Then they would raft nearly 200 kilometres down river before flying to the capital, La Paz. Karl said that the journey to the village would take them seven or eight days. Before they entered the jungle, the three friends made a promise that they would 'go in together and come out together'.

The four men set off from the town of Apolo and soon they had left civilization far behind. But after walking for more than a week there was no sign of the village and tensions began to appear. The three friends began to suspect that Karl, the guide, didn't really know where the indigenous village was. Yossi and Kevin began to get fed up with their friend Marcus because he was complaining about everything, especially his feet, which had become infected and were hurting.

Eventually they decided to abandon the search for the village and just to hike back to Apolo, the way they had come. But Kevin was furious because he thought that it was Marcus' fault that they had had to cut short their adventure. So he decided that he would raft down the river, and he asked Yossi to join him – he didn't want Marcus to come with them. Karl and Marcus agreed to go back to Apolo on foot. The three friends agreed to meet in a hotel in La Paz in a week's time.

Early next morning the two pairs of travellers said goodbye and set off on their different journeys...

How I trained my husband

When nagging failed, Amy Sutherland tried a new strategy...

- 1 As I wash dishes at the kitchen sink, my husband, Scott, paces behind me, irritated. 'Have you seen my keys?' he snarls and stomps from the room with our dog, Dixie, at his heels. In the past I would have turned off the faucet and joined the hunt while trying to soothe my husband. But that only made him angrier, and a simple case of missing keys soon would become a full-blown drama starring the two of us and our poor nervous dog. Now, I focus on the wet dish in my hands. I don't turn around. I don't say a word. I'm using a technique I learned from a dolphin trainer.
- 2 For a book I was writing about a school for exotic animal trainers, I started spending my days watching students do the seemingly impossible: teaching hyenas to pirouette on command and chimps to skateboard. I listened, rapt, as professional trainers explained how they taught dolphins to flip and elephants to paint. Eventually it hit me that the same techniques might work on that stubborn but lovable species, the American husband. The central lesson I learned is that I should reward behaviour I like and ignore behaviour I don't. After all, you don't get a sea lion to balance a ball on the end of its nose by nagging. The same goes for the American husband.
- 3 I began thanking Scott if he threw one dirty shirt into the hamper. If he threw in two, I'd kiss him. I was using what trainers call 'approximations,' rewarding the small steps toward learning a whole new behaviour. You can't expect a baboon to learn to flip on command in one session, just as you can't expect an American husband to begin regularly picking up his dirty socks by praising him once for picking up a single sock. With the baboon you first reward a hop, then a bigger hop, then an even bigger hop. With Scott the husband, I began to praise every small act every time: if he drove just a mile an hour slower, tossed one pair of shorts into the hamper, or was on time for anything.
- 4 On a field trip with the students, I listened to a professional trainer describe how he had taught African crested cranes to stop landing on his head and shoulders. He did this by training the leggy birds to land on mats on the ground. This, he explained, is what is called an 'incompatible behaviour,' a simple but brilliant concept. Rather than teach the cranes to stop landing on him, the trainer taught the birds something else, a behaviour that would make the undesirable behaviour impossible. The birds couldn't alight on the mats and his head simultaneously. At home, I came up with incompatible behaviours for Scott to keep him from crowding me while I cooked. I piled up parsley for him to chop or cheese for him to grate at the other end of the kitchen island. Soon I'd done it: no more Scott hovering around me while I cooked.
- 5 I followed the students to SeaWorld San Diego, where a dolphin trainer introduced me to least reinforcing scenario (L. R. S.). When a dolphin does something wrong, the trainer doesn't respond in any way. He stands still for a few beats, careful not to look at the dolphin, and then returns to work. The idea is that any response, positive or negative, fuels a behaviour. If a behaviour provokes no response, it typically dies away. It was only a matter of time before he was again searching for his keys, at which point I said nothing and kept at what I was doing. It took a lot of discipline to maintain my calm, but results were immediate. I felt as if I should throw him a mackerel.
- 6 Professionals talk of animals that understand training so well they eventually use it back on the trainer. My animal did the same. When the training techniques worked so beautifully, I couldn't resist telling my husband what I was up to. He wasn't offended, just amused. Then last fall, firmly in middle age, I learned that I needed braces. They were not only humiliating, but also excruciating. One morning, as I launched into yet another tirade about how uncomfortable I was, Scott just looked at me blankly. He didn't say a word or acknowledge my rant in any way, not even with a nod. I started to walk away, then I realized what was happening, and I turned and asked, 'Are you giving me an L. R. S.?' Silence. 'You are, aren't you?' He finally smiled, but his L. R. S. had already done the trick. He'd begun to train me, the American wife.

a 4.14 What's the difference between a discussion and an argument? You're going to listen to a psychologist giving some tips to help people when they disagree with somebody about something. Listen once and tick the six things she says.

- 1 Think carefully what to say when you begin a discussion.
- 2 Try to 'win' the argument as quickly as you can.
- 3 Say sorry if something really is your fault.
- 4 Never avoid an argument by refusing to talk.
- 5 Don't say things which aren't completely true.
- 6 Don't shout.
- 7 Don't talk about things which aren't relevant to the argument.
- 8 Use another person to mediate.
- 9 Postpone the argument until later when you have both calmed down.
- 10 It's a bad thing for a couple to argue.

b Listen again and, with a partner, try to add more detail to the tips you ticked.

c With a partner, decide which two of the psychologist's tips you think are the most useful.

d Look at these sentences and try to work out what the missing words are.

- 1 But of course this is easier said _____ .
- 2 If you're the person who is _____ wrong, just admit it!
- 3 It is important to _____ things _____ control.
- 4 Raising your voice will just make the other person _____ their temper too.
- 5 Stop for a moment and _____ a deep breath.
- 6 It is also very important to _____ the point.
- 7 There is much more chance that you will be able to _____ an agreement.
- 8 _____ conflict is an important part of any relationship.

e 4.15 Listen and check.

5 SPEAKING

a  Communication Argument! A p.117 B p.120. Roleplay two arguments with a partner.

b Did you follow any of the psychologist's advice about how to argue? Was there anything you should / shouldn't have done?

MINI GRAMMAR would rather, had better

a Look at two sentences from the listening. Which of the highlighted phrases means should? Which means would prefer to? Do you know what 'd refers to in each case?

I'd rather talk about this tomorrow when we've both calmed down.

I think we'd better have another look at how we divide up the housework.

b Now read the rules for using had better and would rather.

- Use had better with the infinitive (without to), e.g. You'd better hurry up. Your train leaves in ten minutes. You'd better not tell your parents – they'll be furious. NOT You hadn't better tell...

⚠ had better is stronger and more immediate than should and is often used as a warning.

- Use would rather with the infinitive without to, e.g. I'd rather go on holiday in July this year, not August. Would you rather stay in or go out tonight? I'd rather not come to the meeting this afternoon. I'm really busy. NOT I'd not rather.

c Rewrite the bold phrases using had better or would rather.

- 1 I think I should go now. It's very late.
- 2 I'd prefer to go out on Friday instead of Saturday.
- 3 You shouldn't walk home. It's a bit dangerous here at night.
- 4 Ana said she'd prefer to meet on Thursday afternoon.
- 5 James should be careful. If the boss finds out, he'll sack him.
- 6 Would you prefer not to go to the party if David is going to be there?
- 7 You shouldn't leave your bag there – someone will steal it.
- 8 My wife would prefer not to fly. She had a bad experience once.

 - he is listening to something that sounds awful.
- b Now read about a book called In character: actors acting and check your answers.
- Who is the man in the photo?
 - What's he doing?

In character: actors acting

The photographer Howard Schatz had a very unusual idea for a book. He invited actors into his studio, and asked them to 'be' certain characters in certain situations, and he then photographed them. For example, he told the actor Christopher Lloyd to be 'a violin teacher who is listening to his pupil massacre a Mozart piece'.

c Read Let your body do the talking and check your answers.

Let your body do the talking

One of the areas of our body which conveys most about how we feel is our hands and arms. Hand and arm gestures are sometimes deliberate, but most often they occur unconsciously and naturally.

Saying something important Open hands and arms, especially extended, and with palms up in front of the body at chest height, indicate that what you're saying is important, and, especially when people are speaking in public, a pointing finger or a hand waving above the shoulders emphasizes an individual point. However, research shows that people often find speakers who point their fingers a lot rather annoying.

Openness or honesty When people want to be open or honest they will often hold one or both of their palms out to the other person. Footballers who have just committed a foul often use this gesture to try to convince the referee that they didn't do it.

Nervousness If a person puts his hand to his mouth, this either indicates that he is hiding something, or that he is nervous. Fidgeting with your hands, for example tapping the table with your fingers also shows nervousness, and so does holding a bag or briefcase very tightly in front of the body.

Superiority People who feel superior to you often appear relaxed, with their hands clasped behind their heads. The chin and head is often held high. This gesture is typical of lawyers, accountants, and other professionals who feel they know more than you do. Another gesture of superiority is to put your hands in your pockets with the thumbs protruding.

Feeling defensive Arms folded tightly over the chest is a classic gesture of defensiveness and indicates that you are protecting yourself. It is often seen among strangers in queues or in lifts or anywhere where people feel a bit insecure. People also sometimes use this gesture when they are listening to someone, to show that they disagree with what is being said. However, this gesture can simply mean that the person is cold!

Thinking hard A hand-to-cheek gesture, where someone brings a hand to his face and extends his index finger along his cheek, with the remaining fingers positioned below the mouth, often shows that someone is thinking deeply. When someone strokes his chin, he is probably thinking about something important, or making a decision.

Attraction If men are attracted to someone, they sometimes play with one of their ear lobes, whereas women will play with a lock of hair or continually tuck their hair behind their ears.

Lying There are many gestures that indicate that someone is lying and in order to be sure you would expect a person to show more than one. Gestures include putting your hand in front of your mouth, touching your nose, rubbing your eyes, touching your ear, scratching your neck, pulling at your collar, or putting your finger or fingers in your mouth.

- d Focus on the highlighted words which describe more parts of the body or gestures and, in pairs, try to work out what they mean.
- e In pairs, read the article again paragraph by paragraph and try to do each of the gestures described. Do you use any of these gestures a lot?

Make your home a safer place!

You probably think that your home is the one place where you are safe. That's what I thought until last week. Now I know our flat is full of accidents waiting to happen. / Next month we're looking after my niece and nephew while their parents go away for a short break. We asked them to come and make sure everything was OK. We got a few surprises. We started in the spare bedroom, where the children will sleep. Everybody knows you shouldn't put children's beds under a window in case a child tries to climb out. Everybody except us! Next was the bathroom. We keep our medicines on a shelf above the washbasin. A terrible idea, as my sister explained. Never leave medicines somewhere children can find them. They might think they are sweets. Finally, the kitchen. This is the most dangerous room in the house. Knives should be kept in drawers which children can't reach, and all cleaning liquids in high cupboards. So we have three weeks to make our house safe. It's not difficult...once you know how.

- Look at the three pictures. What do you think the child's parents should / shouldn't have done? Read the article and check.
- This article was originally written in six short paragraphs. Mark (/) where each new paragraph should begin.

Slimline 'snaps' that help holidaymakers to stretch the truth

A British chain store, Comet, is selling a new digital camera which will take pictures of you – and make you look thinner. The HP Photosmart R727 contains a 'slimcam' function which 'squeezes' the object at the centre of the frame without distorting the background. ¹ And a man can develop, if not a flat stomach, then at least a more respectably proportioned figure for the holiday photograph album.

Comet believes that the photography of self-delusion will become hugely popular in the future. In a culture obsessed with unrealistic ideas of the perfect body, the answer seems to be to show your friends holiday photographs in which you look healthily slim. ²

'Like many women in Britain, I am a size 16 and sometimes my holiday photos are not as flattering as I would like,' said Sally Cranham, 24, a professional singer from Reigate, who tried out the camera. 'The slimming button certainly trimmed off a bit where it counts,' she said. ³

People nowadays are very used to the doctored images of celebrity magazines, and some users of the camera might worry that the truth of their 'slimcam' photography would emerge when friends flicked through the holiday snaps. But Ms Cranham is convinced that her friends won't realize. 'If the camera had made me look like a size 8, then no one would believe it,' she said. ⁴

A spokeswoman for Comet said that it brought technology that usually favoured only the rich and famous within the grasp of ordinary people. ⁵

The psychology of music

1 LISTENING & SPEAKING

a 5.1 Listen to some short pieces of music. How do they make you feel? Would you like to carry on listening?

Taking notes

We often need to take notes when we are listening, for example, to somebody giving a lecture. If you need to take notes when you are listening to someone speaking in English, try to write down key words or phrases because you won't have time to write complete sentences. After the lecture you may want to expand your notes into full sentences.

b 5.2 Listen to John Sloboda, a music psychologist, talking about why we listen to music. Try to complete the notes below by writing key words or phrases. Then with a partner try to remember as much as you can of what he said.

Why do we listen to music?

1 to make us...

e.g.

2 to help us...

e.g.

3 to intensify...

e.g.

c 5.3 Now listen to John explaining how music can affect the way we feel. Complete the notes below. Then compare with a partner and try to remember what he said.

How does music affect our emotions?

Three important human emotions

1 happiness

How we feel affects the way we speak, e.g.

1 happy – speak faster / higher d Talk to a partner.

- 1 On a typical day when and where do you listen to music?
- 2 Do you listen to different kinds of music at different times of day?
- 3 What music would you play...?
 - if you were feeling sad and you wanted to feel more cheerful
 - if you were feeling depressed and you wanted to feel even worse
 - if you were feeling furious about something (and you wanted to feel even angrier)
 - if you were feeling nervous or stressed and wanted to calm down
 - if you wanted to create a romantic atmosphere for a special dinner

2 GRAMMAR gerunds and infinitives

a Check what you know. Put the verbs in brackets in the infinitive (with or without to) or the gerund (-ing form).

- 1 _____ to music can change how we feel. (listen)
- 2 We play sad music when we want _____ even sadder. (feel)
- 3 Film score writers are experts at _____ music _____ an atmosphere. (use, create)
- 4 Most people enjoy _____ music in the car. (play)
- 5 It's difficult _____ when there's loud music playing on the radio. (concentrate)

6 READING

- Do you think What kind of music do you like? is a good question when you are getting to know somebody? Why?
- Read the introduction to the article. Do you agree with the psychologists?
- Read the rest of the article. Which category(ies) do you fit into best?

What's your soundtrack?

Your taste in music can reveal a lot about you...

The question 'What kind of music do you like?' is very revealing. It is the number one topic of conversation among young adults who are getting to know each other, according to psychologists from the universities of Cambridge and Texas. Their research has shown that knowing another person's musical tastes can provide remarkably accurate personality predictions. For most people, music is a very important part of their lives and psychologists believe that their preferences reveal information about their character and their lifestyle. They think that personality clues are conveyed in the music's tempo, rhythm, and lyrics.

A Upbeat and simple music

Fans of 'Top 40' pop, country, and soundtrack music tend to be more conventional and conservative compared with fans of other genres; family and discipline are important life values. They are also typically cheerful, outgoing, and sociable kinds of people who enjoy helping people. In their free time they often enjoy doing or watching sport. They also enjoy watching major Hollywood films, especially comedies. According to the psychologists, 'People who like country and pop try to avoid making their lives unnecessarily complex.'

B Energetic and rhythmic music

Hip hop, funk, rap, soul, dance, and electronic music attracts people who are talkative, extrovert, and romantic and who tend to express their thoughts impulsively. They are the kind of people who love going to parties and for whom friendship and social recognition is very important. They tend to see themselves as physically attractive. When they go to the cinema, they typically enjoy watching action films, science fiction, gangster films, or comedies.

C Complex and reflective music

Fans of classical, jazz, and other 'complex' music typically have above-average intelligence. They tend to be creative and open to new experiences and lovers of classic or foreign films. Regarding lifestyle, fans of this kind of music tend to be politically liberal, are usually quite sophisticated, and often don't like sport. However, compared with other music fans, opera lovers are three times more likely to commit suicide, psychologists say. But don't blame Madame Butterfly – people with dramatic personalities, whose moods go up and down a lot, are attracted to opera, not influenced by it.

D Intense and rebellious music

Fans of alternative, heavy metal, rock music, and gangsta rap tend to be people who enjoy taking risks and having thrilling experiences. They are usually physically active. They are typically independent, curious about the world, and rebellious. They're the kind of people who are likely to enjoy watching action films, fantasy, war, and horror movies. Parents often worry that this kind of music promotes aggressive behaviour in teenagers, but research has found no direct link. In fact, younger fans of gangsta rap or heavy metal are often quieter and shyer than other young people.

- According to the article, what kind of music would these people like best? Write A, B, C, or D.

- Someone who is quite vain.
- Somebody who enjoys doing dangerous sports.
- A person who speaks their mind without thinking.
- Someone who watches subtitled films.
- A person who does voluntary work in the community.
- Somebody who enjoys the simple things in life.
- A person who might have been quiet as a child.
- Someone who is intellectual.

- Read the article again and underline five new words or phrases that you would like to learn, and compare with a partner.
- Think about people you know who like each kind of music. Do you agree with what the article says about their personalities?

 - 2 Do you think it's wrong that doctors who are on 'night call' sleep so little?
 - 3 Do you think it should be illegal to drive when you are too tired?
 - 4 What do you think are the best three SLEEP TIPS?

Sleepy people – the dangers of sleep deprivation

Do this test tonight when you go to bed. Put a plate on the floor next to your bed. Lie down with one hand hanging over the bed holding a spoon above the plate. When you fall asleep, the spoon will fall on the plate and should wake you up. If you don't wake up until the next day, it probably means you are 'sleep deprived'.

We live in a world of tired, sleep deprived people. This is the theory of behavioural biologist, Paul Martin. In his book Counting Sheep, he describes a society which is just too busy to sleep and which does not give sleeping the importance it deserves. We all know the importance of having a healthy diet and doing exercise, but we don't worry enough about sleeping the hours we need. Paul Martin says: 'We might live longer and happier lives if we took our beds as seriously as our running shoes.'

So much to do, so little time

Modern society has invented reasons not to sleep. We are now a 24 / 7 society where shops and services must be available all hours. We spend longer at work than we used to, and more time getting to work. Mobile phones and email allow us to stay in touch round the clock and late-night TV and the Internet tempt us away from our beds. When we need more time for work or pleasure, the easy solution is to sleep less. The average adult sleeps only 6.2 hours a night during the week, whereas research shows that most people need eight or even eight and a half hours' sleep to feel at their best. Nowadays many people have got used to sleeping less than they need and they live in an almost permanent state of 'sleep debt', owing their bodies perhaps 25–30 hours of sleep.

UK Sleep Council survey

Going against nature

Until the invention of electric light in 1879 our daily cycle of sleep used to depend on the hours of daylight. People would get up with the sun and go to bed at nightfall. But nowadays our hours of sleep are mainly determined by our working hours (or our social life) and most people are woken up artificially by an alarm clock. During the day caffeine, the world's most popular drug, helps to keep us awake. 75% of the world's population habitually consume caffeine which, up to a point, masks the symptoms of sleep deprivation.

Sleepy people

What does a chronic lack of sleep do to us? As well as making us irritable and unhappy as people it also reduces our motivation and ability to work. This has serious implications for society in general. Doctors, for example, are often chronically sleep deprived, especially when they are on 'night call' and may get less than three hours' sleep. Lack of sleep can seriously impair their mood, judgement, and ability to take decisions. Our politicians are often 'jet-lagged' after crossing time zones. World summit meetings called to deal with a crisis often result in decisions being taken after marathon sessions when everyone is severely sleep deprived. Human error caused by tiredness contributed to the worst nuclear accident in history at Chernobyl in 1986. Tired engineers, in the early hours of the morning, made a series of mistakes with catastrophic results. On our roads and motorways lack of sleep kills thousands of people every year. Tests show that a tired driver can be just as dangerous as a drunk driver. However, driving when drunk is against the law but driving when exhausted isn't. As Paul Martin says, it is very ironic that we admire people who function on very little sleep instead of criticizing them for being irresponsible. Our world would be a much safer, happier place if everyone, whatever their job, slept eight hours a night.

SLEEP TIPS

- 1 Give sleep a high priority in your life.
- 2 Listen to your body. If you feel tired, you probably need more sleep.
- 3 Pay off your 'sleep debt' by going to bed half an hour earlier for a few weeks.
- 4 Have a regular routine – try to go to bed at roughly the same time every day.
- 5 Take a nap during the day (ideally after lunch). Research has shown that short naps are very effective in restoring our energy levels and mood.
- 6 Make sure your bedroom isn't too hot.
- 7 Don't use your bedroom as an office or for watching TV.

15-year-old girl found asleep on crane

Yesterday a 15-year-old girl was discovered lying on top of a 30-metre-high crane. A passer-by saw her when he was walking past a building site in Dulwich, south-west London, and immediately called the fire brigade. The police and fire brigade arrived at 1.30 in the morning. At first they thought the girl was suicidal but when a fireman climbed up the crane he realized she was drunk. The fireman crawled along the arm of the crane and carefully put a safety harness on the girl. Then the girl used her mobile phone to call her parents, who came quickly to the building site. The rescue took two hours and the girl was brought safely down from the crane on a ladder.

After talking to her parents, the police discovered that the girl had been sleepwalking. She had left her house during the night, and had been able to get into the building site because the security guard was asleep. Her parents said that it wasn't the first time that she had sleepwalked, and that she had left the house on several other occasions.

Breaking news

1 GRAMMAR reporting verbs

- a Read the headline of this news story. What do you think it's about? Then read the story. What do you think of Mr Ivanov?

Man leaves wife at petrol station

A Macedonian man drove six hours across Italy at the start of his holiday before he noticed that he had forgotten something – his wife. Ljubomir Ivanov left her at a petrol station when he stopped to fill up with petrol, and didn't realize his mistake until he got a call from the police on his mobile phone.

'Are you Ljubomir Ivanov?' they asked.

'Yes, I am,' he said. 'What's the matter?'

'Where are you?'

'I'm in Germany.'

'Well your wife is waiting for you at a petrol station near Pesaro in central Italy.'

'I was very tired and not thinking,' Ivanov told reporters later. 'She usually sits in the back seat so I didn't notice that she wasn't there.'

Mr Ivanov immediately drove back to Pesaro to pick up his wife so that they could continue their holiday.

'I'll have to apologize a lot when I see her,' he said.

- b Check what you know. Re-read the conversation between the policeman and Ivanov. Then complete the sentences in reported speech.

- The police asked the man if _____ Ljubomir Ivanov and he said that _____
- Then they asked him _____ and he told _____ that _____ in Germany.
- He later told police that he _____ that his wife wasn't there because she usually sat in the back seat.
- He said that he _____ to apologize a lot when he saw her.

No, you can't have your ball back!

A football team have threatened to sue a neighbour because he refused to give back their balls. Appledore FC have kicked 18 balls over Paul Vose's garden wall, and they are now all locked inside his shed. Gary Ford, the coach of the team, says: 'His garden is eight metres from the back of the goal. Some balls are bound to go over the wall.' But Vose says, 'They should learn to shoot better.'

- sue take somebody to court, usually to get money from them shed a small building in a garden where people keep e.g. tools bound to certain to, very likely to shoot kick a ball towards the goal

Locked out of her life

When Andy Barker from Huddersfield forgot his wife's birthday for the third year running she decided she had had enough and locked him out of the house. Sue Barker had reminded her husband several times to book a table for a romantic meal, and she was hoping for a nice present too. Andy promised not to forget, but when the day came, it went right out of his mind. He was working late and when he got home the door was locked and a suitcase with his things in it was on the doorstep. Since then Andy has been living in a tent in the garden. He says, 'I'm hoping that if I stay here for a few days, she will forgive me.'

Back to school for red-faced council

Local council officials have apologized for misspelling the word 'grammar' on a new road sign outside a school in Stockton in north-east England. Council workers had to come back to take down the sign, which should have said 'Grammar School Road.' Children at the school (aged between four and eleven) immediately noticed that the sign said 'Grammer School' and told their teacher. A spokesman for Stockton council blamed the manufacturers for making the mistake. 'Our order for the sign was correct, but the manufacturers got it wrong. They have offered to make us a new sign free of charge.' Teacher, Mrs Taylor said: 'If they want someone to check the spelling, I'm sure the children can help!'

Builder mistaken for jumper

A German builder is expecting a big bill after emergency services mistook him for a potential suicide jumper. When police saw the man on the roof of a five-floor building, they closed off a busy main road and called the fire brigade. They then asked negotiators to talk to Dieter Holmblutter. The negotiators tried to convince him not to jump by shouting to him. But the builder was so busy talking on the phone to his girlfriend that he didn't realize what was happening below, until she asked him what the sirens were for. A police spokesman said that Dieter would be given a bill for wasting police time.

sirens the noise made by a police car, fire engine, etc.

4 READING & LISTENING

- a With a partner discuss what you think would be the good side and bad side of being a theatre critic and a sports writer.
- b Now read the articles by two journalists who write for The Times newspaper and see if your ideas are there.

Irving Wardle, theatre critic

The positive side of the job is ¹_____ getting to see a lot of plays and shows which I love. But the really great thing about being a theatre critic is that, as theatre is an ongoing thing, something that's going to be repeated night after night for some time, there's also the feeling that you may have a ²_____ impact on the work. If the producer or the actors read what you've written and agree with you, they might actually change something and improve the performance. That's not something that film or book critics can do. Some critics also like making friends with the stars and all that – but personally I don't.

For me the worst part of the job is all the travelling. Getting there on time, parking, getting back to the office to write for a nightly deadline. That all gets really stressful. Another awful thing is that editors ³_____ bits from your review without you knowing. You learn as a critic that if you've got anything ⁴_____, say it straight away because it might not get printed. I once wrote a review of a play by Julian Mitchell called Another Country. I didn't like it much, but there was a new young actor who I thought was great, called Kenneth Branagh. That was in the last paragraph and it got cut, so it looked as if I'd never ⁵_____ this great new talent.

c Read the two articles again. Choose the best option a, b, or c.

- | | | |
|-----------------------|------------------------|--------------------|
| 1 a apparently | b gradually | c obviously |
| 2 a positive | b harmful | c negative |
| 3 a change | b add | c cut |
| 4 a to complain about | b that isn't important | c worth saying |
| 5 a noticed | b spoken to | c criticized |
| 6 a permission | b opportunity | c wish |
| 7 a more exciting | b harder | c easier |
| 8 a holidays | b routine | c unpredictability |
| 9 a drop | b throw | c lose |
| 10 a monotonous | b exciting | c frightening |

Pat Gibson, sports journalist

The plus sides – I must have seen some of the most spectacular moments in cricket and football over the past forty years. I've also had the ⁶ _____ to travel to places I wouldn't have seen otherwise, like India, Australia, New Zealand, the Caribbean, South Africa and Fiji. There are much ⁷ _____ ways to make a living and it's great to get away from Britain as much as you can during the winter.

One of the main downsides is the ⁸ _____. You don't work regular hours – you can spend a couple of days not working, but you never relax because you're waiting for the phone to ring. And then, when a story breaks – it might be on your day off, it might be in the middle of the night – you just have to ⁹ _____ everything and go. And you never know what time you're going to be home. Another thing is the constant travelling. It's been fantastic visiting the Taj Mahal or spending Christmas Day on the beach in Australia, but it does get lonely and it can also be very ¹⁰ _____. I've spent a large proportion of the last forty years driving up and down the motorways of Britain, which I can assure you isn't much fun.

d You're going to listen to Alice, a freelance restaurant critic, and Tim, a war reporter, talking about the good and bad sides of their jobs. Before you listen, predict some of the things they might say.

e 5.15 5.16 Listen and check. Then listen again and mark the sentences T (true) or F (false). Correct the false sentences.

The restaurant critic

- 1 She sometimes reviews restaurants in other countries.
- 2 She never orders the most expensive things on the menu.
- 3 She often misses having company when she's eating out.
- 4 She used to be slimmer than she is now.
- 5 She goes back to restaurants she has criticized.
- 6 She never feels like eating out at weekends.

The war reporter

- 1 Most war reporters would prefer regular hours.
- 2 They choose the job partly because it's dangerous.
- 3 The job can be quite lonely.
- 4 He has problems getting used to normal life when he comes home.
- 5 Being a war reporter is more dangerous than it used to be.
- 6 One of his best friends was kidnapped last year.

f From what you've read and heard, which person's job would you most like to have? Which one would you least like to have?

5 SPEAKING

a You are going to debate the following topic in small groups.

Celebrities have to accept that the media publishes stories about their private lives. That is the price they pay for being rich and famous.

- Divide into groups of four, two As and two Bs.
- The As are going to defend the right of newspapers to publish stories about famous people's private lives.
- The Bs are going to defend the celebrities' right to keep their private lives private.
- Prepare at least four arguments, and give examples.

b Hold the debate. The As begin, each making two of their points. The Bs take notes. Then the Bs speak and the As take notes.

c Now, each side try to argue against the points made by the other side.

The man who has become the village 'alarm clock'

AS BIRDS AWAKEN the early risers at ¹ _____ on the farm, one person is already up; in fact, he hasn't even been to bed. Sixty-four-year-old Thai Ngoc, from central Quang Nam province in Vietnam, claims that he has not slept for 33 years!

'My insomnia started many years ago after I got a fever. I have tried sleeping pills and Vietnamese traditional medicine but ² _____ helps, not even to get me to sleep for a few minutes,' said Ngoc. But amazingly, despite 11,700 consecutive sleepless nights since then, he has never once been ³ _____. 'Fortunately, the insomnia doesn't seem to have had a negative impact on my health. I still feel healthy and can farm normally like other men. I even carry two 50kg bags of fertilizer for 4km every day.' ⁴ _____ his wife, when Ngoc went for a medical check-up recently, his doctor said he was in perfect health except for a minor decline in liver function.

Ngoc lives with his six children on his farm at the foot of a mountain. He spends the day farming and ⁵ _____ his pigs and chickens, and at night he often does extra farm work or guards his farm to prevent theft. His neighbour Vu said that Ngoc volunteered to help beat a drum during the night and guard the house for the relatives of the dead during funeral ceremonies ⁶ _____ they could take a nap. Vu also said that when the villagers were planting sugar cane, several people asked Ngoc to be their 'alarm clock' and to wake them up early in the morning to go to work as he was up anyway.

Phan Ngoc Ha, director of the Hoa Khanh Mental Hospital in Danang, said that a chronic lack of ⁷ _____ often causes anorexia, lethargy, and irritability. But, in special cases, some extreme insomniacs can still live and work normally, ⁸ _____ this is a very small minority. Thai Ngoc is obviously one of them.

Speaking to the world

One small word, one big difference in meaning

1 READING

- a What do you know about the first moon landing?
Answer the questions with a partner.

- Who was the first man to set foot on the moon?
a Yuri Gagarin b Buzz Aldrin c Neil Armstrong
- When did he land on the moon?
a In 1959. b In 1969. c In 1979.
- What was the first thing he said when he landed?
a 'Wow! It's so big!'
b 'I'm floating in a most peculiar way.'
c 'That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.'

- b Read the article and check. What controversy has there been since then about what Neil Armstrong actually said? Why is the missing 'a' so important?

- c Read the article again. Then, in pairs, say why the following names and numbers are mentioned.

20th July 1969	First Man
6 hours and 40 minutes	James Hansen
500 million	Peter Shann Ford
Buzz Aldrin

- d Cover the article and try to complete the sentences making words from the words in bold. What do they mean?

- Armstrong made the first human footprint on the lunar surface. foot
- His first words were 'That's one small step for man, one giant leap for _____.' man
- It was the perfect quote for such a _____ occasion. moment
- 'One small step for a man' would have made it a more _____ sentence. mean
- They were possibly the most _____ words in history. memory
- Armstrong said the 'a' so quickly that it was _____ on the recording. audio

- e 6.1 Listen to the original recording of Armstrong speaking. Can you hear the 'a'?

AS NEIL ARMSTRONG became the first man to walk on the Moon, a global audience of 500 million people were watching and listening. 'That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind,' they heard him say as he dropped from the ladder of his spacecraft to make the first human footprint on the lunar surface. It was the perfect quote for such a momentous occasion. But from the moment he said it, people have argued about whether the NASA astronaut got his lines wrong.

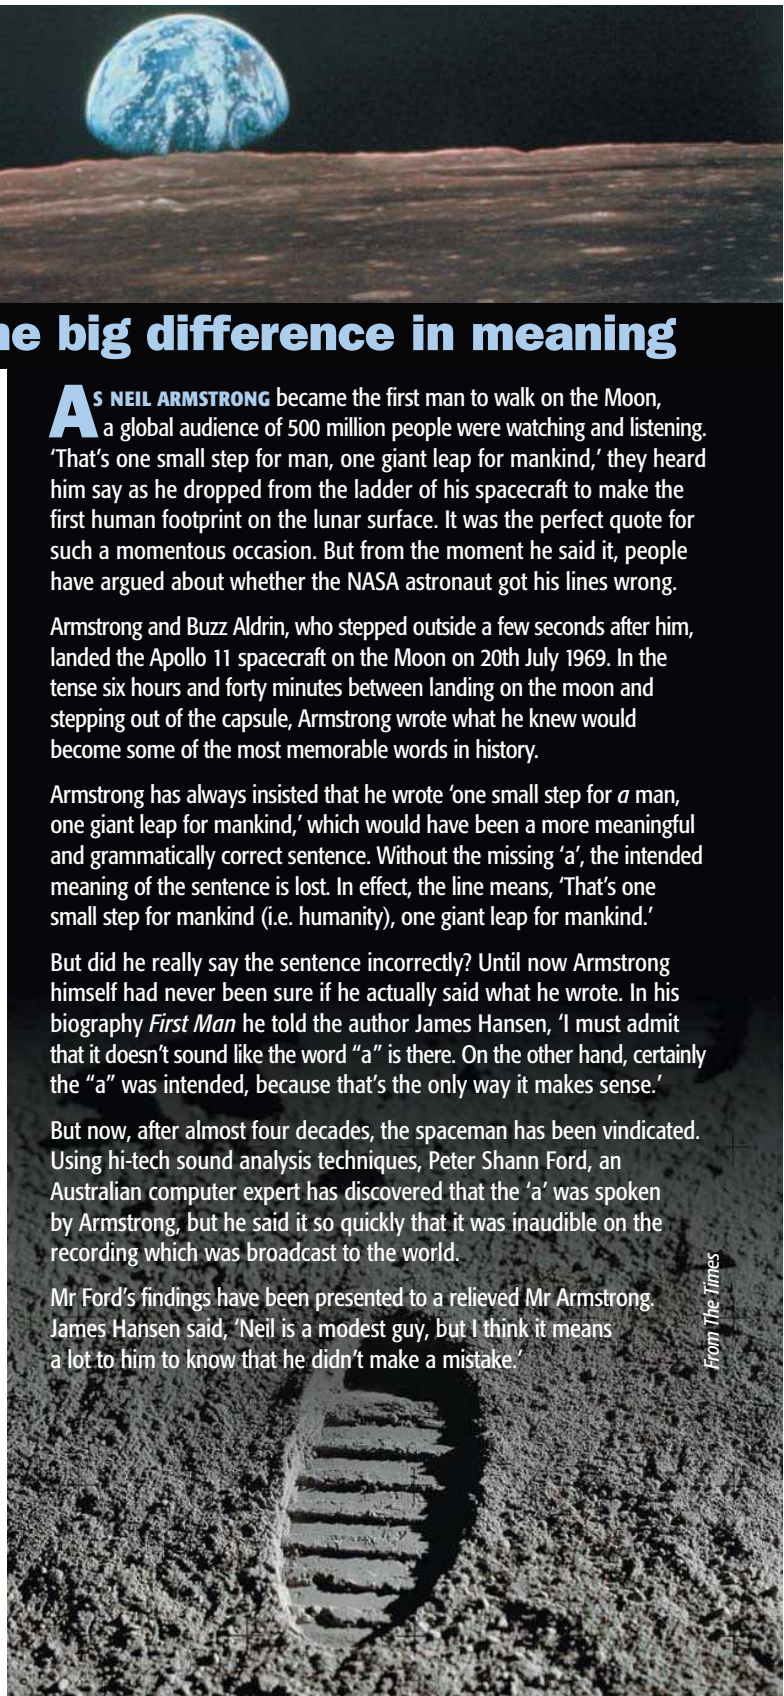

Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin, who stepped outside a few seconds after him, landed the Apollo 11 spacecraft on the Moon on 20th July 1969. In the tense six hours and forty minutes between landing on the moon and stepping out of the capsule, Armstrong wrote what he knew would become some of the most memorable words in history.

Armstrong has always insisted that he wrote 'one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind,' which would have been a more meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. Without the missing 'a', the intended meaning of the sentence is lost. In effect, the line means, 'That's one small step for mankind (i.e. humanity), one giant leap for mankind.'

But did he really say the sentence incorrectly? Until now Armstrong himself had never been sure if he actually said what he wrote. In his biography First Man he told the author James Hansen, 'I must admit that it doesn't sound like the word "a" is there. On the other hand, certainly the "a" was intended, because that's the only way it makes sense.'

But now, after almost four decades, the spaceman has been vindicated. Using hi-tech sound analysis techniques, Peter Shann Ford, an Australian computer expert has discovered that the 'a' was spoken by Armstrong, but he said it so quickly that it was inaudible on the recording which was broadcast to the world.

Mr Ford's findings have been presented to a relieved Mr Armstrong. James Hansen said, 'Neil is a modest guy, but I think it means a lot to him to know that he didn't make a mistake.'

King Edward VIII (1894–1972) was the only British king ever to abdicate. Edward had been king for only eleven months, when he announced his decision to give up the throne in order to marry an American divorcee, Wallis Simpson. The following is an extract from his abdication speech to the British nation, made in December 1936.

At long last I am able to say ¹ _____ few words of my own. I have never wanted to withhold anything, but until now it has not been constitutionally possible for me to speak. But you must believe me when I tell you that I have found it impossible to carry ² _____ heavy burden of ³ _____ responsibility, and to discharge my duties as King as I would wish to do, without ⁴ _____ help and support of ⁵ _____ woman I love.

abdicate give up the position of being king or queen at long last finally, in the end withhold keep back, not say burden sth which is carried with difficulty, an obligation discharge a duty do what you have to do

- d 6.2 Now listen to the extracts spoken by the people themselves. Check your answers. Which of the three do you think was the best public speaker?

3 PRONUNCIATION sentence stress

- a 6.3 Dictation. Listen and write down six sentences.
- b Listen again and underline the stressed words. What is the vowel sound in a, an, and the in 1–5? Why is the pronounced differently in number 6?
- c Practise saying the sentences from a. Try to pronounce the weak forms correctly.

4 6.4 SONG Space oddity

5 LISTENING

- a Have you ever had to make a speech or give a talk or presentation in front of a lot of people? When? Where? How did you feel? Was it a success?
- b Read part of an article about presentation disasters. Which tip from Ten top tips below should the speaker have remembered?

PRESENTATION DISASTERS!

However bad you think your presentation has been, take some comfort from the fact that at least it probably wasn't as bad as these true stories...

A FEW YEARS AGO I had to give a presentation to the Belgian management team of an international IT company. Not wishing to be the typical 'Brit' presenting in English, I had carefully prepared my presentation in French. I intended it as a surprise so I didn't say anything beforehand. After speaking in French for 45 minutes I was halfway through my presentation and we had a break for coffee. At this point the manager of the company came up to me asked me if I would change to speaking in English. 'Is my French that bad?' I said. 'No,' he replied, 'it's just that we are all from the Dutch-speaking part of Belgium.'

Ten top tips for speaking in public

- 1 Don't make your presentation too long.
- 2 Don't have more than four or five main points.
- 3 Even if something distracting happens try not to lose your concentration.
- 4 Be careful about telling jokes – they may not be appropriate.
- 5 Always be punctual: start on time and try to finish on time.
- 6 Get to know as much as possible about your audience beforehand.
- 7 Try not to repeat yourself too much.
- 8 Be careful not to speak too fast.
- 9 Practise your presentation beforehand.
- 10 Make sure the equipment you need is working properly before you start.

- c You're going to hear five other people talking about a disastrous presentation. Before you listen, look at pictures A–E. What do you think the problem was?

- d 6.5 Listen and number the pictures in the correct order. Did you guess correctly?
- e Listen again and write 1–5 in the boxes. Which speaker...?
- A couldn't understand why nobody found his / her talk amusing
- B felt very relaxed before his / her presentation
- C did the last part of his / her talk very quickly
- D made the problem he / she had worse
- E didn't find out he / she had a problem until the end of the talk
- f Talk to a partner.
- 1 Would any of the 'Ten top tips' have helped some of the speakers?
 - 2 Which speaker do you think was the most embarrassed?
 - 3 Have you ever been to a talk or presentation where something went badly wrong?

6 VOCABULARY collocation: word pairs

Some pairs of words in English which go together always come in a certain order, for example, we always say 'Ladies and Gentlemen' and 'right or wrong' NOT gentlemen and ladies, wrong or right.

- a Read the information in the box. How do you say 'Ladies and Gentlemen' and 'right or wrong' in your language? Is the order the same?
- b Take one word from A and match it with another from B. Then decide which word comes first. They are all joined with and.

A 	B
---	---

- c Look at some common word pairs joined with or. What is the second word?
- right or _____ now or _____ more or _____ sooner or _____ all or _____ once or _____
- d 6.6 Listen and check your answers to b and c, and notice how the phrases are linked and how and and or are pronounced. Practise saying them.
- e Match the word pair idioms with their meanings.

- 1 I'm sick and tired of hearing you complain.
- 2 I didn't buy much, just a few bits and pieces.
- 3 I've been having headaches now and again.
- 4 He's unemployed and down and out.
- 5 Every relationship needs a bit of give and take.
- 6 We've had our ups and downs, but now we get on really well.
- 7 The army were called in to restore law and order.
- 8 Despite flying through a storm we arrived safe and sound.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------|
| A problems | E compromise |
| B a situation in which the law is obeyed | F occasionally |
| C fed up | G small things |
| D without problem or injury | H without a home or money |

- f Complete the sentences with a word pair from b, c, or e.
- 1 He visits us _____, perhaps twice a year.
 - 2 It's your last chance I'm afraid. It's _____.
 - 3 After lots of adventures she arrived home _____.
 - 4 Please stop making so much noise. I need a bit of _____.
 - 5 _____ he'll realize that she's not the woman for him.
 - 6 After the riots the government sent soldiers in to try to establish _____.
 - 7 She's _____ of her husband. She wants to leave him.
 - 8 It was an amazing storm. There was lots of _____.

7 SPEAKING

- a 6.7 When people give a talk, they usually divide what they say into small chunks, with a brief pause between each chunk. Listen to the beginning of a talk and mark (/) the pauses.

Good afternoon everyone / and thank you for coming. I'm going to talk to you today about one of my hobbies, collecting comics. Since I was a child I've been mad about comics and comic books. I started reading Tintin and Asterix when I was seven or eight. Later when I was a teenager some friends at school introduced me to Manga which are Japanese comics. I've been collecting them now for about five years and I'm also learning to draw them.

- b Listen again and underline the stressed words. Practise reading the extract.
- c You are going to give a short presentation to other students. You can choose what to talk about, for example:

- a hobby you have or a sport you play
- something you really love doing
- an interesting person in your family
- a famous person you admire
- the good and bad side of your job

Decide what you are going to talk about and make a plan of what you want to say.

GET IT RIGHT making a presentation

Read through the tips in Presentation disasters! again to help you to prepare your presentation and to give it successfully. When you give your presentation, don't speak too quickly. Remember to pause and take a breath from time to time. This will help the audience to follow what you are saying.

- d In groups, take turns to give your presentation. While they are listening, the other students should write down at least one question to ask the speaker after the presentation is over. Then have a short question and answer session.

1 READING & SPEAKING

- a Look at the photos and read the quote. Do you know who the Amish are? What do you think happens in the programme?
- b Read a preview of the series and find out. Discuss the questions with a partner.
- 1 What is Rumspringa? Do you think it is a good idea?
 - 2 What do you think will be the biggest culture shock for the Amish when they go to Los Angeles?
 - 3 What do you think the majority of the five young Amish will choose to do?

AMISH IN THE CITY

'Pleasantly entertaining... The Amish kids' innocence and sense of wonder about the new world they're seeing makes this series more moving than any reality show I've ever seen before.'

PREVIEW – Tonight's TV

Los Angeles, home to many of the world's most famous movie stars, is known as the entertainment capital of the world – but it is completely unknown to one group of people – the Amish. For 300 years this fascinating community has lived in isolation, working together to grow their own food, make their own clothes, and build their own communities. They reject conveniences like electricity, telephones, and cars, and focus on hard work, Christian worship, and family.

However, once Amish people reach their late teens, they are allowed to explore modern society and are given the chance to experience the outside world for the first time. This period is known as Rumspringa, a time when Amish young people must decide whether to commit to the strict rules of their faith, or to leave behind the Amish lifestyle and their family forever. Amish teenagers can spend their Rumspringa anywhere, but most of them choose to stay near their homes, venturing only a few miles from their small communities.

But now five of them have chosen to spend their Rumspringa in a way no one has before – living with six city kids in Los Angeles, who have no idea that they will be sharing a house with the Amish. For ten weeks they will explore everything the modern world has to offer, with one thing in mind. Will they return to the simple life they've always lived, or will they choose to remain 'Amish in the City'?

- c Now read a review of the programme. Then without looking back at the text, mark the sentences below T (true), or F (false), and say why the F ones are false.
- 1 The Amish kids aren't used to seeing such tall buildings.
 - 2 They thought the parking meters were rather funny.
 - 3 The Amish are very good at painting.
 - 4 Mose thinks that 'Reggae' is the name of a singer.
 - 5 The reviewer thinks that the Amish learned a lot from the city kids.
 - 6 Nick felt sorry for the beggar.
 - 7 Most adolescents leave the Amish community after Rumspringa.
 - 8 Mose is not quite sure what he's going to do next.
 - 9 Miriam is planning to travel.
 - 10 The reviewer thinks the programme didn't end in a very positive way.
- d Answer the questions.
- 1 Do you think that this kind of television programme is a good idea? Why (not)?
 - 2 Do you think Rumspringa really gives Amish teenagers freedom of choice? Why (not)?
 - 3 Do you think that the fact that only one of the Amish went back is a happy ending or a sad ending?

REVIEW – Last night's TV

In the first episode, the five young Amish, three boys (Mose, Jonas, and Randy) and two girls (Miriam and Ruth) are amazed by the height of the skyscrapers, the noise of the traffic in Los Angeles and the number of cars on the five-lane 'freeways'. They are amused by parking meters – a totally new concept for them – and they love riding in elevators. Even a trip to a grocery store is an adventure. Mose said, 'I'm a farmer, but there are so many vegetables here that I've never seen before.'

Ruth is entranced by a visit to an art gallery as she has never seen art before. 'I didn't know you could make something from boards with paint on them that would look so nice,' she explains. 'The Amish don't do art at school because they feel it isn't important.' Ruth is also as excited as a little child when, for the first time in her life, she sees the ocean.

The Amish are not allowed to use CD players or iPods, and the city kids introduce them to pop music. City girl Megan asks if any of the Amish have heard any reggae at all. 'Reggae?' replies Amish boy Mose, 'I've never heard of him.' As the city kids burst out laughing, he adds, 'But he sounds interesting.'

But as the programme progresses, slowly but surely you feel that the people who are really learning something are the city kids. One evening when they are eating at a pavement café in a rather run-down neighbourhood, a beggar approaches them and asks them for money. City boy Nick ignores him, but Amish girl Miriam offers him a piece of her chicken. 'The Amish wouldn't let anyone be homeless,' she says. 'It just wouldn't happen.'

Of course the big question is, what happens at the end – what do the young Amish decide to do? Normally after Rumspringa the vast majority of adolescents choose to stay in the Amish community. However, in the case of Amish in the City, the majority decide, at least temporarily, not to go back to the Amish. Mose decides that the big city life is not for him, but that he probably won't go back to the Amish either. Jonas and Randy both want to go to college and Miriam wants to see more of the world. Of the five of them, only Ruth decides to go back to the Amish lifestyle. A sad ending or a happy ending? It depends on your point of view.

2 VOCABULARY towns and cities

- a Look at the highlighted words and phrases. Explain in your own words what they mean. Do you have them where you live?
- b  p.155 Vocabulary Bank Towns and cities.
- c Make nouns from the bold words to complete the sentences.

Typical endings for making a noun from a verb are:

5 LISTENING

a 6.9 You are going to hear to part of a radio programme where Sebastian Hope, a travel writer, talks about London. Listen and match the questions with the photos.

- 1 What advice would you give to someone visiting London for the first time?
- 2 What's the one thing you would say someone visiting London should do or see?
- 3 What's the best place to have your photo taken?
- 4 What's your favourite landmark?
- 5 What's the best place to watch the sunset?
- 6 What's the best place to be at dawn?
- 7 What would be a good thing to do on a scorching hot day?
- 8 What's a good thing to do which is absolutely free?
- 9 What do you think is the most romantic place in London?

b Listen again and answer the questions.

- 1 What does he mean when he says 'get to know the village you are staying in'?
- 2 What is his recommendation for an indoor activity that visitors to London should do?
- 3 What building should you have as a background for a photo?
- 4 What's special for him about St Paul's Cathedral?
- 5 Where else can you go to watch the sunset apart from the Trafalgar Hotel roof garden?
- 6 Why does he like London at dawn?
- 7 Why is the London Aquarium a good place to go on a very hot day?
- 8 Why does he enjoy walking in Hyde Park?
- 9 What is special about the bird called the nightingale? Where can you hear it sing?

c 6.10 Now listen again to five extracts from the interview. Try to write in the missing words.

- 1 When you see what the people of ancient times were capable of, it makes you feel _____ about the achievements of our own age.
- 2 It's so _____ that when you catch your first sight of it it's always a thrill.
- 3 But I'm _____ to say I have never been on it.
- 4 I love _____ on the pavement outside for a salmon and cream cheese bagel in the early morning.
- 5 I have memories of _____ the squirrels there.

d Which of the places he mentions would you most like to see? How would you answer the same questions about a city or town that you know well?

6 SPEAKING & WRITING

- a Read the questions in Help me, I'm a tourist! and decide how you would answer them about your town if you were asked by a tourist.
- b Work with another student. A is a tourist and B is a local person. A asks B the questions from sections 1–3. B tries to answer A's questions as fully as possible. A should ask for as much information as possible. Swap roles for sections 4–6.

Help me, I'm a tourist!

1 Safety

Is crime a problem in the city? What should I be careful of?
Are there any areas of the city I should avoid... a during the day?
b at night?
Can I trust the police if I have a problem?

2 Getting around

What's the best way to get around the city?
Is it OK to take taxis? Are there many taxi ranks?
Can I hire a bicycle? Is it a good city for cycling?
Are there any landmarks that will help me to know where I am?

3 Sightseeing

If I'm short of time, what three sights should I see?
What two galleries or museums should I visit? Do they charge for admission?
Where should I go to get the real atmosphere of the city a by day? or b by night?

4 Local customs

Are there any dress rules if I go into a place of worship?
Are there any topics of conversation I should avoid if I talk to local people?
How much should I tip...?
a waiters
b taxi drivers

5 Shopping

What would be a good souvenir to take back with me?
What's the best market to visit?
Is there anywhere where I should haggle?

6 Food and drink

Is the local tap water drinkable?
Is there any food or drink I must try?
Is there any food or drink I should avoid or be careful with?

- c Now go through the questions again together. Was there anything your partner said that you disagree with?

- d Imagine that your school is going to produce a new website giving information about your country for tourists. Write a short description of your city for the website. You could use some of the tips you talked about in b.

MINI GRAMMAR have something done

Where's the best place to have your photo taken?

Use have (something) done when you ask or pay another person to do something for you.

Compare:

I had my photo taken on Westminster Bridge = I asked someone to take my photo.

Have is the main verb in these sentences so it changes according to the tense.

I'm going to have my hair cut tomorrow.

I had my car repaired after the accident.

⚠ You can also use get instead of have.

I'm going to get my hair cut tomorrow.

Complete the sentences with the right form of have and the past participle of a verb from the list.

build clean cut paint renew repair service

- We _____ our flat _____ next month.
- A Your hair looks fantastic!
B Thanks. I _____ it _____ yesterday.
- My coat is really dirty. I need to _____ it _____.
- You should _____ your car _____ every 10,000 kilometres.
- A Our fridge is broken.
B Are you going to buy a new one or _____ it _____?
- I'll need to _____ my passport _____ before my next holiday.
- Our neighbour is _____ a new garage _____ at the moment.

Eureka!

1 LISTENING & SPEAKING

a Read the first paragraph of an article about creative thinking. Do the experiment with a partner.

Eureka! Thinking outside the bath...

Master magician Harry Houdini once amazed the world by making an elephant vanish. You are now going to do the same thing.

LOOK AT THE PICTURE of Houdini's head and an elephant. Now close your left eye and hold the book up at arm's length. Now slowly bring the book up towards your face, but make sure that you keep looking at Houdini's head with your right eye. At some point, usually when the book is about 20 cm from your face, the elephant will suddenly disappear. This simple illusion works because each of our eyes has a 'blind spot', a small area inside the eye which cannot see.

According to Dr Richard Wiseman, professor of psychology at the University of Hertfordshire, most people have psychological 'blind spots' which cause us to miss seeing the obvious, simple solution to a problem. The few people who do not have these psychological blind spots are the people like the Greek mathematician Archimedes, who was having a bath when he suddenly realized that the volume of an object could be calculated by the amount of water it displaced and cried 'Eureka' ('I have found it'), or the English scientist Isaac Newton, who developed the notion of gravity after seeing an apple fall. Dr Wiseman has studied people who frequently experience this kind of 'eureka moment' and thinks that the difference between them and ordinary people is that they think in a different way, what he calls 'creative thinking'.

From The Times

b Now look at the title of the lesson. Who said it, and why? Read the second paragraph and check your answer. What kind of people have 'Eureka moments'? Why don't most people have them?

c 6.11 You are going to listen to a radio programme about creative thinking. First look at the photo. What do you think is happening? Then listen to the first part of the programme and answer the questions.

- 1 Why don't most people think creatively?
- 2 What was the gorilla experiment?
- 3 What happened when Dr Wiseman tried the experiment on a group of top scientists?

3 READING

- a You are going to find out about how scientists throughout history have suffered to make their discoveries. Read the extracts and label the illustrations A–D. How many of the scientists actually died as a result of their research?

Suffering for science

Throughout history scientists have risked their health and their lives in their search for the truth...

A Sir Isaac Newton, the seventeenth century scientist, was a genius, but that didn't stop him from doing some pretty stupid things. In his laboratory in Cambridge he often did the most bizarre experiments. Once, while investigating how lenses transmit light, he inserted a long needle into his eye, pushed it to the back, and then moved it around just to see what would happen. Miraculously, nothing long-lasting did. On another occasion he stared at the sun for as long as he could bear, to discover what effect this would have on his vision. Again he escaped suffering permanent damage, though he had to spend some days in a darkened room before his eyes recovered.

B In the 1750s the Swedish chemist Karl Scheele was the first person to find a way to manufacture phosphorus. He in fact discovered eight more elements including chlorine, though he didn't get the credit for any of them. He was a brilliant scientist, but his one failing was a curious insistence on tasting a little of every substance he worked with, including mercury and cyanide. This risky practice finally caught up with him, and in 1786 he was found dead in his laboratory surrounded by a large number of toxic chemicals, any of which might have been responsible for his death.

C In the early 1900s when Pierre and Marie Curie discovered radiation, nobody realized what a dangerous and deadly phenomenon it was – in fact most people thought that it was beneficial. There was even a hotel in New York which, in the 1920's, advertised 'the therapeutic effect of its radioactive waters'. Both Pierre and Marie Curie experienced radiation sickness and Marie Curie died of leukaemia in 1934. Even now, all her papers from the 1890s, even her cookbooks, are too dangerous to touch. Her laboratory books are kept in special lead boxes and people who want to see them have to wear protective clothing. Marie's husband Pierre, however, did not die from radiation – he was run over by a carriage while crossing the street in Paris.

D Eugene Shoemaker was a respected geologist. He spent a large part of his life investigating craters on the moon, and how they were formed, and later did research into the comets of the planet Jupiter. In 1997 he and his wife were in the Australian desert where they went every year to search for places where comets might have hit the earth. While driving in the Tanami desert, normally one of the emptiest places in the world, another vehicle crashed into them and Shoemaker was killed instantly. Some of his ashes were sent to the moon aboard the Lunar Prospector spacecraft and scattered there – he is the only person who has had this honour.

Eating out in London

This report describes various options for students who want to eat out while staying in London.

1 _____

Fast food – The majority of fast food restaurants are clean and the service is fast, but they are often noisy and crowded, and of course the food is the same all over the world.

World food – London has restaurants offering food from many parts of the world, for example India, Thailand, and China. These are often relatively inexpensive and have good – quality food and a nice atmosphere.

2 When you don't mind spending a bit more _____

Gastropubs – These are pubs which serve high-quality food and tend to be slightly cheaper than the majority of mid-range restaurants. Generally speaking, the food is well cooked and some have very imaginative menus.

Italian restaurants – You can normally get a good pasta dish or a pizza and a salad in most Italian restaurants without spending too much.

3 _____

There are many options if you want to try somewhere special, but be aware that this nearly always means spending a lot of money. French restaurants are often quite expensive, and so are those run by celebrity chefs.

4 _____

- Even if you have a limited budget, take advantage of the different restaurants that London has to offer.
- Don't make your meal cost more by ordering expensive drinks.
- If you really want to go to a particular restaurant, make sure you book in advance, especially on a Friday or Saturday night.
- Be careful – many restaurants in London close early on Sunday evenings.

- Read the report on restaurants and think of a suitable heading for paragraphs 1, 3, and 4.
- Find synonyms in the report for the expressions in Useful language.

Loud and clear: the message sent by your voice

I am sitting in an office in Covent Garden having my voice recorded.

¹ The reason? I am about to have my voice analysed, and expressing these feelings provides a balanced view of the voice's emotional content.

² A badly delivered speech can have a devastating impact on the public image of a politician, and for chief executives too an unconvincing speech can damage the company's standing with employees, customers, or investors.

When I have finished, the man who has been listening to me, Alastair Grant of presentation analysts Grant Pearson Brown, sends the recording to Branka Zei, a Swiss psychologist who specializes in linguistics. Using software, Ms Zei measures the recording against an 'ideal' voice, whose pitch, articulation, and fluency, among other things, are derived by analysing the voices of hundreds of good speakers. ³

So, what does my analysis show? The good news is that my median pitch is 158.25Hz compared with the standard reference for a woman of 200Hz – another way of saying that my voice is quite deep. 'Deeper voices carry more authority than high-pitched voices,' says Mr Grant. My loudness level and range are perfect. ⁴ Also my articulation is not clear enough, because I sometimes have difficulty pronouncing the letter 'r'. Lastly, I use 'disfluencies', which means that I overuse terms such as 'um' and 'er'. The best news, however, is that my 'vocal indicators' point to a balanced personality, with no clear tendency towards introversion or extroversion.

If Mr Grant were to work with me further, he would get me to read from a script and pause after each phrase. ⁵ 'If people are comfortable with silence, then they don't have to put in those filler words.' To counteract my problem of sounding monotonous he would ask me to imagine myself telling a story to a child, as this very naturally makes people vary their pitch.

c In pairs, talk about some of these:

- something in the news recently that shocked you
- a film you found really disappointing
- something that frustrates you about learning English
- the kind of weather that makes you feel depressed
- an embarrassing mistake you once made
- an area of your town / city which is scary at night

4 READING

- a Look at the photos of the actress Paula Wilcox as she is today, and in the TV series which made her famous, Man about the house. How old do you think she is in each photo? How has she changed?
- b Read a magazine article where Paula talks about things she regrets. In which paragraph does she talk about...?
- A a time when she misjudged other people
 B a time when she didn't want to seem different from other people
 C her insecurity about her appearance
 D how she regrets not taking more risks
 E situations when she shouldn't have talked so much F something she could have been better at
- c Read the article again carefully. Find words or phrases which mean:
- 1 _____ it makes me remember (1)
 2 _____ very beautiful (1)
 3 _____ a missed opportunity (1)
 4 _____ a lot of (2)
 5 _____ amusing in a clever way (3)
 6 _____ the most amusing and interesting person (3)
 7 _____ kind, soft (4)
 8 _____ something that is new or difficult, but stimulating (6)
- d Use your own words to summarize the advice she gives in each paragraph to younger people. What do you think of her advice?

5 GRAMMAR wish + past perfect

- a Underline the seven sentences in the article with wish. What tense is the verb after wish? Are they wishes about the present, the past, or the future?
- b  p.144 Grammar Bank 7A. Read the rules for wish + past perfect. Do exercise b.
- c What regrets might these people have? Make sentences with I wish... + past perfect.
- John has always been extravagant and never has much money in the bank. Now he really wants to buy an expensive car, but he can't afford it.
 - Annie has just been to the hairdresser's. She isn't very happy with her new look.
 - Rafael was offered a job in San Francisco but didn't take it, because he didn't think his English was good enough.
 - Mark got really angry with his girlfriend last night. They had an argument and she left him.

I wish I'd saved some of my salary. I wish I hadn't spent so much money on that holiday...

Regrets, I've had a few...

Actress Paula Wilcox, now in her fifties, was best known for her role in the TV series Man about the house, which she starred in when she was only 19. Here she talks about things she wishes she had known then...

Now when I look in the mirror and think, 'Oh dear, I'm getting older,' it reminds me that I used to do the same thing when I was 19 and 20. I used to look at myself and think I looked awful. I wish I'd known what I was going to look like thirty years later, because then I might have realized how gorgeous I was then. I looked great but I didn't appreciate it – what a waste!

I now understand that it's OK to be successful. When I was 19 I was starring on TV and making loads of money, but most of my friends were university students. I felt embarrassed, and used to walk around with my hands in front of my face so as not to be recognized. I wish I'd known that it's possible to enjoy the good things about fame, and that you can keep your friendships in spite of it.

I wish I had learned sooner how to listen to people properly. I used to think I had to be intelligent and witty in social situations. If I'd known how much people appreciate being listened to, I wouldn't have tried so hard to be the life and soul of the party.

Life has taught me that sometimes when people behave badly to you it is because of some unhappiness that they are carrying around with them, a problem that has nothing to do with you. I wish I had been more gentle with people in that situation and not reacted so angrily. Once you find out what's really going on, the whole relationship can change.

My dad always used to say, 'learn what you can while you are young and at school, because when you are older you either won't have enough time or won't have enough money to pay for lessons.' That was good advice, and I wish I'd spent more time on my piano lessons.

Finally, I wish I had always said yes to challenges. I'd say to young people today, if you are offered the opportunity to do something you have never done before, go for it. You might feel a little nervous, but say yes anyway.

6 PRONUNCIATION sentence rhythm

- a 72 Dictation. Listen and write down six sentences with wish.

- A Do you want me to phone and make an excuse?
 B I thought you said we were in a hurry!
 C So do I. I didn't bring an umbrella today.
 D Well, it's not my fault. You've got no self-control!
 E Why don't you go back to the shop and see if they still have it?
 F Sorry, but it is. And I'm getting hungry.

7 LISTENING & SPEAKING

- a 73 Listen to five people and match the speakers with the regrets.
- Who...?
- A wasted time when he / she could have been doing something else
 B wishes he / she had said something to someone
 C missed an opportunity because he / she wasn't independent
 D wasn't old enough to take advantage of a situation
 E regretted trying to change his / her appearance
- b Listen again. Why do the speakers mention or say the following?
- 'Mercedes and Bosch.' 'It would have opened doors for me.'
 - 'The top and skirt I wore were really skimpy.'
 - 'The Russian Revolution.' 'Old letters.'
 - 'I really fancied him.' 'Now it's too late.'
 - 'I just did the bare minimum.' 'This was a unique opportunity.'
- c Read about the website below. Do you identify with any of the regrets?

Psychologists at Cambridge University have been researching things that people regret about their lives. These were some of the things people wrote:

Family

- I regret arguing with my parents yesterday.
- I wish I'd listened to my sister when she had problems.
- I regret not visiting my grandfather more when he was in hospital.

Lifestyle

 - Which of these people is most likely to pay?
 - An employee who doesn't like his boss.
 - An executive who is very popular with his staff.
 - An employee who likes the company where he works.

Honest workers or thieves? Take the bagel test.

Once upon a time, Paul Feldman dreamed big dreams. Trained as an agricultural economist, he wanted to tackle world hunger. Instead, he took a job in Washington, analysing weapons expenditures for the US Navy. He held senior-level jobs and earned good money, but he wasn't fully engaged in his work. At the office Christmas party, colleagues would introduce him to their wives not as 'the head of the public research group' (which he was) but as 'the guy who brings in the bagels'.

The bagels had begun as a casual gesture: a boss treating his employees whenever they won a research contract. Then he made it a habit. Every Friday, he would bring in some bagels, a serrated knife, and cream cheese. When employees from neighbouring floors heard about the bagels, they wanted some too. Eventually he was bringing in 15 dozen bagels a week. In order to recoup his costs, he set out a cash basket and a sign with the suggested price. His collection rate was about 95 per cent; he attributed the underpayment to oversight, not fraud.

In 1984, when his research institute fell under new management, Feldman decided to quit his job and sell bagels. His economist friends thought he had lost his mind, but his wife supported him.

Driving around the office parks that encircle Washington, he solicited customers with a simple pitch: early in the morning, he would deliver some bagels and a cash basket to a company's snack room; he would return before lunch to pick up the money and the leftovers. Within a few years, Feldman was delivering 8,400 bagels a week to 140 companies and earning as much as he had made as a research analyst.

He had also, quite without meaning to, designed a beautiful economic experiment. By measuring the money collected against the bagels taken, he found it possible to tell, down to the penny, just how honest his customers were. Did they steal from him? If so, what were the characteristics of a company that stole versus a company that did not? In what circumstances did people tend to steal more, or less?

f If Feldman left a basket of bagels in your school, what proportion do you think would pay?

How do you feel about people...?

- downloading music and films from the Internet without paying
- buying pirate DVDs / CDs
- photocopying a book
- taking home pens, paper, etc. from the office or school
- keeping a library book
- buying designer goods which they know are fakes
- not saying anything when a shop assistant gives back too much change

c Do the business quiz with a partner.

What's the difference between...?

- 1 an employer / an employee
- 2 a customer / a client
- 3 the boss / the staff
- 4 set up a company / take over a company
- 5 sack somebody / make somebody redundant
- 6 export a product / import a product

Name a business or company in your town / city which...

- 1 is part of a well-known chain.
- 2 is a multinational.
- 3 started as a small family business and then became much bigger.
- 4 was taken over by another company.
- 5 spends a lot of money on advertising.

3 PRONUNCIATION changing stress in nouns and verbs

Some words change their stress depending on whether they are verbs or nouns. The nouns are usually stressed on the first syllable, e.g. an export, a record and the verbs on the second syllable, e.g. to export, to record. Words like this include: increase, decrease, import, permit, produce, progress, record, refund, transport.

- a Read the information in the box and practise saying each word both ways, as a verb and as a noun.
- b Underline the stressed syllable on the highlighted word.
- 1 We're making good progress with the report.
 - 2 The new building is progressing well.

MINI GRAMMAR

whatever, whenever, etc.

The bagels had begun as a 'thank you' to his employees whenever they won a research project.

We use whenever to mean 'at any time' or 'it doesn't matter when', e.g. Come and see me whenever you like.

We can also use:

whatever (= any thing), whichever (= any thing, from a limited number), whoever (= any person), however (= it doesn't matter how), wherever (= any place). They also have the meaning it doesn't matter what / which / who / how / where, etc.

Complete the sentences with whatever, whichever, whoever, whenever, however, or wherever.

- 1 Please sit _____ you like.
- 2 There is a prize for _____ can answer the question first.
- 3 _____ she opens her mouth she says something stupid.
- 4 I'm going to buy it _____ expensive it is!
- 5 _____ I give her, it's always the wrong thing.
- 6 I'll go by bus or train, _____ is cheaper.

4 GRAMMAR clauses of contrast and purpose

- a Read the advert below. Would you try Pumavite? Why (not)?

PUMAVITE

'I slept my way to fitness'

No exercise – but now Simon has muscles to die for!

Simon Sloth had never been a great one for exercise. With three children and a busy job there was very little time for the gym.

But then Simon discovered PUMAVITE tablets, an exclusive product marketed by Cure Everything Pharmaceuticals. A three-month course of the tablets has transformed him!

'You take it at night,' explains Simon, 'and its special secret ingredient gets to work immediately.' PUMAVITE contains plant extracts from the Andes and complex vitamins. Together these produce exactly the same effect as a two-hour workout at the gym or swimming pool.

'Pumavite is absolutely fantastic and a miracle cure for people like me. It is guaranteed to work and is the best investment I have ever made,' says Simon.

'I slept my way to fitness!'

Only £500 for a three-month supply Limited stocks – offer closes on March 31st!

- b Read the magazine article. Tick the 'tricks' that the Pumavite advert uses.

How advertisers win our hearts and minds... and get our money

There's no such thing as a free lunch

'Get a free camera when you subscribe to our magazine for two years.' There's something about the word 'free' that immediately attracts us – something for nothing – I want it! The idea makes us feel clever, as if we've got the better of the company. But that camera (which will probably break as soon as you get it out of the box) wasn't a gift at all. In spite of ¹ _____, its price was really included in the magazine subscription.

Buy now while stocks last!

'There are only a few left! And after they've been sold, there won't be any more available.' What happens when we read or hear these words? Even though ² _____, maybe don't even like them, we immediately want to be among the lucky few who have them. But no manufactured products are ever scarce. Do you really think the manufacturers of that 'limited edition' DVD couldn't produce a few more, if they thought they could sell them?

Just sign your name here – and give us your address

'Just fill in this form for ³ _____.' Do you think manufacturers really want to spend their money on sending you a free brochure? It costs them to produce it and to mail it. In fact, these kinds of adverts are really produced so as to ⁴ _____. From then on, they will bombard you with more direct advertising, probably passing on your name and address to other companies too.

- c Read the article again with the glossary and complete it with the phrases below.
- A free information
 - B the actress is holding the product in the photo
 - C get us to believe it
 - D get your personal details
 - E we can't fail to get the message
 - F demonstrate the amazing effects of their product
 - G we don't really need the products
 - H the advert saying it was free
- d Look at the eight phrases again, and the highlighted word(s) immediately before them. Which ones express a contrast? Which ones express a purpose?
- e  p.144 Grammar Bank 7B. Read the rules and do the exercises.

Everybody's doing it

And everybody can't be wrong, so the product must be fantastic. In order to ⁵ _____, they use expressions like, 'It's the new sensation sweeping the country', 'People just can't get enough of them', 'Record sales', 'Unbelievable response!' and combine this with a photograph of a large group of people, so that ⁶ _____. But don't be fooled. Even if it everybody is doing it (and they may not be), everybody can be wrong.

The camera never lies, or does it?

Adverts frequently use 'real people' to ⁷ _____ on our health or fitness. But of course the person in the advert or TV commercial is a gym-toned model!

Trust me I'm a doctor (or a celebrity)

If a celebrity is using the product, it must be fantastic. If a doctor recommends it, it must work. The bigger the authority, the more powerful the advertising message is. But be careful. Although ⁸ _____, do you really think she colours her hair with it at home? Do the authorities mentioned really exist? 'My dog biscuits are recommended by the International Association of Dog Nutritionists' (an organization I started last week). 'A recent study found that my lemonade tastes better than any other brand' (my mother liked it better).

2 SPEAKING

GET IT RIGHT giving examples

If you want to give examples when you are speaking English, you can use these phrases: for example, for instance, or such as.

English has borrowed many words from other languages, such as 'shampoo' and 'yogurt'.

Work in groups of three or four. Discuss the questions, giving as many examples as you can.

- Which three of the twelve words in 1e would you choose to add to your language? Why?
- Think of five words or phrases that your language has borrowed from English? Have these words been borrowed because there wasn't an existing word for this concept in your language? If not, why do you think this word or phrase is being used in your language?
- How do you feel about these borrowed English words?
- Can you think of any words / phrases which have been borrowed from other languages?
- Can you think of two English words or phrases that don't have an exact translation in your language? Why do you think that is?
- Do you know any words in your language that don't have an exact translation in English?
- Do you have any favourite words in English? Why do you like them?

THE MEANING OF Tingo

In this book, Adam Jacot de Boinod, ¹ _____ works as a researcher for BBC quiz programmes, has collected words from all over the world which do not exist in English, but which he thinks that perhaps English ought to incorporate into the language. The title of the book comes from one of his favourites. 'Tingo', ² _____ is a word from the language spoken on Easter Island in the Pacific Ocean, means to borrow things from a neighbour's house one by one until there is nothing left!

Bakkushan (Japanese) A woman ³ _____ you think is pretty when you see her from behind, but is not when you see her from the front.

Zhengron (Chinese) A person ¹⁴ _____ looks have been improved by plastic surgery.

3 READING & LISTENING

a Read about the origin of ten English words. Can you guess what any of them are? Use the pictures to help you.

The story behind the words

- 1 _____ Comes from two Old Norse words (the language spoken by the Vikings) which mean 'house' and 'owner'. The word originally had nothing to do with marital status, except for the fact that home ownership made these men extremely desirable marriage partners.
- 2 _____ From 'cabrioler', a French word which means 'jump like a goat'. The first carriages for public hire bounced up and down so much that they reminded people of goats jumping on a hillside.
- 3 _____ From the Italian 'To arms!', which was what soldiers shouted when they saw that the enemy was attacking.
- 4 _____ Genoa, called 'Gene' by sixteenth-century Europeans, was the first city to make denim cloth. The trousers were named after the city.
- 5 _____ In Latin, this means 'without your cape'. The ancient Romans would often avoid capture by throwing off their capes when fleeing so that they could run more quickly.
- 6 _____ It is believed that this term originated because of an Irishman called Patrick with this surname who, with his family, terrorized a section of London in the 1890s.
- 7 _____ Many banks in post-Renaissance Europe issued small, porcelain 'borrower's tiles' to their customers. Like credit cards, these tiles were imprinted with the owner's name, his credit limit, and the name of the bank. Each time the customer wanted to borrow money, he had to present the tile to the bank clerk, who would compare the imprinted credit limit with how much the customer had already borrowed. If the borrower was over the limit, the clerk broke the tile on the spot.
- 8 _____ From the Latin, originally meant 'placed on the knees'. In Ancient Rome, a father legally claimed his newborn child as being his by sitting in front of his family and placing the child on his knee.
- 9 _____ The popular explanation of the origin of this word is that it is an acronym meaning 'To Insure Promptness', that is to make sure the service in e.g. a restaurant is fast. This is incorrect. The word was underworld slang from the early 1600s meaning 'to pass on a small sum of money'.
- 10 _____ This was the Latin name for a slave given to Roman soldiers to reward them for performance in battle. Eventually, this term was applied to anyone who was a slave to anything, e.g. a drug.

b Now complete 1–10 with the words below. Did you guess any of them?

addict alarm broke (adj = having no money) cab (= taxi) escape genuine jeans hooligan husband tip

- c Read the article again carefully. Underline any words you don't know and try to guess their meaning from the context. Check with your teacher or a dictionary.
- d Now cover the article and focus on the words in the list in b. In pairs, try to remember the origin of each word.

 - 3 Which word originated from the way the English pronounced a foreign word?
- f Listen again and complete the summaries with one or more words.

Ketchup

The original sauce was invented by 1 _____. It was made from 2 _____. British explorers first tried it in the 3 _____ century, and really liked it. Later some colonists from 4 _____ mixed 5 _____ into it, and it became the sauce it is today.

Orange

This word, and also the word for orange in 6 _____ and 7 _____, doesn't come from 8 _____, it comes from ancient Sanskrit. The Sanskrit word, 'narangah', may come from 'naga ranga' which means 9 _____. The story is that an 10 _____ once ate so many that he 11 _____, and some orange trees grew from his 12 _____.

Tennis

The sport started in 13 _____. It was 14 _____ called 'tenez' which means 15 _____. The sport 16 _____ there and became popular in 17 _____. But the 'tenez' sounded more like 'tennis' when it was said with an 18 _____.

4 VOCABULARY & PRONUNCIATION

prefixes and word stress

One way of making new words is by adding a prefix at the beginning of a word, e.g. over-, under-, mis-, etc. These prefixes change the meaning of a word. They are usually used without a hyphen, but sometimes need one.

- a Look at the words in the list. Then match the bold prefixes with their meanings.

antisocial	autograph	ex-husband	biannual	misspell	microscopic monosyllable	multinational	overworked	postgraduate	preconceived
rewind	semi-final	underpaid

- | | |
|-------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 after _____ | 8 many _____ |
| 2 again or back _____ | 9 not enough _____ |
| 3 against _____ | 10 of or by oneself _____ |
| 4 badly / wrongly _____ | 11 one _____ |
| 5 before _____ | 12 small _____ |
| 6 former _____ | 13 too much _____ |
| 7 half _____ | 14 twice _____ |

▲ Unlike suffixes (which aren't stressed), prefixes are often stressed, so a word with a prefix may have two stressed syllables, the main stress on the base word and secondary stress on the prefix, e.g. antisocial).

- b 7.8 Listen and underline two stressed syllables in the words in a (except autograph and monosyllable, which just have one).

Which is better, working for someone else or being your own boss?

More and more people are choosing to give up their jobs and follow their dream of setting up their own company.

Being your own boss has many obvious advantages. 1 _____ is that you are in charge. You have the opportunity to do something you really believe in, 2 _____ offering a new product or providing a new service. 3 _____ is that you do not have a boss watching over you, which gives you more freedom to do things your way. Finally, the greatest advantage of all for some people, you could 4 _____ become extremely rich if your company becomes successful.

This all seems very tempting, but 5 _____, there are a number of disadvantages. You have to make a lot of big decisions, 6 _____ whether to expand, or whether to employ new staff. This is often very stressful. 7 _____ you are the boss and in theory can decide what time you finish work, you might find that instead of finishing early, you have to work all night 8 _____ an important deadline. Finally, there is an element of risk. If the company fails, you could lose not only your job, but also your home and your life savings.

9 _____, owning a business has both advantages and disadvantages. Whether it would suit you or not depends on your skills, your personality and your family circumstances.

A world without time or number

The Pirahã are an isolated Amazonian tribe of hunter-gatherers who live deep in the Brazilian rainforest. The tribe has survived, their culture intact, for centuries, although there are now only around 200 left. The Pirahã, who communicate mainly through hums and whistles, have fascinated ethnologists for years, mainly because they have almost no words for numbers. They use only three words to count: one, two, and many.

We know about the Pirahã thanks to an ex-hippy and former missionary, Dan Everett, now a Professor of Phonetics, who spent seven years with the tribe in the 70s and 80s. Everett discovered a world without numbers, without time, without words for colours, without subordinate clauses and without a past tense. Their language, he found, was not just simple grammatically; it was restricted in its range of sounds and differed between the sexes. For the men, it has just eight consonants and three vowels; for the women, who have the smallest number of speech sounds in the world, to seven consonants and three vowels. To the untutored ear, the language sounds more like humming than speech. The Pirahã can also whistle their language, which is how men communicate when hunting.

Their culture is similarly constrained. The Pirahã can't write, have little collective memory, and no concept of decorative art. In 1980 Everett tried to teach them to count: he explained basic arithmetic to an enthusiastic group keen to learn the skills needed to trade with other tribes. After eight months, not one could count to ten; even one plus one was beyond them. The experiment seemed to confirm Everett's theory: the tribe just couldn't conceive the concept of number.

The Pirahã's inability to count is important because it seems to disprove Noam Chomsky's influential Theory of Universal Grammar, which holds that the human mind has a natural capacity for language, and that all languages share a basic rule structure, which enables children to understand abstract concepts such as number. One of Chomsky's collaborators has recently gone on an expedition with Everett to study the tribe. We do not yet know if the Pirahã have persuaded him to change his theory.

1B You're psychic, aren't you? Student A

- a Imagine you're a psychic. Make guesses and complete the sentences below about B.
- 1 Your favourite colour is _____, ...?
 - 2 You really like _____, (a sport or hobby)...?
 - 3 You went to _____ last weekend, ...?
 - 4 You haven't been to _____ (a country), ...?
 - 5 You were born in _____ (place), ...?
 - 6 You'd like to be able to _____, ...?
 - 7 You can't _____ very well, ...?
 - 8 You're very good at _____, ...?
- b Check if your guesses are true, by saying the sentences to B and checking with a question tag, e.g. Your favourite colour is pink, isn't it? Try to use a falling intonation.
- c Now B will check his / her guesses about you. Respond with a short answer. If the guess is wrong, tell B the real answer.
- d Count your correct guesses. Who was the better psychic?

1C You're the doc! Students A + B

Check your answers.

1 c The correct treatment is to pinch the soft part of the nose. This will usually cure a nosebleed if you do it for five minutes. If not, repeat for 10 minutes, and if that still doesn't work, go to your nearest hospital.

2 a The correct treatment is first to pour cold water on the burn for at least 10 minutes and then to cover it with a loose bandage. If you haven't got a bandage, you can use a clean plastic bag or kitchen film. Do not break blisters and don't put any cream on the burn.

2A Clothes quiz Student A

- a Ask B the questions (the answers are in italics).
- 1 What's the opposite of...?
 - These trousers are too tight. (These trousers are too loose.)
 - trendy clothes (old-fashioned clothes)
 - get dressed (get undressed)
 - 2 What material are the following usually made of?
 - a sweater (wool)
 - cycling shorts (Lycra™)
 - a tie (silk)
 - 3 What does it mean if you say 'These shoes don't fit me'? (They're too big or too small.)
 - 4 When do people normally...?
 - try clothes on (in a shop before they buy them)
 - dress up (for a party, a wedding, etc.)
 - 5 What does it mean if you say 'Paula's dressed to kill tonight'? (People will admire her because of her clothes.)
- b Answer B's questions.

2B Flight stories Student A

- a You're going to read a newspaper article and then tell your partner about it. Read the article and write down 10 words that will help you remember the story.

Lovesick violinist grounds plane

Nuala Ni Chanainn, an Irish violinist, had been travelling round San Francisco as part of a theatre group. When the tour was over, she went to the airport and boarded the plane that would take her back home to Ireland. She was in her seat, waiting for the plane to take off, when she suddenly decided not to go after all. She rushed off the plane at the last minute, leaving TWA airline officials thinking that she perhaps had planted a bomb on the plane and escaped. The plane and all the luggage were thoroughly searched by a bomb-sniffing dog. Meanwhile, the airport authorities stopped Nuala and took her away to be questioned. However, after extensive questioning, she managed to convince them that she hadn't planted a bomb: she simply couldn't bear to leave her new boyfriend! The plane was allowed to depart nearly four hours later, minus the love-struck violinist, who then spent another two weeks in the States with the boyfriend.

- b Close your book and tell B your story in your own words, e.g. There was a woman called Nuala who was a violinist from Ireland...
- c Now listen to B's story, and ask your partner to clarify or rephrase if there's anything you don't understand.

3A There's only one place burglars won't look... Students A + B

Read and check your answers.

50 professional burglars described their working methods to researchers who visited them in jail. Their research revealed:

- 1 b An experienced burglar searches a house in 20 minutes, and usually takes £1,500 worth of goods.
- 2 a Favourite items to steal are expensive goods which are fairly easy to transport including digital cameras and flat screen TVs.
- 3 a The criminals unanimously considered a noisy dog more of a deterrent than a burglar alarm.
- 4 a, b, d However, ten of the fifty burglars said they actually preferred homes to be occupied, as there was less risk of being disturbed by returning residents.
- 5 b The burglar's favourite method was dismantling windows or patio doors.
- 6 1 the main bedroom, 2 the living room, 3 the dining room, 4 the study, 5 the kitchen, 6 a child's bedroom.

So if you want a tip from the professionals, hide your jewellery in the children's bedroom and leave the dog at home when you go out!

4B Argument! Student A

Read the situations and roleplay the arguments.

- 1 It's your birthday today. Your husband (B) had promised to come home early. You have prepared a great dinner. You have been dropping hints for the past month that what you really want for your birthday is some jewellery as your partner is usually very unimaginative about choosing presents. Last Christmas he bought you some DVDs which you didn't particularly like. He arrives home late, and produces a box of chocolates (you're on a diet, and he knows this) which looks as if it was bought at a petrol station.

You start. B has just given you the chocolates.

- 2 You're in your first year of university, studying medicine. You haven't enjoyed it at all, and have just failed all your first year exams. In fact, you never really wanted to study medicine, but your parents are both doctors and you feel they pushed you into it. You would like to change courses and study journalism, which you think would suit you better. You want to try to convince your mother / father, although you know they're not very pleased with your exam results.

B will start

6C Are you a creative thinker? Students A + B

Check your answers to the test.

Are you a creative thinker?

- The more times you have circled false, the more creative you are and the higher your 'eureka potential'.
- The vast majority of people choose either 35 or 37. However, truly creative people usually come up with a different number, e.g. 17 or 31.
- The more boxes you were able to fill, the more creative you are. The following are some of the more creative ideas that people have come up with:

- The important question concerns how you represented the number 4. In Roman numerals the number 4 is always represented as 'IV'. However, on almost all clocks and watches except for Big Ben in London, the number is represented as 'IIII'. If you filled it in as 'IV', that means that although you have probably seen clocks and watches with Roman numerals hundreds of times, you have not really seen or remembered what is right in front of your eyes.

7C What's the word? Student A

- Check that you know what your list of words below mean. Then define them to B, saying which language they come from.
 - caravan /'kærəvæn/ (Persian)
 - blanket /'blæŋkɪt/ (French)
 - embarrassed /ɪm'bærəst/ (French)
 - tsunami /tsu:'nɑ:mi/ (Japanese)
 - soprano /sə'prɑ:nəʊ/ (Italian)
 - massage /'mæsɑ:ʒ/ (Portuguese)
 - mosquito /mɒs'ki:təʊ/ (Spanish)
 - fog /fɒg/ (Danish)
- Listen to B's definitions and say what the word is.
- Has your language 'borrowed' any of these words?

1B You're psychic, aren't you? Student B

- a Imagine you're a psychic. Make guesses and complete the sentences below about A.
- 1 You're going to _____ tonight, ...?
 - 2 You don't like _____, (a kind of music)...?
 - 3 You've seen _____ (a film), ...?
 - 4 You didn't _____ last night, ...?
 - 5 You were born in _____ (month), ...?
 - 6 You wouldn't like to be a / an _____ (a job), ...?
 - 7 Your favourite season is _____, ...?
 - 8 You can speak _____, ...?
- b A is going to make some guesses about you. Respond with a short answer. If the guess is wrong, tell A the real answer.
- c Now check if your guesses about A are true, by saying the sentences and checking with a question tag, e.g. You're going to see a film tonight, aren't you? Try to use a falling intonation.
- d Count your correct guesses. Who was the better psychic?

2A Clothes quiz Student B

 - jeans (denim)
 - 3 What does it mean if you say 'That shirt doesn't suit you?' (It doesn't look good on you.)
 - 4 When do people normally...?
 - hang clothes up (after they've ironed them or after they take them off, e.g. in the evening)
 - get changed (to go to the gym, when they get home from work)
 - 5 What does it mean if you say 'Mark needs to pull his socks up?' (He needs to work harder.)

2B Flight stories Student B

- a You're going to read a newspaper article and then tell your partner about it. Read the article and write down 10 words that will help you remember the story.

Tourist stranded at airport for five months

When student Sheridan Gregorio arrived at Fortaleza airport in Brazil, he was planning to fly home to Holland. He had had a great holiday, but unfortunately he had spent all his money. All he had was his return air ticket to Amsterdam. But when he checked in, the airline staff at the airport told him that he would have to pay airport tax before he could leave the country. Sheridan explained that he was completely broke, but he wasn't allowed to fly and so he missed his flight home. His ticket was non-refundable, so now he needed to buy a new ticket and pay the airport tax.

As he had no money, Sheridan's only option was to sleep in the airport and clean restaurants in exchange for food and some money. After working for five months, he had saved enough for the airport tax and the Brazilian police persuaded the airline to let him use his old ticket to go home. Sheridan told a newspaper reporter from Jornal da Globo, 'The Brazilian people were really nice to me, they treated me very well.' Sheridan finally arrived home safe and sound last week.

- b Listen to A's story, and ask your partner to clarify or rephrase if there's anything you don't understand.
- c Close your book and tell A your story in your own words, e.g. There was a Dutch man who was on holiday in Brazil...

4B Argument! Student B

Read the situations and roleplay the arguments.

1 It's your partner's birthday today. You know that she wants some jewellery, but you have been very busy at work and haven't had time to go shopping. You had intended to finish work early and go shopping today, but you couldn't, so you stopped at a petrol station on the way home and bought some chocolates which you know she usually likes.

A is your partner. He / She will start.

2 Your son / daughter is in his / her first year of university studying medicine. You yourself are a doctor and you really encouraged your child to follow in your footsteps. He / She was good at science at school, and you think he / she would make an excellent doctor. He / She was quite keen on studying journalism, but you think that this is a 'lazy option' and that it's very difficult to get a good job in journalism nowadays, so you were very relieved when he / she agreed to study medicine. Although he / she worked hard at school, this year at university he / she seems to be out with friends all the time and spends a lot less time studying than you did at the same age. You have just discovered that he / she has failed all the first-year exams.

You start.

1.3 Interviewer ... and with me I've got Emily and Alex. Emily, what kind of questions did you ask?

Emily Well, the organizers of the event suggested a list of topics, you know, sort of pre-prepared questions, but I thought that they were very artificial, you know strange. So I asked quite normal questions like, 'Why did you come tonight?' or 'Have you been speed dating before?' or 'What do you like doing in your free time?' I found that the conversation ran more smoothly when I asked people these kinds of normal questions.

Interviewer How about you Alex?

Alex Yes, same as Emily, really. I also asked quite normal things like, 'What do you do? Have you done this before? Do you enjoy living in Oxford?' Things like that.

Interviewer Did other people ask you interesting questions?

Alex Yes, some were quite interesting. Ones I can remember are, 'If you were an animal, what would you be?' Or, 'If you had to choose a different career from your current one, what would it be?' One woman even said 'I've heard that you were in prison once - is that true?' I don't know where she got that from!

Interviewer And you, Emily. Were you asked anything unusual?

Emily Not really! The most common questions were 'Are you American?' or 'Where are you from?' The second most common was, 'Why do you live in England?' Although one person did ask me, 'If you could be invisible for a day, what would you do?'

Interviewer How did you answer that?

Emily I said I'd go to work and play tricks on my colleagues in the office like hiding things!

Interviewer How many matches did you get?

Emily I chose six men that I would be happy to see again, and of those six, four of them had chosen me too, so I got four matches.

Alex I got three.

Interviewer Did you go out with any of the people?

Emily Yes, I went on one date with a guy who teaches biochemistry at university. It was a bit of a disaster though, because earlier that morning I'd been to the dentist, and I'd had an injection, so by the time that we met for coffee I had terrible toothache and I was in agony. I had to go home after half an hour. We've exchanged a few emails since then, but we haven't managed to meet. We're both very busy. Also, to be honest, I don't think he's really my type. He seems to be really keen to get married and have children straight away and I'm not.

Interviewer What about the other three matches?

Emily The second man contacted me directly after the event and invited me to dinner. But then he sent me a text message the next day and cancelled. He said that he had met someone else. The other two have been in touch, but we haven't been able to meet yet. But in fact, I've decided that for the moment, I'm actually happy being single so I don't think I'll be speed dating again any time soon.

Interviewer How about you Alex?

Alex I emailed one of the matches, a woman I quite liked and we met at a bar in Oxford. At the speed dating event she seemed really bubbly and good fun, but after spending a few minutes with her it was very clear that we had nothing in common. The atmosphere was awful and it was all very awkward and I think she felt the same so we just finished our drinks and left. We didn't contact each other again.

Then I arranged to meet another of my matches. We'd really got on well at the speed dating so I was quite excited about meeting her. Unfortunately, on that morning, I'd found out that I'd lost my job and I was really worried that I would not give the right impression because I was feeling so unhappy about my work situation. But actually, Susanna quickly made me forget everything and we had a great evening. We then met up the next day and went for a long walk. And well, to cut a long story short, six months later I took her to Paris and proposed, and two months ago we got married!

Emily Aaaaah!

Interviewer So a real success story for you then?

Alex Absolutely!

1.6 Jane When I arrived I was shown into Sally's office - which was much more normal than I'd expected. Sally looks like a kind and sincere woman. She says that she inherited from her grandmother the ability to 'see' the past and future of other people. First she asked me a few basic questions - was I married, did I have children, and so on. However, her next questions rather surprised me ...

Sally Who's Caroline?

Jane I'm afraid I don't know. I don't know anybody called Caroline.

Sally Well, somebody called Caroline is going to have a powerful and positive effect on your finances. Australia is very important in your life.

Jane Is it? I've never been to Australia.

Sally Well, you'll be going there very soon.

1.7 Sally Another place which is very important in your life is Ireland.

Jane Yes, that's true. Ireland does play a big role in my life. In fact, I grew up there.

Sally Ireland is a place where you will find answers to a lot of your problems. Look for the Irish connection. I'm very very optimistic that an Irish man is going to be 'the one for you'.

Jane Ah, very interesting! What does he look like?

Sally He's very tall.

Jane That's good - I'm 1 metre 90 myself.

Sally And he's highly intelligent; in fact it's his brain that will really attract you to him. He's a distinguished public figure - perhaps a professor?

Jane So when am I going to meet him?

Sally Actually, you already know him. It's just you don't think of him in that way.

Jane I immediately started thinking about all the people I know, but, to be honest, I couldn't think of anyone who fitted the description.

1.8 Jane I decided to ask Sally some questions myself.

Jane What about my health?

Sally Let's see, your mother suffers from headaches, doesn't she?

Jane Yes she does, actually. She gets bad headaches.

Sally Well, you'll need to watch out for headaches, and so will your mother, because hers are going to get worse. But in general, you're a healthy woman, and you'll have a long life without any major illnesses, but you must never be tempted to have plastic surgery - if you do, it will go horribly wrong.

Jane So far it had all been quite positive, but I wasn't really convinced. It was only when she started talking about my children that I really started listening.

Sally Your son Conor is very like you. He's good with language and he may end up working with words, maybe a poet or a songwriter.

Jane In fact he does like words and writing, and last week he won a poetry prize at school.

Sally But your daughter Clara is more like your ex-husband. She's not good with words at all.

Jane It's true! They're both dyslexic. This was beginning to make me wonder...

1.9 Jane I left Sally's office feeling very positive. She gave me a recording of our conversation on a CD, because she said I needed to listen to everything she had told me a few times. When I got home, I put on the CD. When I listened again, I realized that for every thing that Sally got right, she got several things wrong. I came to the conclusion then that Sally doesn't have any paranormal abilities. She is just very good at judging people's character and makes good guesses about their lives from the information she gets from you. But strangely enough, recently I've been seeing a lot more of an old friend of mine who is a professor. He's not Irish, but he has just invited me to join him on a lecture tour... of Australia.

1.15 When I saw the lady's face, I knew it was really serious. Her face was starting to turn blue. I put my arms around her waist and I pulled hard in and up three times and the piece of steak came out. Then I just put my arm round the lady and gave her a hug.

I knew exactly what to do because before I started to work as a television presenter, I used to be a flight attendant. We were taught a lot about first aid. The technique I used is called the Heimlich manoeuvre and it's what you should do when someone is choking. I must admit I was a bit embarrassed by all the attention I got in the restaurant and then the next day the story was in all the newspapers. But I'm very glad I was there to help. And maybe this story will make people think about learning first aid. I really think it's something which should be taught at school. It's so important!

1.16 I knew I was hurting Peter, but I carried on pushing my fingers down his throat. I managed to touch the tomato with two of my fingers and I was able to move it a little. That was enough - Peter started coughing and the tomato came out.

But I was very lucky. Afterwards, I found out that my ignorance of first aid had nearly killed my son. Hitting Peter on the back was OK, but putting my fingers down his throat was a big mistake. I could have pushed the tomato even further down his throat and he could have died. I'd made every mistake possible and I nearly killed him because of my ignorance. I should have called an ambulance immediately, because I don't know first aid, and the ambulance staff would have told me exactly what to do... and what not to do.

1.18 Interviewer Frank Clifford is an astrologer and palmist. What does an astrologer do?

Frank An astrologer will take your date, place, and time of birth, construct a map of the heavens, a horoscope, that will look at temperament, character, emotional needs and a number of other different factors.

Interviewer What does being a palmist mean?

Frank Well, as a palmist is quite different from being an astrologer, a palmist will look at your hands as they are now of course, or he may do a print and have a look at what is being shown in the hands now, but whereas astrology is a birth chart set up, a horoscope set up for somebody's birth moment, the hands are your living hands so they've developed and grown with you of course, so they reflect where you are today and what you do and palmists will read, again, character, perhaps past events, possible future events from the hand.

Interviewer So can astrologers and palmists predict people's future?

Frank A lot of astrologers and palmists would say that it's not really about reading somebody's future, it's about understanding where they are today and being able to understand who they are, where they are today, and future possibilities and I think people should come to a palmist or astrologer not to be told about an unalterable destiny or future, but to be told or given tools enough to make it themselves, and be very proactive in that area themselves. So it's our job really to encourage people to live their own lives and decide their own future, not feel as though it's written anywhere and that they have nothing to do or say about the outcome.

Interviewer If you saw on someone's hand that they were going to have a serious illness, would you tell them?

Frank I'm not a doctor so I wouldn't go there. I certainly wouldn't talk about anything medical. But if somebody comes and they've had cancer or they're in the process of being treated for an illness, that's something we might discuss, but it's certainly something I wouldn't predict, because I don't necessarily believe in making predictions.

1.19 Interviewer How should people choose which astrologer or which palm reader or astrologer to see?

Frank Well, I would recommend going to somebody who has been recommended to you, there are a lot of people out there who, a lot of people doing a genuine job, but will talk about things that no palmist really should talk about, like health matters, as I've spoken about, death, other illnesses, things that take away somebody's ability or right to choose. The reason that I got into palmistry was at the age of seventeen, I was told by a palmist that I would be married at 21 and then my partner would die, which scared the life out of me at the time, and I felt I had this curse on my back, and so I thought I'd learn this subject and understand what on earth she was talking about and I realized that what she was looking at was a very big 'if', a very big possibility rather than a probability and it never happened.

Interviewer What kind of people come to see you?

Frank A lot of people would expect bored housewives and people with nothing better to do, or too much money, more money than sense, to come, but in fact the truth is you tend to get all sorts of people from every type or walk of life. I've had sportspeople, politicians, people in the media, every type of profession you can think of, male, female. Usually it tends to be more women, you tend to get more men looking at palmistry because it's perhaps more physical and open and they feel that... some men tell me they believe more in the hand rather than a horoscope, because a horoscope is something that women read in their magazines or newspapers.

Interviewer Do you ever look at your own future?

Frank Well, rather than try to look at my own future or predict it I try and have it, I try and experience it. And I don't think most astrologers or palmists actually do predict or try to predict what's going on in their life. They just live it from day to day as anyone else would, but they try to live it with some understanding and some knowledge or at least some meaning of why we're here and what is happening at this time.

1.21 Interviewer What's your star sign?

Cherry Capricorn.

Interviewer Do you ever read your horoscope?

Cherry Occasionally, but not because I particularly believe in them, but just because they're there. And it's quite fun.

Interviewer Do you think someone's star sign has an influence on their personality?

Cherry Not particularly, no. I don't really think so.

Interviewer What's your star sign?

Miles Scorpio, I had to think about that one.

Interviewer Do you ever read your horoscope?

Miles No, never.

Interviewer Do you think someone's star sign has an influence on their personality?

Miles Well, possibly. I'm not a great believer I have to say, although perhaps the time of year someone is born may vaguely reflect on their characteristics. But I think it's pretty minimal the effect, to be perfectly honest.

Interviewer What's your star sign?

Mike Aries.

Interviewer Do you ever read your horoscope?

Mike Oh, I'm a big believer in horoscopes. Some people say it's quite sad, but I tend to live every day on a horoscope. See if it ever comes true. It doesn't really, but it's just nice to know.

Interviewer Do you think someone's star sign has an influence on their personality?

Mike Yes, I think it does. You can definitely tell with some star signs. You can definitely tell their, sort of, personality straightaway. It does play a big role, I think.

Interviewer What's your star sign?

Theresa I was born under the star sign of Capricorn, so I'm an old goat, basically.

Interviewer Do you ever read your horoscope?

Theresa I do occasionally, yes.

Interviewer Do you think someone's star sign has an influence on their personality?

Theresa Well, I think it has an influence on mine because Capricorn is the goat and goats are always climbing onwards and upwards and that really is very much me.

Interviewer What's your star sign?

Kurt Aries, Aries.

Interviewer Do you ever read your horoscope?

Kurt No.

Interviewer Do you think someone's star sign has an influence on their personality?

Kurt None, whatsoever, not unless they read it first and then change their personality to match.

1 I think above all we are strong individualists. We want as few rules as possible governing our lives. We are also very hard-working. People here live to work and don't work to live. We are also very optimistic, and we think that if we work hard, we can achieve anything. On the negative side, I think we are extremely materialistic. The measure of success for most people here is money. We are extremely concerned with 'things' – possessions and the bigger the better. Personally, I think I have inherited the typical optimism and drive, and I'm also an individualist, so I think I'm probably quite typical, but I hope I'm less materialistic than many of my countrymen seem to be.

2 Generally speaking, I think we're very sociable and easy-going, and we're great storytellers. People are also quite religious and family oriented, we're also very patriotic. Maybe this is because we're a small country and so many of us live abroad. Historically there has always been a lot of emigration. Weaknesses? I think we can be very melancholic and nostalgic, you only have to listen to our music to hear this – it's often quite sad and slow. It's probably because of our climate and our history. The stereotypical image is that one minute we're laughing and telling you a funny story and the next minute we're crying into our beer. Which reminds me that we also drink quite a lot. I think I'm quite typical in many respects, although I'm not particularly melancholic.

3 It's difficult to generalize about us as a people, especially as our big cities now have such a multi-ethnic population, but I would say that we're basically very tolerant and open-minded. We're not nearly as insular as we used to be. We defend the things that we believe in – when we have to – and we avoid taking extreme positions, which I think is another strength. One of our main weaknesses, though, is that we can be quite self-satisfied and arrogant towards foreigners. Just think of our inability, or our unwillingness, to learn foreign languages! I'd also say that that we can be lazy, and we're a bit careless about the way we dress, and also we drink too much. I don't think I'm very typical, though I do definitely have one of the weaknesses – but I'm not going to say which!

4 As a nation we're very proud of our identity and our cultural heritage. We're an inventive people, but we often feel marginalized and forgotten by our bigger neighbour, England that is. We're very sociable and like to have a good time. We're also great travellers and people often compliment us on the good behaviour of our sports fans abroad.

On the other hand, we do have a tendency to melancholy – maybe it's something to do with the weather, you know we tend to think that life is hard. There's also a negative attitude towards our neighbour – and this can range from humorous comments to actual violence. And although we are keen travellers, we can be quite negative towards foreigners. Some people would like to see the country kept only for us, without apparently understanding how negative that could be.

I don't think of myself as a typical example. I love the country, and think it has some of the most beautiful scenery in the world, but I feel that we tend to focus too much on the wrongs done to us in the distant past, rather than trying to move on.

2.6 Interviewer With me in the studio today I have two pilots, Richard and Steven, who are going to answer some of the most frequently asked questions about flying and air travel. Hello to both of you.

Pilots Hello.

Interviewer Right, the first question is what weather conditions are the most dangerous when flying a plane?

Steven Probably the most dangerous weather conditions are when the wind changes direction very suddenly. This tends to happen during thunderstorms and typhoons and it's especially dangerous during take-off and landing. But it's quite unusual – I've been flying for 37 years now and I've only experienced this three or four times.

Interviewer Is all turbulence dangerous?

Steven No, in fact it's not normally dangerous.

Pilots know when to expect turbulence and we try to avoid it by changing routes or flight levels.

Interviewer Which is more dangerous, take-off or landing?

Richard Both take-off and landing can be dangerous. They're the most critical moments of a flight. Pilots talk about the 'critical eight minutes' – the three minutes after take-off and the five minutes before landing. Most accidents happen in this period.

Steven I would say take-off is probably slightly more dangerous than landing. There is a critical moment just before take off when the plane is accelerating, but it hasn't yet reached the speed to be able to fly. If the pilot has a problem with the plane at this point, he has very little time – maybe only a second – to abort the take off.

Interviewer Passengers often think that putting on seat belts in a plane is really a waste of time. Is that true?

Richard Not at all. When the plane is moving on the ground and the pilot suddenly puts the brakes on, passengers can be thrown out of their seats, just like in a car. But more importantly, during the flight if there is sudden and severe turbulence, you could be thrown all over the cabin if you aren't wearing your seat belt. That's why airlines usually recommend you wear your belt even when the seat belt light is off.

Interviewer Should we really listen to the safety information?

Steven It's definitely worth listening to the information about emergency exits. If there's a fire on a plane, it may be dark and the plane will be full of smoke and fumes. So listening to where the exits are and working out which one is the nearest exit to you might save your life. Most air crew can even tell you where the emergency exits are in the hotels where they stay.

Interviewer What about life jackets?

Richard Fortunately, planes very rarely have to land in the sea, but to be honest the chances of surviving if your plane did crash into the sea are not high.

Interviewer Are some airports more dangerous than others?

Steven Yes, some are – particularly airports with high mountains around them and airports in countries with older or more basic navigation equipment.

Richard For some difficult airports like, let's say Kathmandu, they only allow very experienced pilots to land there. And for some of these airports pilots have to practise on a simulator first before they are given permission to land a plane there.

Interviewer How important is it for pilots and controllers to have good clear English?

Steven It's the official language of the air, so obviously it's vital for pilots and controllers to have good English. To be honest, it doesn't always happen.

Richard And apart from people's English not being good, some countries don't respect the convention and don't force their pilots to speak in English. But most of them do, luckily.

2.7 Interviewer Have you ever had a problem with a famous person as a passenger?

Richard I've carried a lot of famous people and they are usually very well behaved. But I remember once I had the actor Steven Seagal as a passenger – and the cabin crew told me that he had just got on board and he was carrying an enormous samurai sword. Weapons aren't allowed on board, of course, so I had to go and speak to him. He looked very imposing standing in the cabin. He was nearly 2 metres tall, dressed completely in black, carrying a sword and he is – as you probably know – a martial arts expert. But in fact he was very happy to give us the sword, which was gold and which had been given to him as a present in Bali.

Interviewer What's your most frightening experience as a pilot?

Steven Crossing the road outside the airport terminal! That's certainly the most dangerous thing I do. Probably in connection with flying, my most frightening experience would have to be a near miss I had when I was flying a Boeing 747 at night. A small aeroplane passed in the opposite direction just 15 metres below my plane. Just after this happened, a flight attendant brought us some hot snacks and I distinctly remember how good they tasted!

Interviewer Have you ever been taken ill during a flight?

Richard Once I was flying from Hong Kong to London, that's a 13-hour flight, and I got food poisoning after six hours. I felt terrible – incapable of doing anything at all for the rest of the flight. Luckily though, the rest of the crew were fine, because on all flights the crew are given different meals, just in case. So as my co-pilots had eaten a different meal and felt fine, the flight was able to continue safely.

2.15 “No!” Peter shouted.

The windshield cracked and popped out as the fire engine hit the floor. Broken. Peter hadn't even played with it once, and his second best Christmas present was broken.

Later, when Mommy came into the living room, she didn't thank Peter for picking up all the wrapping paper. Instead, she scooped up Little Brother™ and turned him on again.

He trembled and screeched louder than ever.

“My God! How long has he been off?” Peter's mother demanded.

“I don't like him!”

“Peter, it scares him! Listen to him!”

“I hate him! Take him back!”

“You are not to turn him off again. Ever!”

“He's mine!” Peter shouted. “He's mine and I can do what I want with him! He broke my fire engine!”

“He's a baby!”

“He's stupid! I hate him! Take him back!”

“You are going to learn to be nice with him.”

“I'll turn him off if you don't take him back. I'll turn him off and hide him someplace where you can't find him!”

“Peter!” Mommy said, and she was angry. She was angrier than he'd ever seen her before. She put Little Brother™ down and took a step toward Peter. She would punish him. Peter didn't care. He was angry, too.

“I'll do it!” he yelled. “I'll turn him off and hide him someplace dark!”

“You'll do no such thing!” Mommy said. She grabbed his arm and spun him around. The spanking would come next.

But it didn't. Instead he felt her fingers searching for something at the back of his neck.

2.16 Interviewer Hayley Levine is a flight attendant for First Choice Airways. What made you want to be a flight attendant?

Hayley I never really wanted to be a flight attendant, I just kind of knew I always wanted to travel, always had this idea that I wanted to see the world, saw an advert in a newspaper, went for the interview, got the job and loved it. So ..., and it's definitely for me, definitely.

Interviewer What kind of training did you have?

Hayley In order to become a flight attendant, you have your group interview first, you're singled out, you have a one-on-one interview, and then if you pass that stage, you go on to your training which is five weeks: first week's all about customer service, relations, things like that, and then you go on to all your safety training which is four weeks' intensive training, you know, how to deal with fires, evacuations, water landing, passengers and then you're also, you're quite well trained on immediate care, so you know, that's quite an important part of our job, if something happens up in the air, something medical, you know, you need to be trained to deal with it quickly, efficiently.

Interviewer What kind of person do you think the airlines are looking for? I mean what kind of person makes a good flight attendant?

Hayley I don't know exactly what they're looking for but I can only think they look for someone who's quite outgoing, someone who can work quite well in a team, you have to be a certain kind of character to do what we do, I mean you fly with different people every day, you know, you go into work, anything could happen, there's thousands and thousands of crew, you don't work with the same people, you need to be able to just get on with people that you've never met before, work under pressure sometimes, so I think they're looking for someone who is, you know, quite competent in what they do, quite confident, just someone who's a team player really.

Interviewer Tell me, what do you think are good and bad sides of the job?

Hayley Good sides, obviously I get to see the world pretty much for free. I mean it's amazing, you couldn't ask for anything more really.

Bad sides, probably sick bags, probably, and obviously it's really gruelling on your social life, it's more like a way of living than a job. You know, you have to work around it. So..., but yeah, it's good. I wouldn't change it for the world.

Interviewer Are there any other downsides?

Hayley Probably the jet lag, that's quite bad.

Definitely, you do suffer a lot, but you know, it's part of the job. You just sort of get on with it.

Interviewer Have you got any tips for dealing with jet lag?

Hayley Tips? I don't wear a watch, sometimes that helps. And if you're going sort of east, just try and stay up, just try and fight the jet lag, that's the best way. There isn't really a cure for it. I definitely find it easier going east than I do west. I don't know why that is.

2.17 Interviewer You must come into contact with a lot of passengers who are afraid of flying. How do you deal with this?

Hayley A lot of passengers are afraid of flying. There's not really a lot you can do. Just try and sit and talk to them, calm them down. I think your confidence is sort of always a good booster as well, if they know that you're competent in what you do, I think that helps. Most of them are OK after take-off, it's just that initial getting into the air, and then they're all right.

Interviewer How can you tell if someone's scared?

Hayley If they're a scared flyer, they do usually let you know, or they walk on shaking so much that it's pretty obvious that they're scared of flying. You do feel sorry for them. Everyone's scared of something. But, yeah, they usually make themselves known. Or come straight up and ask for vodka. That's when you usually know someone's scared of flying. I did have a guy once, though, just before take-off and he was really really scared of flying and I'd spent a good half an hour with him before the flight trying to calm him down and we just got towards take-off and he tried to open the emergency exit door. He was having a panic attack. So, yeah, that was probably the worst thing. He didn't want to fly, we got him off. Poor guy, I felt really sorry for him.

Interviewer Have you ever been in a dangerous situation, for example, have you had to evacuate a plane?

Hayley I've never had to evacuate an aircraft, never, and hopefully never will. But we're trained to do that, so, you know, really well trained to do that, but hopefully nothing like that will ever happen. Never even remotely come close to it. So, that's good.

Interviewer Have you ever felt nervous or frightened on a flight?

Hayley No, not really. Never, actually. I think the worst thing is probably a bit of turbulence, but to be honest, that's an excuse to sit down and have a cup of tea. So, you know, no, I've never really felt frightened in the air. I feel really safe up there, really safe, otherwise I wouldn't do it.

2.19 Interviewer How do you feel when you fly?

Anne I love it. I really love flying. I like going to different places, it doesn't matter how long it takes. I just love flying.

Interviewer What do you least like about flying?

Anne The meals on the plane, that's what I don't like about flying.

Interviewer Have you ever had a frustrating experience when you were flying?

Anne Yes, I did actually. Last year, but it wasn't actually on the plane, it was beforehand. I had too much luggage at Delhi airport and they wouldn't let me on the plane and they were trying to say that I had to pay a lot of money. But eventually I bribed somebody.

Interviewer How do you feel when you fly?

Jordan I love flying. I do.

Interviewer What do you least like about flying?

Jordan I don't like turbulence a lot because when it shakes it makes me a little nervous. But I like flying because you're isolated and you can't use your cell phone or anything I like that.

Interviewer Have you ever had a frustrating experience when you were flying?

Jordan Yeah, one time they lost my baggage, so I had to spend my holiday without my luggage.

Interviewer How do you feel when you fly?

Jeff Predominantly comfortable, I think it's a state of mind.

Interviewer What do you least like about flying?

Jeff That I'm not in control of the situation that I'm in, that I'm putting my safety in somebody else's hands.

Interviewer Have you ever had a frustrating experience when you were flying?

Jeff Air travel, security-wise is very frustrating – not being able to take things on a plane and the huge queues at the airports

Interviewer How do you feel when you fly?

Ben Safe, I mean I have no problems with travelling at all. Security checks are a bit annoying, but it's a kind of necessary evil, I suppose.

Interviewer What do you least like about flying?

Ben Probably either the leg room or the food. They're probably the two worst.

Interviewer Have you ever had a frustrating experience when you were flying?

Ben A stopover in Chicago for quite a while, a few years ago but nothing major, no.

3.1 Interviewer How did you become the pickpocket consultant for Oliver Twist?

John Well, I'm the director of a company which supplies magicians for live events, and for TV and films. Roman Polanski, the director of the film, he was looking for someone to train the actors – the young boys – to teach them to be pickpockets. He wanted them to be able to pick pockets so fast and so skilfully that it would look like they'd been doing it for years, so that they would look like professional pickpockets. So anyway, the film company got in touch with my company, and then I flew to Prague where they were shooting the film, to meet Polanski.

Interviewer What happened when you met him?

John Well, he didn't give me a normal interview. He just asked me to steal his watch, without him noticing.

Interviewer And did you?

John Yes, I did. So he gave me the job!

Interviewer How long did it take the boys to learn to pick pockets?

John Not very long. They learned really quickly. To be a good pickpocket you need confidence and children have that confidence. In the end, they got so good that they were stealing from everybody on the film set, even from me. I started to feel a bit like Fagin myself.

Interviewer So what's the trick of being a pickpocket?

John The real trick is to make people notice some things but not others. Some magicians call it 'misdirection', but I call it 'direction' – you have to direct people towards what you want them to see, and of course away from what you don't want them to see. Let me show you. What do you have in your jeans pockets?

Interviewer Er just keys.

John Can you show me them?

Interviewer Wow! That's amazing! You've stolen my wallet ... and my pen. I really didn't notice a thing...

John That's the trick you see. All I had to do was to direct your attention to your jeans pocket and your keys, and you forgot about your jacket pocket and your wallet.

Interviewer That's incredible. I mean I was prepared – I knew you were going to try to steal from me. And I still didn't see you. So if someone wasn't prepared, it would be even easier.

John That's right. If you know where people are looking, you also know where they're not looking. So for example if someone comes up to you in the street with a map and asks you where something is, they make you look at the map, and perhaps while you're doing that they're stealing your wallet or your phone from your back pocket.

Interviewer Tourists are especially at risk from pickpockets, aren't they?

John Yes, and that's because pickpockets know exactly what they're going to look at, which is usually a building or a monument. For example, take tourists in London. When they come out of Westminster tube station, the first thing people do is look up at Big Ben. And when they look up, it's easy for pickpockets to do their work. And of course, thieves love the posters in the tube that warn people to be careful with their belongings – you know the ones that say 'Watch out! Pickpockets about!' As soon as men read that, they immediately put their hand on the pocket that their wallet is in, to make sure it's still there. The pickpockets see that and so they know exactly where it is.

Interviewer Well, I'm sure that information will be very helpful to everyone and especially to tourists. John Freedman, thank you very much for talking to us this afternoon.

John You're welcome.

3.6 I was at work when I heard the news on TV. It had been pouring with rain for several days and I could see that the River Vltava was swollen. Now it appeared that there was a real danger that the river would overflow. All of us who lived or worked near the river were being advised to get out and move to a place of safety. My office is in the centre of Prague only a hundred metres from the river bank and I live in a flat in a small town just a few kilometres north of Prague, right on the banks of the River Vltava, so I was in danger both at work and at home.

My wife and baby were at my flat, so I did the sensible thing and went home immediately. I packed my wife and my child into the car and I drove them to her parents' house. They would be completely safe there. So far, so good! But then I stopped being sensible, and I jumped back into the car and went back to our flat. Why did I do that? I told myself that it was because I was afraid of looters breaking into our flat and stealing things, but the truth was that I sort of felt that I wanted to be in the middle of things, to be involved in what was happening.

I stayed up all night watching the TV bulletins. They were giving regular reports on how fast the water level was rising at various places throughout the Czech Republic. There was a journalist reporting from just down the road from where I was, north of Prague, so I could sit in my sitting room and watch the danger increase as the minutes passed, but I still didn't move. I suppose I had a kind of perverse desire to be the last person to leave our block of flats. I could hear cars starting up and setting off all evening, and from time to time I looked out at our car park and I could see that it was almost empty.

At about three in the morning, my car was the only one left in the car park and my nerves gave out – or maybe I just came to my senses, because I finally decided to get into the car and escape. The roads towards Prague were flooded, so I decided to try to get to a relative's house which was a few kilometres away in the opposite direction, away from the river. I tried various escape routes but even these roads were impassable now. I was about to give up – I thought I'd left it too late. On my last attempt, I drove until I met another car which was blocking the road. The road ahead was flooded, but the driver of the other car was wading into the water to see how deep it was. He said he thought he could make it, so I decided to follow him. The water was rising quickly now, but he drove really really slowly through the water and I felt a bit impatient. Anyway, he managed to get through the water safely. I followed him, but I went much more quickly. Water was coming into the car under the door, and the engine made a funny noise like a cough a couple of times, but I got through and finally arrived safely at my relative's house.

I was one of the lucky ones. My office escaped the flood and my flat wasn't damaged at all as it's on the third floor. But the poor people who lived on the ground floor – their flats were very badly damaged. They had been completely under water.

3.8 More and more of us are trying to do our bit for the environment. But would you go as far as Barbara Haddrill?

Six years ago, Barbara from Powys in Wales, decided to make big changes to her lifestyle because she was worried about climate change, especially about the amount of carbon dioxide emissions that she herself was producing. So she stopped driving, and she started buying organic food from local shops and using a wood fire to heat her home.

But then Barbara was invited to be a bridesmaid at her best friend's wedding in Australia. The flight to Australia takes 24 hours and produces a huge amount of carbon dioxide emissions. But she really wanted to go to the wedding. So now she had a terrible dilemma. To fly or not to fly?

Instead of flying, Barbara decided to travel to Australia overland! She travelled by train and bus through Russia, China, Vietnam, Thailand, then by boat to Singapore, and finally to Australia. The epic journey took her nearly two months. Fortunately, Barbara works part-time at the Centre for Alternative Technology and they were happy to give her such a long holiday.

3.9 But... how much has Barbara really done to help the planet? Let's compare the two journeys. Barbara's trip cost her £2,000. She travelled 14,004 miles, and it took her 51 days. The total amount of CO₂ emissions her trip produced was 1.65 tonnes. If she'd travelled by plane, it would have cost her a quarter of the price, only £450. She would have travelled 10,273 miles, and it would have taken her just 25 hours. But the CO₂ emissions would have been 2.7 tonnes.

So yes, Barbara's overland journey did produce less carbon dioxide. On the other hand, of course, if she hadn't gone at all, she wouldn't have produced any emissions. So, what do you think of Barbara's trip? We would be very interested in hearing your comments. You can email us at newsday@radio24.co.uk.

3.10 We spend an awful long time in our cars. The average driver spends nearly an hour and a half a day in the car, so obviously the risks involved in driving are something we should take very seriously.

Driving gets a lot of bad publicity and there are a lot of myths about how dangerous it is – but the fact is that, kilometre for kilometre, it is riskier to be a pedestrian or a jogger than to drive a car, or ride a motorbike for that matter. We are also more likely to be injured at work or at home than we are driving a car.

But accidents do happen and the reason why a lot of them happen is because people break the rules. In fact 50% of all fatal accidents occur because someone has broken the law. The most frequent reason is breaking the speed limit and the second most frequent is drunk driving. The third cause of fatal accidents is when a driver falls asleep, a surprising 10%.

When we drive is also a significant factor in assessing our risk of having an accident. Driving at night, for example, is four times as dangerous as during the day. This is mainly because visibility is so much worse at night. By day a driver's visibility is roughly 500 metres, but at night driving with headlights it is much worse, maybe as little as 120 metres.

What are the most dangerous times and days to be on the road? Well, between 2.00 and 3.00 a.m. on a Saturday morning is the most dangerous time of the week, when you are most likely to have a fatal accident. So if possible, try to stay off the road then.

The time of day when you are most likely to have a non-fatal accident is Friday afternoon between 4.00 and 6.00 p.m. This is when people are finishing work for the week and it is a time when drivers need to concentrate especially hard. Curiously, Tuesday is the safest day of the week to be on the road.

Which brings us onto where accidents happen. Most fatal accidents happen on country roads, so highways or freeways (what you call A-roads or motorways) are much safer. Also 70% of fatal accidents happen within 30 or 40 kilometres of where we live. Why should that be? The answer seems to be that we concentrate less when we are in familiar territory.

And finally let's look at who has accidents. Another myth about driving is that women are worse drivers than men. While it's true that kilometre for kilometre women have more minor accidents than men, a man is twice as likely to be killed in a car accident as a woman. Men take too many unnecessary risks when they're driving. Women are more careful and cautious drivers.

But the most important factor of all is age. A driver aged between 17 and 24 has double the risk of an older driver. Which is why a lot of people would like to see the age limit for having a driving licence raised to 21.

3.12 Interviewer And this afternoon on Around Britain we are visiting an unusual little nursery school in a village in southern England. What makes this school different is that whatever the weather's like, the 20 children spend most of their day not in a classroom, but playing outside. Sue Palmer is the head of the nursery. Hello Sue.

Sue Hello.

Interviewer Sue, do the children really spend all day outside?

Sue Yes, even in the winter, and even if it's raining.

They only come inside for breaks, so they probably spend about 90% of their day outside. We think this is a much better way of teaching children than by shutting them up in classrooms all day.

Interviewer What kind of things do children learn from being outside?

Sue They can learn about the world by doing things. We have a large field next to the nursery so they are in the field all day – playing, exploring, experimenting. They learn about how plants and trees grow, they can learn about insects. They can learn about the danger of fire by sitting around a real fire. They can climb trees and walk on logs...

Interviewer And don't you think that this is a bit dangerous for young children? They might easily fall over, have accidents.

Sue No, no, not at all. I think that today's children are totally overprotected, they don't have enough freedom. People have forgotten just how important it is to give our children some freedom. They need to be allowed to take risks during play. My children know which plants can hurt them. They know that fire is dangerous. But nowadays schools do all they can to avoid adventure and risk.

Interviewer Why do you think schools have become so obsessed with eliminating risk?

Sue I think it's because schools and teachers are so worried nowadays that if a child has an accident of any kind, however small, that the child's parents will sue the school for thousands of pounds, and maybe put them out of business.

Interviewer Have you ever had any problem with parents?

Sue On the contrary, they are very positive indeed about the school and our teaching methods and philosophy. I've heard parents say that children who come to our school are healthier and stronger than other children – and that's in spite of being out in the rain – or maybe it's because of that. I think, and the parents agree with me, that the way we are teaching is the way that childhood should be.

Interviewer Well, thanks very much Sue, that's all we've got time for. Coming up on the show next ...

3.13 Interviewer EZ is a free runner who started the organization Urban Freeflow. Free runners use obstacles in a town or city to create movement, by running, jumping, and climbing.

Interviewer Can you do free running anywhere, I mean, for example, if you're on your way somewhere?

EZ Yeah, I mean if you wanted to, you could, you know do it anywhere, if you're on your way to work you could do it, but generally the people who practise would go to a particular spot and practise there and then move on elsewhere.

Interviewer Where do you most enjoy doing it?

EZ The most rewarding for me would be running in London, here, around the South Bank, and we'd do it in a team of maybe ten of us, and just like someone leading the way and the rest following, and just using basic obstacles, like lamp posts and walls and just moving.

Interviewer How did you first get into free running?

EZ My background is in boxing, which I did for about 20 years and I boxed at international level. And I got married and had a kid and had to just change my life around and become sensible all of a sudden. So I gave up the boxing and there was a huge void in my life, so I drifted into martial arts, which didn't really do it for me. And I was looking for the next thing to do and I saw this on TV one day, and I remember sitting in bed watching it and said 'That's what I'm looking for'.

Interviewer Tell us about the organization Urban Freeflow.

EZ Well, Urban Freeflow started out as a website, but then we devised a performance team, we have 20 athletes in the team now, eight who are very very high-profile now we're sponsored by Adidas now. We take care of all sorts of commercials and movies in that sense. We teach as well, we teach in schools, we've taught the army and police.

Interviewer What do you do with police?

EZ The police run these schemes for youth offenders, and they're trying to get them out of, you know, doing bad things. So it's seen as a very positive thing to do, it's seen as a very cool thing to do and for the youths it's very engaging, so that's what we do for them.

Interviewer What about in schools?

EZ In terms of schools, same again, there's a big problem in the UK with obesity and kids just aren't practising anything. They're not doing any PE, they're not doing any kind of sport, whereas what we do is perceived as being very cool, and unwittingly they're taking part and exercising so that seems to be a very positive thing.

3.14 Interviewer How dangerous is free running?

EZ On the face of it, what we do seems to be quite dangerous, but it doesn't touch on what we do. We're very very safety conscious, we work in movies and commercials where safety is paramount, I mean, everything we do is calculated, there's no risk-taking. If you see a big jump being done, we'd have practised that at ground level thousands of times, over and over and over. I think if anything, the key word for what we do is repetition.

Interviewer What attracted you especially about free running? Was it the risk element?

EZ To a degree, the risk element played a part, but it was more about the sense of freedom, the way to be able move within your environment with no limitations, you know, you don't need any equipment to take part, no skateboard, or no BMX, you can just, a pair of trainers and I'm ready to go, that was the real draw for me, just the freedom aspect.

Interviewer Have you had many accidents since you've been doing it?

EZ If you're practising this sport, you will pick up the odd scrapes here and there, you'll get blisters on your hands calluses, which is normal. You might get the odd sprained ankle. Personally, I fell out of a tree once, and fell on my head, which wasn't very nice and I had to go to hospital here.

Interviewer Is free running really something that anyone can do?

EZ It helps if you have a background in some kind of sport, but it isn't essential, you can start from being a complete beginner. Gymnastics would help, but you could be just someone who plays football, or does a bit of running and pick it up straight away. As long as you start out very small-scale, take your time, there's no problem.

3.16 Interviewer Have you ever done any high-risk sports or activities?

Agne Yeah, I've done skiing.

Interviewer What was it like?

Agne It was pretty difficult because it's difficult to coordinate. So it was scary and it was funny, and it was just making a fool of myself.

Interviewer Have you ever done any high-risk sports or activities?

Anne Not really, no, except for potholing, but that was in my younger days.

Interviewer What was it like?

Anne I wouldn't say it was particularly high-risk, but it was a very enjoyable experience.

Interviewer Is there anything you'd like to try?

Anne I've always wanted to try skiing. I've never done it, but I think that would be exciting – to go skiing and to go down the mountains free and what have you, but I think I'm a bit old now.

Interviewer Have you ever done any high-risk sports or activities?

Mark Yeah, I've jumped out of a plane.

Interviewer What was it like?

Mark Oh, it was awesome. You see the ground below you and the plane door opens and you're suddenly ... the distance goes like from there to there as soon as the door opens you're suddenly, you know, you're hurtling towards the ground, you know, at a couple of hundred miles an hour or whatever. And your chute opens and you get sucked back up into the sky. It's kinda cool.

Interviewer Have you ever done any high-risk sports or activities?

Ray I've climbed, I've caved, I've white-water rafted down the Zambezi. Do they count?

4.3 Yossi and Kevin soon realized that going by river was a big mistake. The river got faster and faster, and soon they were in rapids.

The raft was swept down the river at an incredible speed until it hit a rock. Kevin managed to swim to land, but Yossi was swept away by the rapids.

But Yossi didn't drown. He came up to the surface several kilometres downriver. By an incredible piece of luck he found their backpack floating in the river. The backpack contained a little food, insect repellent, a lighter, and most important of all ... the map. The two friends were now separated by a canyon and six or seven kilometres of jungle.

4.4 Kevin was feeling desperate. He didn't know if Yossi was alive or dead, but he started walking downriver to look for him. He felt responsible for what had happened to his friend. Yossi, however, was feeling very optimistic. He was sure that Kevin would look for him so he started walking upriver calling his friend's name. But nobody answered. At night Yossi tried to sleep but he felt terrified. The jungle was full of noises. Suddenly he woke up because he heard a branch breaking. He turned on his flash light. There was a jaguar staring at him...

Yossi was trembling with fear. But then he remembered something that he once saw in a film. He used the cigarette lighter to set fire to the insect repellent spray and he managed to scare the jaguar away.

4.5 After five days alone, Yossi was exhausted and starving. Suddenly, as he was walking, he saw a footprint on the trail – it was a hiking boot. It had to be Kevin's footprint! He followed the trail until he discovered another footprint. But then he realized, to his horror, that it was the same footprint and that it wasn't Kevin's. It was his own. He had been walking around in a circle. Suddenly Yossi realized that he would never find Kevin. He felt sure that Kevin must be dead. Yossi felt depressed and on the point of giving up.

4.6 But Kevin wasn't dead. He was still looking for Yossi. But after nearly a week he was weak and exhausted from lack of food and lack of sleep. He decided that it was time to forget Yossi and try to save himself. He had just enough strength left to hold onto a log and let himself float down the river.

Kevin was incredibly lucky – he was rescued by two Bolivian hunters in a canoe. The men only hunted in that part of the rainforest once a year, so if they had been there a short time earlier or later, they would never have seen Kevin. They took him back to the town of San José and he spent two days recovering.

4.7 As soon as Kevin felt well enough, he went to a Bolivian Army base and asked them to look for Yossi. The army were sure that Yossi must be dead, but in the end Kevin persuaded them to take him up in a plane and fly over the part of the rainforest where Yossi could be. It was a hopeless search. The plane had to fly too high and the forest was too dense. They couldn't see anything at all. Kevin felt terribly guilty. He was convinced that it was all his fault that Yossi was going to die in the jungle.

Kevin's last hope was to pay a local man with a boat to take him up the river to look for his friend.

4.8 By now, Yossi had been on his own in the jungle for nearly three weeks. He hadn't eaten for days. He was starving, exhausted and slowly losing his mind. It was evening. He lay down by the side of the river ready for another night alone in the jungle. Suddenly he heard the sound of a bee buzzing in his ear. He thought a bee had got inside his mosquito net. When he opened his eyes he saw that the buzzing noise wasn't a bee...

It was a boat. Yossi was too weak to shout, but Kevin had already seen him. It was a one-in-a-million chance, but Yossi was saved.

When Yossi had recovered, he and Kevin flew to the city of La Paz and they went directly to the hotel where they had agreed to meet Marcus and Karl. But Marcus and Karl were not there. The two men had never arrived back in the town of Apolo. The Bolivian army organized a search of the rainforest, but Marcus and Karl were never seen again.

4.14 In life we sometimes have disagreements with people. It could be with your partner, with your boss, with your parents, or with a friend. When this happens, the important thing is to try not to let a calm discussion turn into a heated argument. But of course this is easier said than done.

The first thing I would say is that the way you begin the conversation is very important.

Imagine you are a student and you share a flat with another student who you think isn't doing her share of the housework. If you say, 'Look, you never do your share of the housework. What are we going to do about it?', the discussion will very soon turn into an argument. It's much more constructive to say something like, 'I think we'd better have another look about how we divide up the housework. Maybe there's a better way of doing it.'

My second piece of advice is simple. If you're the person who is in the wrong, just admit it! This is the easiest and best way to avoid an argument. Just apologize to your flatmate, your parents, or your husband, and move on. The other person will have more much respect for you in the future if you do that.

The next tip is don't exaggerate. Try not to say things like 'You always come home late when my mother comes to dinner' when perhaps this has only happened twice, or 'You never remember to buy the toothpaste.' This will just make the other person think you're being unreasonable, and will probably make him or her stop listening to your arguments.

Sometimes we just can't avoid a discussion turning into an argument. But if you do start arguing with someone, it is important to keep things under control and there are ways to do this.

The most important thing is don't raise your voice. Raising your voice will just make the other person lose their temper too. If you find yourself raising your voice, stop for a moment and take a deep breath. Say 'I'm sorry I shouted, but this is very important to me', and continue calmly. If you can talk calmly and quietly, you'll find your partner will be more ready to think about what you are saying.

It is also very important to stick to the point. Try to keep to the topic you are talking about. Don't bring up old arguments, or try to bring in other issues. Just concentrate on solving the one problem you are having, and leave the other things for another time. So, for example, if you're arguing about the housework, don't start talking about mobile phone bills as well.

And my final tip is that if necessary call 'Time out', like in a sports match. If you think that an argument is getting out of control, then you can say to the other person, 'Listen, I'd rather talk about this tomorrow when we've both calmed down'. You can then continue the discussion the next day when perhaps both of you are feeling less tense and angry. That way there is much more chance that you will be able to reach an agreement. You'll also probably find that the problem is much easier to solve when you've both had a good night's sleep. Well, those are my tips.

But I want to say one last important thing. Some people think that arguing is always bad. This is not true. Conflict is a normal part of life, and dealing with conflict is an important part of any relationship, whether it's three people sharing a flat, a married couple, or just two good friends. If you don't learn to argue properly, then when a real problem comes along, you won't be prepared to face it together. Think of the smaller arguments as training sessions. Learn how to argue cleanly and fairly. It will help your relationship become stronger and last longer.

4.17 Presenter And welcome to tonight's edition of Use your senses. First with us we have Joanna and Steve from Stepney.

Joanna Hi.
Steve Hello.

Presenter Now, the blindfold's on – you can't see anything, can you?

Joanna and Steve No, nothing at all.

Presenter Right so first the mystery drink.

Remember you can smell it but you can't taste it... starting... now!

Joanna It doesn't really smell of anything.

Steve It smells fruity to me, not very strong but definitely fruity.

Joanna Yeah, it smells a bit like orange juice but sweeter.

Steve It could be (beep) then. Let's say that then, (beep).

Presenter OK so now the food. This you can taste, but you can't see of course... ready... now!

Joanna Well, it's meat, isn't it? It tastes a bit like chicken, but I don't think it is chicken.

Steve I don't think I've had it before – the texture isn't quite like chicken – it tastes quite light, I don't think it's duck...

Presenter You've got ten more seconds...

Joanna It must be (beep). Let's go for (beep).

Steve OK.

Presenter Now the object.

Steve It feels like a coin.

Joanna Can I feel it? Yes, it definitely feels metallic, but it's completely smooth – it doesn't seem to have any markings – oh, it's got two tiny little holes in the middle. I know, it's a (beep).

Steve That's it.

Presenter So now we're going to take off the blindfolds – there we are.

Joanna and Steve Thanks / That's better.

Presenter And now to the sound effect. I'm going to play you a sound and you've got to decide what it is you're hearing. Remember you can hear it twice only. Ready? Now...

Steve It sounds like thunder to me.

Joanna Well, maybe, but it sounds very distant.

Could it be a train?

Steve No, I think it's something natural, you know not a machine. Can we hear it again, please?

Presenter Of course.

Steve Yes, I think it's (beep). What do you think?

Joanna Could be. I'll go with that.

Presenter Right. Time's up. So now, the moment of truth. Did Steve and Joanna get it right?

Remember you need all the answers right to win today's prize. Our assistant Vanessa will give us the answers, a round of applause for Vanessa.

4.23 Interviewer Trevor White is a Canadian actor. Can you tell us a bit about the kind of acting you do?

Trevor There isn't much I don't do, I guess, as far as acting goes. There's theatre, obviously, film work, television work, sometimes commercials and even voice-over work, which is for radio or for television or even sometimes animated shows where you lend your voice to those as well. So, I've rarely said 'no' to an acting job.

Interviewer Did you always want to be an actor?

Trevor Well, it's something that I always loved to do, act, as a kid in high school, in school plays, and in my spare time, just playing around with friends. You know, acting and improvising and that kind of thing. But I don't think I ever believed that I could ... or ever took it seriously to act as a profession for the rest of my life. So I went in to university and took economics as a more practical thing to do, but I didn't really enjoy it, I guess and ultimately, after university, I started taking some acting classes and really enjoyed that. And then started doing student films and fringe theatre and unpaid work just to get experience in acting and loved it and then started doing it more seriously and got an agent and started getting proper acting jobs and that was about 13 years ago.

Interviewer What's the most difficult thing about preparing for a new role?

Trevor It really depends. When you do a play for example, you have three, four, sometimes even six weeks to rehearse with the other people and the director and the props and everything, so you have a long time to learn your lines, to as it were find the character. The memorization is the most like real work, that can be difficult, you know, just memorizing lots of lines. In film and television you don't have the benefit of rehearsal. You just show up and you're expected to know all your lines and you just do it a few times and that's it. So you have to be very disciplined and get all that ready in advance.

Interviewer How do you learn your lines?

Trevor I have a Dictaphone actually, which I just record the other people's lines, obviously in my voice, I don't do strange character voices because that would be weird, and, you know I just say their line, I stop it, I say my line, I play the next lines, so you just basically record all the other lines in any given scene and play it back and just work through it slowly. It's amazing the difference it makes when the writing is good and it makes sense. It's much easier to memorize. But if sometimes you audition for a bad science fiction TV show or a horror movie or something, you often have a much harder time memorizing poorly written lines, because they're just bad. But of course it's your job so you do it.

4.24 Interviewer Is there any role you've particularly enjoyed?

Trevor There's a few roles that I've played or oftentimes when you do something it's the whole experience of a job, not necessarily just the part you have in it. Earlier this year, I got to work for the Royal Shakespeare Company for the first time and we did Coriolanus, one of Shakespeare's lesser performed plays, in Stratford, in Washington in America, also in Newcastle here in the United Kingdom and in Madrid in Spain for five months, which was amazing.

Interviewer What's the most difficult role that you've ever had to play?

Trevor Well, I suppose, this last role that I played is one of the most difficult parts, Tullus Aufidius in Coriolanus, because there were lots of things that were very demanding about the part. We had to do a huge sword and axe fight in the middle of the play. Which ... I'd done stage combat before, but never anything like this. We were using actual ... I mean they were blunt swords and axes, but they were still very large pieces of metal. And we had a couple of small accidents, but no major ones luckily I gave the other guy three stitches on his fingers at one point when he parried in the wrong place – that's my opinion anyway.

Interviewer Do you prefer working in the theatre or in film and TV?

Trevor I think theatre is the most satisfying work in acting oftentimes, because you get to do it over and over again in front of a live audience, but it doesn't tend to pay as well as film and television, which is also fun, but not as glamorous as people might think it is, I guess.

Interviewer So being an actor isn't really glamorous?

Trevor No, I don't think acting is a glamorous life, particularly, well I guess in any way. In theatre it's you now, you don't really earn that much money and you work hard. Yeah, and film and television work is, you know, can be a lot of fun, you can get to work with some famous people sometimes or some very talented people that you admire and that's a thrilling thing and you get to shoot guns or, you know, go on car chases and all those things are really fun, but most of the time, the 90% of the day, even when you're doing exciting things, you're just sitting and waiting around, you're always waiting around, they're always fixing lights, setting up new camera positions, trying to figure out who's going where when and it takes ... To film a proper feature film takes months and maybe in all that time only two or three of those days all told is actually you doing anything. So yeah, I think a lot of people get into extra work and stuff because they think this will be really glamorous, but you end up reading a book for about 9 hours a day. And I've never been on a red carpet so I suppose I can't judge. That looks glamorous.

4.26 Interviewer Have you ever acted?

Ben I was in a music video once, and that's about as far as I've gone. But I mean, I'm a musician so I kind of appear on stage quite a lot.

Interviewer How does it make you feel?

Ben I suppose nervous at first but then you settle in and within a couple of minutes and before you know it you kind of lose any awareness of kind of any external factors or anything like that. And you're not aware of anything else outside of this kind of bubble that you've kind of managed to transport yourself into.

Interviewer Have you ever acted?

Louise Yes, I was in the Royal Shakespeare Company up in my area and did a few plays and a few musicals and I'm a specialist make-up artist, so I kind of work with actors, doing all their make-up, zombies and that.

Interviewer What do you like about it?

Louise The buzz of it, being able to be someone else in front of people – just being someone else is good.

Interviewer Have you ever acted?

Mike Yes, I have. I'm studying acting now. I'm a student studying theatre and music. Er, I've been in a few things, when I was little, when I was a little boy and I was, I've been in a few shows around London, things like that. But I plan to go further.

Interviewer How does it make you feel?

Mike I love it. I think it's really great. Because you don't have to be yourself for once. You're onstage and you can just be whoever your character is meant to be. And you can just sort of get taken away into this other world and you can get really into it. That's what I really like about acting.

Interviewer Have you ever acted?

Cherry I'm in like a drama youth group so a couple of plays I've been in, things like Bugsy Malone and the Wizard of Oz. A modernized one and stuff.

Interviewer How does it make you feel?

Cherry Yeah, it is nerve-wracking just as you're about to go on, but apart from that, once you're on it's fine.

Interviewer Have you ever acted?

Ray Possibly not since I was at school.

Interviewer How did it make you feel?

Ray Very nervous beforehand, very apprehensive beforehand and then quite excited when it all went well, yes.

5.2 I think it's very interesting that human beings are the only animals which listen to music for pleasure. A lot of research has been done to find out why we listen to music, and there seem to be three main reasons. Firstly, we listen to music to make us remember important moments in the past, for example when we met someone for the first time. Think of Humphrey Bogart in the film Casablanca saying 'Darling, they're playing our song'. When we hear a certain piece of music, we remember hearing it for the first time in some very special circumstances. Obviously, this music varies from person to person.

Secondly, we listen to music to help us to change activities. If we want to go from one activity to another, we often use music to help us to make the change. For example, we might play a certain kind of music to prepare us to go out in the evening, or we might play another kind of music to relax us when we get home from work. That's mainly why people listen to music in cars, and they often listen to one kind of music when they're going to work and another kind when they're coming home. The same is true of people on buses and trains with their iPods. The third reason why we listen to music is to intensify the emotion that we're feeling. For example, if we're feeling sad, sometimes we want to get even sadder, so we play sad music. Or we're feeling angry and we want to intensify the anger then we play angry music. Or when we're planning a romantic dinner, we lay the table, we light candles, and then we think what music would make this even more romantic?

5.3 Let's take three important human emotions: happiness, sadness, and anger. When people are happy they speak faster, and their voice is higher. When they are sad they speak more slowly and their voice is lower, and when people are angry they raise their voices or shout. Babies can tell whether their mother is happy or not simply by the sound of her voice, not by her words. What music does is it copies this, and it produces the same emotions. So faster, higher-pitched music will sound happy. Slow music with lots of falling pitches will sound sad. Loud music with irregular rhythms will sound angry. It doesn't matter how good or bad the music is, if it has these characteristics it will make you experience this emotion.

Let me give you some examples. For happy, for example, the first movement of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony. For angry, say Mars, from The Planets by Holst. And for sad, something like Albinoni's Adagio for strings.

Of course the people who exploit this most are the people who write film soundtracks. They can take a scene which visually has no emotion and they can make the scene either scary or calm or happy just by the music they write to go with it. Think of the music in the shower scene in Hitchcock's film Psycho. All you can see is a woman having a shower, but the music makes it absolutely terrifying.

5.10 And finally on News Today the amazing story of a teenager who woke up this morning and discovered that she wasn't in bed – she was lying on top of a 40-metre-high crane! In the early hours of this morning a man on his way to work was passing a building site in Dulwich, south-east London when he spotted the 15-year-old girl lying on the arm of the crane. He immediately called the police on his mobile phone. The police and fire brigade arrived on the scene at 1.30 and at first they were worried that the girl might be intending to commit suicide by throwing herself off the crane. But when a fireman climbed up the crane, he could see that the girl was asleep.

The fireman realized that it could be very dangerous if the girl woke up suddenly. So he crawled along the 21-metre arm of the crane and carefully wrapped the girl in a safety harness before waking her up gently. The girl had a mobile phone with her and the fireman was able to call her parents, who came to the building site straight away. Finally, the girl was brought down from the crane on a ladder. The whole rescue operation had taken two and a half hours. Her parents were waiting for her on the ground and obviously they were very relieved to see her safe and well. The question everyone wanted to know was 'why did the girl go to sleep on the top of a crane?' Well, the answer is that she had been sleepwalking! She had walked out of her house during the night without her parents noticing and sleepwalked to the building site. There was a security guard but he didn't see her climbing the crane because he was watching TV. The girl's parents told the police that this wasn't the first time that she had sleepwalked but that she had never left the house before.

5.11 Presenter Now I imagine some of you are finding this story a bit difficult to believe, so I've invited into the studio Professor Miller, who is an expert in sleepwalking. Professor Miller, does this story surprise you?

Professor Not at all. I have treated people who have driven cars, ridden horses and I had one man who even tried to fly a helicopter while he was asleep.

Presenter But how did this girl manage to climb a 40-metre crane?

Professor It would have been no problem for her. She would climb the crane just as easily as if she were awake.

Presenter And would her eyes have been open?

Professor Yes, sleepwalkers usually have their eyes open. That's why sometimes it's difficult to know if someone is sleepwalking or not.

Presenter Is sleepwalking very common?

Professor Yes. Research shows that about 18% of the population have a tendency to sleepwalk. In fact, it's much more common in children than in teenagers or adults. And curiously it's more common among boys than girls. Adults who sleepwalk are normally people who used to sleepwalk when they were children. Adult sleepwalking often happens after a stressful event, for example, after a road accident.

Presenter People always say that you should never wake a sleepwalker up when they're walking. Is that true?

Professor No, it isn't. People used to think that it was dangerous to wake up a sleepwalker. But in fact this isn't the case. You can wake a sleepwalker up without any problem, although if you do, it is quite common for the sleepwalker to be confused, so he or she probably won't know where they are for a few moments.

Presenter So if we see someone sleepwalking, should we wake them up?

Professor Yes, you should remember that another of the myths about sleepwalkers is that they cannot injure themselves while they are sleepwalking. But this isn't true. If a sleepwalker is walking around the house, they can trip or fall over a chair or even fall down stairs. The other day there was a case of a nine-year-old girl who opened her bedroom window while sleepwalking and fell ten metres to the ground. Luckily, she wasn't seriously injured. So you see it is definitely safer to wake a sleepwalker up.

Presenter How long does sleepwalking last?

Professor It can be very brief, for example, a few minutes. The most typical cases are people getting up and getting dressed, or people going to the bathroom. But it can occasionally last much longer, maybe half an hour or even more.

Presenter And what happens when sleepwalkers wake up? Do they remember the things they did while they were sleepwalking?

Professor No, a sleepwalker usually doesn't remember anything afterwards. So, for example, the girl who climbed up the crane will probably have no memory of the incident.

Presenter So, is a sleepwalker responsible for his or her actions?

Professor A very good question, actually. A few years ago a man from Canada got up in the middle of the night and drove 20 kilometres from his home to the house where his parents-in-law lived and, for no apparent reason, he killed his mother-in-law. The man was charged with murder but he was found not guilty because he had been asleep at the time he committed the crime.

5.15 The best thing about my job is that I get to go to the best restaurants in England and sometimes abroad, and I don't get a bill at the end of the evening. I get the chance to eat the most wonderful, exquisite food in restaurants that I wouldn't normally be able to afford and I can order the most expensive dishes and wines without worrying about what it's costing me.

The other great side of the job is that I can take a friend with me so it's a good way of catching up with old friends who I may not have seen for a while. And everyone loves a free meal in a posh restaurant so I rarely have to eat on my own.

The downside? Well, there are several. I often have to eat a lot when I'm not really hungry. To do my job properly, I have to try all the courses – you know starter, main course, dessert, and sometimes I don't feel like eating so much, but I have to do it. I also have a problem with my weight now – it's very easy to put on weight when you eat out several times a week. In fact, most restaurant critics have a weight problem. Another problem is that if I write a bad review of a meal I have, it's difficult for me to ever go to that restaurant again, because the owner of the restaurant will probably recognize me. Another disadvantage of the job is that because I do it so often, eating out has lost a lot of its attraction for me. When the weekend comes I prefer to eat at home rather than go out for a meal.

5.16 Nearly all foreign correspondents and war reporters that I've met are people who were looking for adventure. They're not the kind of people who would be happy with a nine-to-five job. They are people who got into the job precisely because it has very weird hours and involves going to difficult places. I mean to some extent the things which are difficult and potentially dangerous about the job are also the things that made you want to do the job in the first place and the reason why the job is so exciting.

Something else I really like about the job is that I work as part of a team – you sit down and have dinner together at the end of the day and talk things through with other journalists and photographers and you're talking to people who have experienced the same things as you, and seen the same things as you. And that's very important in this kind of work. One of the problems of the job is seeing a lot of horrific things and then going back home to normality. I remember a few years ago coming back from a war zone where I had been for a long time and I'd seen a lot of death and destruction and I went to a friend's wedding in London. It was a beautiful day, everyone was drinking champagne and talking about unimportant things, and I wanted to say, 'Why can't you see that there is something awful happening in the world?'

Another major worry about my job these days is the risk of being killed. Journalists used to get killed by accident, but now there are more and more cases of journalists being killed simply because they are journalists, and they are also becoming the target of kidnappers. Two of my colleagues have been kidnapped recently and a very good friend of mine was killed last year.

5.17 Interviewer Nicholas Kenyon was the director of a festival of concerts called the Proms for 12 years. How did the Proms start?

Nicholas The promenade concerts started way back in 1895 when a brilliant impresario wanted to use a newly-built concert hall in London, the Queen's Hall, for a series of popular concerts that really brought classical music to the widest possible audience. There were important classical concerts during the year, but in the summer people tended to go away, society life finished and so he had the brilliant idea of taking away all the seats on the floor of the hall, where the expensive people usually sat and letting people come in and stand there and walk around and have a very informal experience of concert-going. The name 'Proms' is an abbreviation of 'Promenade concerts' and it basically means that people are able to walk around and stand during the music

Interviewer How long do the Proms last?

Nicholas The Proms lasts for two months in the summer, from the middle of July to the middle of September and during that period there's one concert every day. Two concerts on many days, three concerts on some days. So it's a very very intense period of music-making and people buy season tickets in order to be able to attend all of the concerts, whether they do or not, very few people attend actually all of them, except me, and they come and they queue during the day in order to get the best places in the floor of the hall where they stand.

Interviewer World-class musicians perform at the Proms for much lower fees than they would expect to receive. Why do you think that is?

Nicholas I think the Proms has an absolutely unique atmosphere that's what orchestras and conductors and performers who come here say. And so people do want to come and perform. What you get at the Proms is a wonderful mixture of total informality and total concentration. So that although people don't dress up to come to the Proms, they behave how they want, they actually absolutely listen to the music and that is a feature that so many conductors and orchestras really comment on – the level of concentration is absolutely amazing.

5.18 Interviewer There must have been many truly memorable concerts during your time as director of the Proms – Could you tell us about one of them?

Nicholas The death of Princess Diana was particularly difficult because of course she lived just across the road in Kensington Palace from where the Proms happened in the Royal Albert Hall. We changed some programmes to make them more appropriate. On the day of her funeral, we put in Fauré's Requiem to the programme. Very oddly we had programmed two or three requiems in that last two weeks of the season and they fitted very very well. We then lost another major figure of the musical world, the conductor Sir Georg Solti who was to have conducted the Verdi Requiem on the last Friday of the season and he had been a very good friend of Princess Diana and indeed had rung me up just after Diana's death to say that he wanted to dedicate this Verdi Requiem to her memory. As it turned out, he died just a week later and so another conductor, Colin Davies, took over that Verdi Requiem and dedicated it to both of them and it was a fantastically charged atmosphere in the hall. I can't remember such an electric occasion as that.

Interviewer I understand there was also another spooky coincidence in the programme at the time of Diana's death? Could you tell us about it?

Nicholas A wonderful American composer called John Adams had written an absolutely wonderful piece which we were going to do on the last night of the Proms in 1997. Unfortunately, I mean it could have been called absolutely anything this piece, it's a whirling abstract piece of fanfare music. Unfortunately he had called it Short ride in a fast machine. And so it was perfectly obvious from the first moment that we had to take that piece out and change the programme.

Interviewer Are there any embarrassing or amusing experiences you remember?

Nicholas One of the things that was a real challenge to the Proms was the arrival of the mobile phone, because in the beginning people didn't know how to use them, when to switch them off and the Albert Hall is a very very big space and mobile phones would go off in concerts and it could be very embarrassing. Usually, because they were in the middle of the music, conductors just ignored them and people got embarrassed and switched them off. But there was one particular incident that was just so awful because Stravinsky's The Rite of Spring starts with a very very exposed quiet bassoon solo and Simon Rattle and the Berlin Philharmonic making one of their first appearances together at the Proms had just begun that piece when a mobile phone went off very loudly in the stalls and Simon Rattle stopped the bassoonist and turned round and glared at this person in the stalls and there was a round of applause and everything. So anyway, it restarted and the performance was a spectacular success and it was wonderful. But this was such an incident, that he had actually stopped it, that it became the subject of a lot of media attention and there were paragraphs in the papers and I had to go and be interviewed the next day at home for a Radio 4 programme about mobile phones going off in concerts, and in the middle of this interview, my own phone went off and it's a wonderfully classic little bit of tape. My embarrassment at the same thing happening to me.

5.20 Interviewer Have you ever been to a music festival?

Anne Isle of Wight in the 70s.

Interviewer What was it like?

Anne There were weeks and thousands of people just chilling out doing whatever you wanted to do. And it was just great fun – there was music, dancing, a great memory actually.

Interviewer Have you ever been to a music festival?

Jordan Yes, we have a rock festival back home in Ohio that we go to, a lot of my friends and I go to.

Interviewer What's it like?

Jordan I don't know what it's called but it's just like a whole bunch of alternative music, it's like two days long and you all go and it's just a fun time – all outside. There's a ton of people and they're all usually younger, from like college age usually, and they have a whole bunch of stages set up, and there's just bars in different places, and you can just go and hang out and listen to some music.

Interviewer Have you ever been to a music festival?

Mike Yes, I went to Glastonbury.

Interviewer What was it like?

Mike Incredibly muddy, incredibly muddy, but great fun, absolutely so much fun, I didn't get any sleep at all, it was, so much fun.

Interviewer Have you ever been to a music festival?

Ray Yes, not for many years. When I was much younger I went to Bath, Bath Music Blues festival, I've been to Reading Music Festival. I can't remember which other ones I've been to, but yes, in the 1970s and early 80s I went to quite a few.

Interviewer What were they like?

Ray From a 57-year-old's point of view? Well, at the time they were really exciting. I can remember a long journey down to Bath, sleeping in a field, I can remember expensive food, waiting up all night to see the band that you wanted to see and then falling asleep. I can remember being taken back to sleep in somebody's tent then waking up and realizing we were in the wrong tent, and had no idea whose tent we were in the next morning. I can remember feeling slightly sort of sick and hungry all the time I was there, but yeah, it was good, it was exciting.

Interviewer Have you ever been to a music festival?

Harley No. Oh, yeah, actually. The Big Chill? Yeah, we went to the Big Chill.

Interviewer What was it like?

Harley Yeah, it was really good. I went with my dad and my sister, we went in a camper van. So we camped and yeah, it was good.

6.5

1 I was giving a talk to about two hundred people in a large hotel room in Poland. About halfway through the talk, I realized that something was flying around the room. At first I just ignored it, as I thought it was probably a bird that had come in through the window, but after a while I noticed that the women in the audience were following its movements with their eyes and were not looking very happy. It was then that I realized that it was a large bat. The next moment I could see from the audience's eyes that it was directly above my head. I'm really frightened of bats, and I just panicked. I tried to carry on, but I couldn't concentrate and I kept forgetting what I was going to say. So I hurried through the last part of the talk and then as soon as I finished, I rushed out of the room. It was awful, I'll never forget it!

2 I get invited to talk to teachers all around the world, and this time I was in Mexico giving a talk to some English teachers. Though I say it myself, I think I'm a good speaker and usually the audiences enjoy my talks and are interested in what I'm saying. But after about ten minutes, I realized that something was wrong. The audience weren't laughing at my jokes and some people were looking very unhappy. Then I saw several people get up and walk out of the hall. I just couldn't work out what was going on. I'd given a presentation there the year before and the audience had been really enthusiastic. In the end, I just stopped and asked them. 'Is anything the matter? You don't seem to be enjoying this.' And one teacher said 'Actually the problem is that you gave exactly the same talk last year, so we've heard it all before.' I didn't really know what to do at this point. I just apologized profusely and invited the people who had already heard the talk to leave, which, unfortunately, was almost everybody.

3 I was giving a presentation to a rather serious group of businessmen in Germany. They listened politely for 45 minutes, and at the end I asked for any questions. Nobody said anything. Then a young man stood up and said to me, 'Sir, you are open.' I looked down at my trousers and realized that I was.

4 I had to give a talk to some students at Imperial College in London. It's the science and technology department of London University, so I didn't think there would be any problems with the equipment. I'd seen the auditorium before and it was a nice room, good sound and screen, etc. But as soon as I began my talk, people started complaining that they couldn't see the slides – there was something wrong with the projector and the screen was too dark. So I started touching keys on my laptop, and I don't know what I did, but I managed to delete the whole presentation. So there I was with no presentation notes at all, nothing, and I had to improvise from what I could remember. It was all very embarrassing, I must say.

5 I had to give a business presentation to a company in Paris, and after I'd got there and checked into my hotel, I thought I'd go for a walk as it was such a beautiful day and I had plenty of time. My talk wasn't until one o'clock and I was well prepared. I was strolling along by the river enjoying the sunshine when I noticed that several people at the cafés were already having lunch. I thought it was a bit early for lunch and I checked my watch – it was only a quarter to twelve. And then I suddenly realized that I'd forgotten to change my watch. The UK is one hour behind France, so that meant it was in fact quarter to one. My presentation was supposed to start in 15 minutes' time. I desperately looked for a taxi to take me first back to my hotel and then to the company's offices where I was going to give the presentation. I finally arrived 20 minutes late and very stressed – and the worst thing of all was that the title of the talk I was giving was 'How to manage your time better!'

6.9 Interviewer What advice would you give to someone visiting London for the first time?

Sebastian It's often said that London is a city of villages, for example, Hampstead, even Chelsea, were all villages in the past; so take some time to get to know the village you are staying in before you start to explore the famous sights.

Interviewer What's the one thing you would say someone visiting London should do or see?

Sebastian Outdoors: walk up Parliament Hill – you get far and away the best view over the city. Indoors: the British Museum. When you see what the people of ancient times were capable of, it makes you feel humble about the achievements of our own age.

Interviewer And what's the best place to have your photo taken?

Sebastian I've always liked the classic view of the Houses of Parliament either from Westminster Bridge or from the other side of the river.

Interviewer What's your favourite landmark?

Sebastian St Paul's Cathedral. It is so hidden-away that when you catch your first sight of it, it's always a thrill. You just turn a corner and suddenly there it is.

Interviewer What's the best place to watch the sunset?

Sebastian Well, the views from the bridges are always spectacular. I imagine the London Eye, by Waterloo Bridge, would be a good spot, but I'm ashamed to say I have never been on it. And on a summer evening I like the roof garden of The Trafalgar Hotel just off Trafalgar Square – you can watch the city lights come on as the sun sets.

Interviewer What's the best place to be at dawn?

Sebastian In the summer, almost anywhere. I love the city when it's completely deserted in the early morning light. One of my favourite places to be at that time is the all-night bagel shop on Brick Lane. I love queuing on the pavement outside for a salmon and cream cheese bagel in the early morning, because then it means I must have been out all night doing something fun or interesting. But in winter the best place to be at dawn is in bed – definitely!

Interviewer What would be a good thing to do on a scorching hot day?

Sebastian Getting a boat on the Serpentine or in Battersea Park is one of my favourite things, and another of my favourite places, the London Aquarium, is somewhere where you can escape from the heat into a world of water and air conditioning.

Interviewer What's a good thing to do which is absolutely free?

Sebastian Walking in the parks. London's parks deserve their fame. I love walking in Hyde Park. It always reminds me of my childhood – I have memories of feeding the squirrels there.

Interviewer What do you think is the most romantic place in London?

Sebastian In Kensington, Knightsbridge, and Chelsea, residential squares have enclosed gardens. They're magical places at any time of day, like secret gardens, but at night you can often hear nightingales singing – they're the only birds that sing at night. It's very romantic.

6.11 Presenter And tonight on the book programme we're reviewing a book called Did you spot the gorilla? by Dr Richard Wiseman, who's an expert on creative thinking. With us tonight to talk about this book is Steven Hutchinson, a freelance journalist. So Steven, what exactly is Dr Wiseman's main message?

Steven Well, Dr Wiseman's theory is that most people don't think creatively because they concentrate so hard on the small, specific job that they are working on that they don't see the bigger picture. That's what the gorilla experiment proves.

Presenter What was the gorilla experiment?

Steven Well, a study was carried out by Daniel Simons and Christopher Chabris at Harvard University in 1999. He got volunteers to watch a 45-second film of people playing basketball. There were two teams. One team were wearing black T-shirts and the other team were wearing white ones. He gave the volunteers a simple task: they just had to count the number of passes made by the white team. Afterwards, he asked them how many passes they had counted and most people got the answer right. Then he asked them if they had seen anything unusual and at least half of them said no. And that's really amazing. Because during the film, while the two teams were playing basketball, a woman dressed as a gorilla walked onto the court and she beat her chest at the camera, and then slowly walked off the court. And half the volunteers just didn't see it!

Presenter That's incredible. Why not?

Steven Because they were so busy trying to count the passes that they didn't notice the gorilla! Dr Wiseman repeated this experiment many times and the result was always the same. In fact, he actually tried it on a group of top British scientists and not one of them saw the gorilla.

Presenter How extraordinary!

6.12 Steven The gorilla experiment is a perfect demonstration that we normally only focus on what we're looking for, and don't see outside it, so we sometimes miss really important discoveries which are right in front of us, we just don't see them. That's why when something is invented people often say, 'Why didn't anybody think of that before?' – well, they didn't because they didn't think creatively.

Presenter Dr Wiseman gives some examples of people who he says are creative thinkers, doesn't he?

Steven Yes, people like the man who invented Post-it™ notes. He was actually trying to develop a really strong kind of glue, but he could only manage to make a very weak one. But instead of just thinking, 'Oh that's no good' he actually thought of a way of using the weak glue to make Post-it™ notes, notes that would stick to something but not too much. Or the man who set up IKEA, the furniture company – I mean for years people had been wanting cheap furniture that was well designed, but nobody did it. Or the idea of cheap air travel. People just accepted that it was impossible. But then somebody said 'It is possible, and I'm going to do it'. And that's how we got low-cost airlines like easyJet™.

Presenter Can we make ourselves creative thinkers?

Steven Yes, Dr Wiseman has lots of tips on how we can become more creative. One of the things he recommends is to try to do the opposite of what you normally do. For example, he told a group of journalists to try to think of articles that nobody would find interesting – he said that from that, possibly a brilliant idea for something interesting will come up. His book is full of tips – it's really worth reading.

Presenter Has he had any 'Eureka' moments himself?

Steven Yes, actually he's thought up a great idea for book lovers. His idea is to print a book which contains the first chapters of 15 other different books. This book has a book token in the back, a voucher that you can use to buy another book. The idea is that you read the beginnings and then choose which book you want to read more of and buy it with the book token.

Presenter What a great idea! That's creative thinking for you.

6.16 Interviewer John Bigos is the managing director of London Duck Tours Limited. This company use Ducks, renovated World War II amphibious vehicles, which can travel on land and water. What makes a Duck tour better than a normal sightseeing tour?

John What makes Duck tours more interesting in terms of the tour as opposed to other tours is the ability to be able to go on the land and the river in one tour at the same time. That has a great benefit for all our clients. We also have a very small vessel which only takes 30 people and that allows you to have a much more intimate relationship with your clients, which makes it a wonderful experience, which you don't get when you go on ordinary, pre-determined computerized tours.

Interviewer Some people might say that taking tourists on such a busy river is a bit dangerous. Have you ever had any accidents?

John In terms of accidents, we have had breakdowns, that means that we have to drop the anchor in the river which is similar to having to use the brake on the land and we've had to recover both our boat and our passengers, but that fortunately is quite a rare thing, but it adds to the fact that the tour is unique and no one else can do it. It's an experience, which can include being recovered by another Duck.

Interviewer Do you ever have to rescue other people on the river?

John When we are on the river, we are one of the most frequent users of this part of the river and people will often fall or jump off Westminster Bridge, Lambeth Bridge ... or indeed Vauxhall Bridge and therefore we will be within the vicinity and will often have to rescue people who have either fallen off accidentally or deliberately tried to commit suicide, so in terms of the river it is a very serious river with a very fast-flowing tide and we treat it with the utmost respect.

Interviewer Do you have many difficult customers?

John We do have people who come in a very unprepared manner, for example a lady in a mink coat who then gets wet and she asks for the mink coat to be specifically cleaned, which would cost us a whole day's revenue, the coat was very expensive and the good news is that she was travelling abroad back to her homeland and unfortunately we were unable to get it cleaned within the time that she asked, and in the circumstances, it didn't cost us any money. So those sort of people can be difficult as well as your normal customers who either don't think they've had the service they requested or the tour was not up to a standard that they thought they would like, probably because they're afraid of water.

6.17 Interviewer What are the most popular sights?

John The most popular sights that get people really excited are Parliament Square, where we have the new Nelson Mandela statue, and that's the first statue that I'm aware of that has been erected whilst someone is still alive, and that's very exciting. Additionally we have a number of heroes in our country and Trafalgar Square with all the fountains and Nelson and Nelson's Column, really excite people, and finally we obviously have M16, which is where our vessels go into the water and it is also where films The Living Daylights and The World is not Enough started when the boat came out of a second-floor window and as a 'Duck' we replicate that in our own style.

Interviewer What are your personal favourite sights on the tour?

John I personally like the Houses of Parliament, because I think it is a beautifully designed building and it's got some very, very interesting features. I also favour the statue of Emmeline Pankhurst because that is quite interesting in so much as it was only in 1928 that women were given the vote and yet it seems so many years ago and then in terms of large sights, obviously things like Buckingham Palace and Horse Guards are very interesting as well, because of the history.

Interviewer What do you think is the best and worst thing about London for a tourist?

John I think the best thing is the fantastic variety and depth of culture that we have in our capital city here. We have over 200 different cultures and nations who live here in the centre of London, and it makes for a fantastic cosmopolitan city with so much variety that it is impossible to get bored. It is a fabulous capital to come to as a tourist.

In terms of the worst things for tourists in London, I don't think our capital has yet reached the standards of service that a lot of other cities have, where you don't get good quality food at a reasonable price on time quite often and you have a lot of delays in terms of travel and congestion and therefore there are many things that can still be done to improve the quality of service for a fantastic capital city.

6.19 Interviewer What's your favourite city?

Theresa I would have said Prague actually, but I've recently been to Stockholm a couple of times and I loved it. Stockholm is fantastic. It's built on 14 islands, lots of water, which I love, lots of interesting museums, Stockholm's lovely.

Interviewer Which city would you most like to visit?

Theresa I went to Cape Town earlier on this year and we were only there for five days and there was so much that I didn't see that I would love to go back to Cape Town and see Robben Island and some of the apartheid museums and learn more about Nelson Mandela.

Interviewer What's your favourite city?

Anne Probably Delhi, because of the difference in culture and the monuments that are there and the people, and looking at the cultural differences of how we live and how they live. And I just find everyone so nice and so friendly.

Interviewer Which city would you most like to visit?

Anne I would most like to visit Barcelona because I've heard the shopping's very good.

Interviewer What's your favourite city?

Agne It would be New York. I like the hustle and bustle and the 'busyness' and just the overall feeling of being in that city – it's just really nice, it just makes you feel really alive all the time, lots and lots of things to do and it just goes on, it just doesn't stop.

Interviewer Which city would you most like to visit?

Agne I'd like to go to Sydney, see what that's like.

Interviewer What's your favourite big city?

Matandra My favourite big city. I risk sounding partial but it would have to be my home town, it would have to be Rome. I think it's, you know, a lot of the reasons are... no need to explain. But I think it's very happening, more than people think and it's the right compromise between a laid-back lifestyle and a, you know, the positive aspects of living in a metropolis.

Interviewer Which city would you most like to visit?

Matandra Either Casablanca or a place like that. I'm just fascinated with that part of the world.

Interviewer What's your favourite city?

Harley Em. London. Because it's got all the shops. So I can come here and go shopping.

Interviewer Which city would you most like to visit?

Harley Any, really, any, I'd like to go to Australia, anywhere hot, anywhere with shops. Anywhere.

1 When I was a young man, about 17, I was working in Spain as an electrician for the German car company, Mercedes. A man from the engineering company, Bosch, visited Mercedes and he liked the way that I worked and he offered me a job in Germany. I suppose it is what you would call 'an apprenticeship'. I would have learnt to become an engineer. I really wanted to do it, but my parents didn't want me to leave home and go and work in a foreign country. In those days not many people did that. So in the end I didn't go. But I really wish that I'd taken that job because I think it would have opened doors for me and my professional life would have been more fulfilling.

2 Three years ago I was going to take part in a dance competition. I was a bit pale so I decided to go to a suntan studio the day before the competition. As I didn't have much time and I wanted to get a nice tan really quickly, I stayed under the lamp about 20 minutes. Unfortunately, that was too long and I got burnt. The top and skirt I wore the next day for the competition were really skimpy and so everyone in the audience could see how red my skin was. I felt really stupid and really wished I hadn't done it.

3 I really wish I'd been able to know my grandmother better. She died when I was 12, and since then I've discovered that she must have been a fascinating person, and there are so many things I would love to have been able to talk to her about. She was Polish but she was in Russia, in St Petersburg, during the Russian Revolution and she knew all sorts of interesting people at the time, painters, writers, people like that. I was only a child so I never asked her much about her own life. Now I'm discovering all about her through reading her old letters and papers, but I wish she had lived longer so that I could have talked to her about those times face-to-face.

4 The only thing I really regret is not having had the courage to chat up a guy who I saw at a party last summer. I really fancied him – he was very good-looking – but I just wasn't brave enough to start a conversation. I wish I'd tried. I'm absolutely positive we would have got on well. And now it's too late – he's engaged to another girl!

5 My biggest regret is how I spent my time at university. I studied English Literature, which was something I was quite interested in, but it certainly wasn't the most important thing in my life. I played a lot of sport, I played in a band, and listened to a lot of music, but I also spent most of my time either socializing or asleep. And in terms of studying, I just did the bare minimum – I read what I had to, but never anything more. I only went to the compulsory lectures, never the optional ones and I left all my essays until the last minute and kept them as short as I could. OK, I passed my exams and I got my degree in the end, but I've always regretted not taking more advantage of those three years. I wish I'd realized at the time that this was a unique opportunity to read lots of novels, to learn about great writers, and to listen to people who really knew what they were talking about. Now I'm working and have small children, I don't have time to read anything.

When Paul Feldman started his business, you know, he really thought that at least 95% of the people would pay for their bagels. This was presumably because that was the payment rate that he got in his own office. But in fact this rate wasn't representative at all. I mean in his office, most people paid probably just because Feldman worked there himself, and they knew him personally, and probably liked him.

So when Feldman sold his bagels in other offices, he had to accept less. After a while, he considered that a company was 'honest' if over 90% of the people paid. Between 80 and 90% was what he considered to be normal, you know, the average rate. He didn't like it, but he had to accept it. It was only if a company habitually paid less than 80% – which luckily not many did – that he would feel he had to do something. First he would leave a note, sort of giving them a warning, and then, if things didn't improve, he would simply stop selling there. Interestingly, since he started the business, the boxes he leaves to collect the cash have hardly ever been stolen. Obviously in the mind of an office worker, to steal a bagel isn't a crime – but to steal the money box is.

So what does the bagel data tell us about the kind of offices that were not honest, the ones that didn't pay? Well, first of all, it shows that smaller offices are more honest than big ones. An office with twenty to thirty employees generally pays 3 to 5% more than an office with two to three hundred employees. This seems to be because in a smaller community people are more worried about being dishonest – probably because they would feel worse if they were caught.

The bagel data also suggests that your mood, how you feel, affects how honest you are. For example, the weather is a really important factor. When the weather is unusually good, more people pay, but if it's unusually cold or rainy, fewer people pay. And people are also affected by public holidays, but in different ways – it depends which public holiday. Before Christmas and Thanksgiving, people are less honest, but just before the 4th of July and Labour Day they are more honest. This seems to be because holidays like the 4th of July, are just a day off work, and people always look forward to them. But Christmas and Thanksgiving are holidays where people often feel quite stressed or miserable. So their bad mood makes them less honest.

The other thing Feldman believes affects how honest people are is the morale in an office. When employees like their boss and like their job, then the office is more honest. He also thinks that the higher people are promoted, the less honest they are. He reached this conclusion because over several years he'd been delivering three baskets of bagels to a company that was on three floors. The top floor was the executive floor, and the lower two floors were people who worked in sales, and service, and administrative employees. Well, it turned out that the least honest floor was the executive floor! It makes you wonder whether maybe these guys got to be executives because they were good at cheating!

But in general the story of Feldman's bagel business is a really positive one. It's true that some people do steal from him, but the vast majority, even though no-one is watching them, are honest.

7.7 Presenter Now it's time for our regular Wednesday afternoon spot about words and their origins. And I have with me, as usual, our English language expert, Sally Davies. So what are the three words you are going to tell us about today, Sally?

Sally Hello, John. My three words today are 'ketchup', 'orange', – that's the fruit, the colour came later, and 'tennis'.

Presenter Let's start with 'ketchup' then.

Sally Yes, well, the Chinese invented a sauce called 'ke-tsiap', spelled K-E-hyphen-T-S-I-A-P in the 1690s. It was made from fish and spices, but absolutely no tomatoes. By the early eighteenth century, its popularity had spread to Malaysia, and this is where British explorers first found it, and obviously really liked it. By 1740 the sauce was part of the English diet – people were eating a lot of it and it was also becoming popular in the American colonies. And they renamed the sauce 'ketchup', because it was a bit easier for the English to pronounce. Then about fifty years later, in 1790, some American colonists in New England mixed tomatoes into the sauce and it became known as 'tomato ketchup'.

Presenter So it is American after all?

Sally Well, tomato ketchup is.

Presenter So, tell us about orange?

Sally Well, it's very interesting that neither 'orange' in English nor 'naranja' in Spanish or 'arancia' in Italian, come from the Latin word for 'orange', which was 'citrus aurentium'. Instead they, they all come from the ancient Sanskrit word 'narangah'. There is also an interesting story about where this word, 'narangah', comes from. It's said that it comes from 'naga ranga', which literally means 'poison for elephants'.

Presenter Poison for elephants?

Sally Yes, apparently, one day in around the 7th or 8th century BC an elephant was passing through the forest, when he found a tree which he had never seen before. This tree was full of beautiful, tempting oranges; as a result, the elephant ate so many that he died. Many years later a man came to the same spot and noticed the remains of the elephant with some orange trees growing from what had been its stomach. The man then exclaimed, 'These fruit are naga ranga' that is, 'poison for elephants'.

Presenter So is this true?

Sally Well, I don't know, but it's a nice story!

Presenter And finally our last word is 'tennis'.

Sally This is my favourite one, and it shows that the English have always had their own special way of pronouncing foreign languages. Tennis is a sport which first developed in France. The name was originally 'tenez' which is from the French verb 'tenir' which means, in this case, something like 'Here you are'. Players used to say 'tenez' when they hit the ball meaning something like 'There, try to get this one'. But the sport lost popularity in France and gained popularity in England at the same time. So, English people were still using the word 'tenez' each time they hit the ball, but they were saying it with the English accent which sounded more like 'tennis', and eventually it took this new spelling. Then the sport gained popularity worldwide and was taken up by many nationalities, including the French – but they now had to call it 'le tennis'!

Presenter Fascinating! Well, thank you very much for those three words, Sally, and we'll look forward to next week's programme.

7.9 Interviewer Susie Dent is a well-known English lexicographer who also appears in the popular British TV Quiz Countdown. Could you give us an estimate of how many new words come into the English language each year?

Susie A lot of people ask me how many new words are born in any particular year and the quick answer to that is no one knows, because thousands and thousands and thousands of new words are made up every second. What we do know is that in the twentieth century about 900,000 new words went into the Oxford English Dictionary, which is the vast vast dictionary that Oxford keeps going, basically constantly, tracking current language and historical language, so that means on average about 900 words each year made it in a significant enough way to get into the dictionary.

Interviewer How does a new word or expression get into the dictionary?

Susie Normally dictionary makers will wait about five years to see whether or not a word will survive before they put it in. So they have quite strict criteria. There are exceptions to that and 'bling' is a prime example. It went into the dictionary very very soon.

'Bling' is a wonderful word that is used by journalists particularly to sum up the sort of celebrity obsessed, very materialistic opening years of the 21st century, but in fact it was coined in 1999 and it was coined by a rapper and I think it's an absolutely beautiful example of how US black slang particularly and hip hop and rap have had a major influence on British slang particularly today, and it was used by the rapper Baby Gangsta or BG and it was probably suggestive of light flashing off jewellery so it was 'bling' and that's how it was taken up and it went into the mainstream incredibly quickly.

7.10 Interviewer Where do new words come from?

Susie One of the main processes by which new words come about today is one called 'blending' where you put two words together to form a new one. And one of my favourites is 'chofas' which is a cross between a chair and a sofa and 'waparazzi' as well which I think is really clever and 'waparazzi' is basically citizen journalists, if you like, going around snapping celebrities with their WAP (W-A-P) enabled phone, and so people thought, 'Oh, we'll call them the 'waparazzi'. So that's quite a good example of how new words are coming about. 'Mandals' is another one, male sandals or 'man sandals' is another one that has been doing the rounds in Britain anyway.

Another process by which new words are born is by bringing older words back. And so, 'cool' for example was around probably in the late nineteenth century, then it was popularized by jazz circles, Charlie Parker and people like that and now it's just, you know, it's used by young people everywhere.

Another way in which new words are coined if you like is when old words come back and take on a slightly different meaning. So again they're not completely new at all but we've adapted them to our new environment. A great example of this is 'wireless'. Whereas our grandparents certainly in Britain used to listen to the wireless and it meant a portable radio, today 'wireless' has everything to do with broadband and the way that we use our computers in a cable-free way.

Interviewer Any other ways?

Susie English has long been a 'hoover', really, of foreign languages and it is made up of so many different words from different cultures, right back from Latin and Greek to modern influences now. Food is a wonderful example of that where we just take different cuisines from around the world and we introduce obvious examples, like 'sushi',

'sashimi', that sort of thing, into our language.

Brand names, another key way in which we generate new words if you like. If you think about Kleenex or Hoover as I mentioned. Those used to be brand names, they are still brand names, but we've somehow imported them so that we know exactly what we're talking about and they mean anything generic.

Interviewer Do you have any favourite new words of the last few years?

Susie I have so many favourites from the last few years, ever since I've been first writing the Language reports, I have to collect my favourite new words of the year. I loved the idea of a 'marmalade dropper', which was basically a news item that made you drop your toast in the morning. In America it was called a 'muffin choker'.

7.12 Interviewer Are there any English words that are used in your language?

Mateusz Yes, for example, hamburger. It is used I think worldwide, but in Poland we say hamburger. Yes, maybe computer, in Poland komputer, there are plenty of words like that, plenty of words that are about cuisine, hot dog, hot dog in Polish. Really, plenty of words like that.

Interviewer Do you think it would be better to use your own words?

Mateusz No, I don't think so, because they are used everywhere in this world and why not in Poland?

Interviewer Are there any English words that are used in your language?

Victoria Erm yes. Well, no I don't think there are a lot of English words, but there are a lot of French words that sound English like parking which actually doesn't make sense in English. It's a car park and we call it parking and it's not French at all. But we have a lot of things like that because English is cool and so we try to make our words sound English.

Interviewer Do you think it would be better to use your own words?

Victoria No, we should ... I like the idea that there are words that you can understand in every country, it brings nations, people closer, you know.

Interviewer Are there any English words that are used in your language?

Matandra An English word that is used in the Italian language well, everything to do with technology, everything to do with the Internet, and Internet itself, well someone could argue that Internet is actually Latin but ... say download, we've given up saying the Italian version of downloading which is scaricare so most people just go with downloadare which sounds very odd to the Italian ear, but we, we're going with it.

Interviewer Do you think it would be better to use your own words?

Matandra I don't think it's necessary to set off on a crusade to defend language in so much as, you know, there are specific areas which are just the domain of another language. Italian is the main domain in say music. No one complains around the world because you say pianissimo when you have to play softly.

Interviewer Are there any English words that are used in your language?

Volke Too many, too many, I must say. We forget a lot of German words and replace them by English words and they are pronounced in the same way. I miss that, because I like Spanish as well and they have so many, they have like, words for computer or skateboard and things like that which we don't have and we take all the English words. And if there are new inventions or stuff like that we don't invent new words – we just take them and I think it's a pity not to do the opposite.

Interviewer Do you think it would be better to use your own words?

Volke It's part of culture and I think we should maintain that. You can be open to other languages and cultures but at the same time you should keep your own one, I think.

1A question formation

- 1 Can you drive? Why are you crying?
- 2 Where do you live? Did you go out last night?
- 3 Why didn't you like the film? Isn't this a beautiful place?
- 4 What are they talking about? Where is she from?
- 5 Who lives in this house? How many people came to the party?
- 6 Could you tell me where this bus goes?
Do you know if he's coming?

- 1 To make questions with modal verbs and with tenses where there is an auxiliary verb (be, have, etc.) invert the subject and the modal / auxiliary verb.
- 2 With the present and past simple, add do / does or did before the subject.
- 3 We often use negative questions to show surprise or when you expect somebody to agree with you.

- 4 If a verb is followed by a preposition, the preposition comes at the end of the question, e.g. What are you talking about? NOT About what are you talking?
 - We often just use the question word and the preposition, e.g. A I'm thinking. B What about?
- 5 When who / what / which, etc. is the subject of the question, don't use do / did, e.g. Who wrote this? NOT Who did write this?
- 6 Use indirect questions when you want to ask a question in a more polite way. Where does she live? (direct) Could you tell me where she lives? (indirect)
 - In indirect questions the order is subject + verb. Can you tell me where it is? NOT Can you tell me where is it?
 - Don't use do / did in the second part of the question. Do you know where he lives? NOT does live.
 - You can use if / whether after Can you tell me, Do you know, etc., e.g. Can you tell me if / whether he's at home?

1B auxiliary verbs

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 A Do you speak French? | B Yes, I do . Quite well. |
| 2 I like dogs, but my husband doesn't . Jim's coming, but Anna isn't . | |
| 3 A I loved the film. | B So did I . |
| A I haven't finished yet. | B Neither have I . |
| He's a doctor and so is his wife . | |
| 4 A I went to a psychic yesterday. | B Did you? |
| A I'll make the dinner. | B Will you? That's great! |
| 5 A You didn't lock the door! | B I did lock it, I promise. |
| A Silvia isn't coming. | B She is coming. I've just spoken to her. |
| 6 You won't forget, will you? Your wife can speak Italian, can't she? | |

Use auxiliary verbs (do, have, etc.) or modal verbs (can, must, etc.):

- 1 in short answers, instead of answering just Yes / No.
- 2 to avoid repeating the main verb / verb phrase, e.g. I like dogs but my husband doesn't (like dogs).
- 3 with so and neither to say that something is the same. Use so + auxiliary + subject with a positive verb, and neither (or nor) + auxiliary + subject with a negative verb.

- 4 to make 'echo questions', to show interest.
- 5 to show emphasis in a positive sentence. With the present / past simple, add do / does / did before the main verb. With other auxiliaries stress the auxiliary verb.
- 6 to make question tags. Use a positive question tag with a negative verb and a negative question tag with a positive verb.
 - Question tags are often used simply to ask another person to agree with you, e.g. It's a nice day, isn't it? In this case the question tag is said with falling intonation, i.e. the voice goes down.
 - Question tags can also be used to check something you think is true, e.g. She's a painter, isn't she? In this case the question tag is said with rising intonation, as in a normal yes / no question.

1C present perfect (simple and continuous) present perfect simple: have / has + past participle

- 1 I've been to Australia. Have you ever broken your leg?
- 2 We've just phoned the doctor. I've already finished my lunch.
- 3 It's the best book I've ever read. It's the first time we've done this.
- 4 My sister's had a baby! Look, I've cut my finger.
- 5 I've known her since I was a child. She's had the job for six months.
- 6 How many of his books have you read? She's been out twice this week.

Use the present perfect simple:

- 1 to talk about past experiences when you don't say when something happened.
- 2 with already, just, and yet.
- 3 with superlatives and the first, second, last time, etc.
- 4 for finished actions (no time is specified) which are connected in some way with the present.
- 5 with How long? and for / since with non-action verbs (= verbs not usually used in the continuous form, e.g. be, have, know, like, etc.) to say that something started in the past and is still true now.
- 6 when we say / ask how much / many we have done or how often we have done something up to now.

present perfect continuous: have / has + been + verb + -ing

- 1 How long have you been feeling like this? I've been working here for two months.
- 2 I haven't been sleeping well recently. It's been raining on and off all day.
- 3 I've been shopping all morning. I'm exhausted.
 - A Take your shoes off. They're filthy.
 - B Yes, I know. I've been working in the garden.

Use the present perfect continuous:

- 1 with How long? and for / since with action verbs to say that an action started in the past and is still happening now.
- 2 for repeated actions, especially with a time expression, e.g. all day, recently.
- 3 for continuous actions which have just finished (but which have present results).

present perfect simple or continuous?

- 1 We've lived / We've been living in this town since 1980. We've been living in a rented flat for the last two months.
- 2 We've painted the kitchen. We've been painting the kitchen.

- 1 With How long...? and for / since you can often use the present perfect simple or continuous. However, we often prefer the present perfect continuous for shorter, more temporary actions.
- 2 The present perfect simple emphasizes the completion of an action (= the painting is finished). The present perfect continuous emphasizes the continuation of an action (= the painting is probably not finished).

 - 8 _____ my chocolates? There are only a few left! (you / eat)

2A adjectives as nouns, adjective order nationalities

- 1 The English are famous for drinking tea. The Dutch make wonderful cheeses. The Chinese invented paper.
- 2 The Argentinians invented the tango. The Greeks are very extrovert.
- 3 The Turks drink a lot of coffee. The Poles play a lot of basketball.

- 1 You can use the with the nationality adjectives which end in -sh, -ch, -ss, or -ese. Don't add s to these words, or use them without the.
- 2 Nationality words which end in -an and a few others, e.g. Greek and Thai, are both adjectives and nouns. To talk about the people from that country use a plural noun ending in -s.
- 3 Some nationalities have a special noun for the people which is different from the adjective, e.g. Polish = adjective, Pole = noun. To talk about the people you can either use the + adjective or the + plural noun, e.g. the Polish or the Poles.

⚠ With any nationality, you can also use the adjective + people, e.g. French people.

⚠ To talk about one person from a country you can't use a / an + adjective alone:

- 1 a Japanese man / woman / person, an Englishman / Englishwoman / English person, NOT a Japanese, an English, etc.
- 2 an Italian, a Greek, etc.
- 3 a Turk, a Pole, etc.

specific groups of people

The poor are getting poorer and the rich are getting richer. The government needs to create more jobs for the unemployed.

- You can use the + some adjectives to talk about specific groups in society, e.g. the young, the blind, the homeless, the old, the elderly, the sick. These expressions are always plural.

one, ones

A Which one would you like? B The red one, please. Two ice creams, please. Big ones.

- When we don't want to repeat a noun after an adjective because it is already clear what we are talking about, we use the adjective + one (singular) or + ones (plural).

adjective order

We've got a lovely old cottage just outside Bath. She has long fair hair. I bought a beautiful Italian leather belt.

- You can put more than one adjective before a noun (often two and occasionally three). These adjectives go in a particular order, e.g. NOT ~~an old lovely cottage~~.
- Opinion adjectives, e.g. beautiful, nice, lovely, usually go before fact adjectives, e.g. big, old, round.
- If there is more than one fact adjective, they go in this order:

size	age	shape / style	colour / pattern	nationality	material	noun
big	new	long	pink, striped	Italian	silk	scarf

2B narrative tenses: past simple, past continuous, past perfect, past perfect continuous narrative tenses

- 1 We arrived at the airport and checked in.
- 2 We were having dinner when the plane hit some turbulence.
- 3 When we arrived at the airport, we suddenly realized that we had left one of the suitcases in the taxi.
- 4 We'd been flying for about two hours when the captain told us to fasten our seat belts because we were flying into some very bad weather.

- 1 Use the past simple to talk about consecutive actions in the past, i.e. for the main events in a story.
- 2 Use the past continuous (was / were + verb + -ing) to describe a longer continuous past action, which was in progress when another action happened.
- 3 Use the past perfect (had + past participle) to talk about the 'earlier past', i.e. things which happened before the main event(s).
- 4 Use the past perfect continuous (had been + verb + -ing) to talk about a longer continuous action that was going on before the main events happened. Non-action verbs are not normally used in the past continuous or the past perfect continuous.

past perfect simple or continuous?

She was crying because she'd been reading a very sad book. She didn't want to see the film, because she'd read the book.

The past perfect continuous emphasizes the continuation of an activity. The past perfect simple emphasizes the completion of an activity.

2C adverbs and adverbial phrases

- 1 I don't understand you when you speak quickly. The driver was seriously injured.
- 2 I never have breakfast. He's always late.
- 3 They'll be here soon. It rained all day yesterday.
- 4 I've nearly finished. We're incredibly tired. He works a lot.
- 5 Unfortunately, we arrived half an hour late. Ideally, we should leave at 10.00.

- Adverbs can describe an action (he walked slowly) or modify adjectives or other adverbs (it's incredibly expensive, he works very hard). They can either be one word (often) or a phrase (once a week).

- 1 Adverbs of manner (how somebody does something) usually go after the verb or phrase. However, with passive verbs they usually go in mid-position (before the main verb but after an auxiliary verb).

- 2 Adverbs of frequency go before the main verb but after the verb to be.

⚠ sometimes / usually / normally can go at the beginning of a sentence too.

- 3 Adverbs of time usually go at the end of a sentence or clause.

- 4 Adverbs of degree (which describe how much something is done or to modify an adjective).

- extremely, incredibly, very, etc. are used with adjectives and adverbs and go before them.
- much and a lot are often used with verbs and go after the verb or verb phrase.
- a little / a bit can be used with adjectives or verbs, e.g. I'm a bit tired. She sleeps a bit in the afternoon.

- 5 Comment adverbs (which give the speaker's opinion) usually go at the beginning of a sentence or clause. Other common comment adjectives are luckily, clearly, obviously, apparently, etc.

⚠ Most other adverbs go in mid-position, e.g. I just need ten more minutes. She didn't even say goodbye.

2A

a Rewrite the underlined phrase using the + an adjective.

The people who live in Spain go to bed very late. the Spanish

- The people from the Netherlands are very good at languages.
- The people who had injuries were taken to hospital.
- The system of reading for people who can't see is called Braille.
- The people from France enjoy eating good food.
- A nurse's job is to look after the people who aren't well.
- I think the people from Switzerland are very punctual.
- The worst season for people without a home is winter.
- There is a discount for students and people without a job.

b Write the adjectives in brackets in the right place.

- I could see from their faces that my parents _____. (argue)
- Jess had a bandage on her arm. She _____ off her bike the day before. (fall)

b Circle the correct verb form.

Meg and Liam McGowan (got) / were getting a nasty surprise when they ¹*had checked in / were checking in* at Heathrow airport yesterday with their baby Shaun. They ²*had won / won* three free plane tickets to Rome in a competition and they ³*were looking forward to / had been looking forward to* their trip for months. But, unfortunately, they ⁴*had been forgetting / had forgotten* to get a passport for their son and so Shaun couldn't fly. Luckily they ⁵*had arrived / were arriving* very early for their flight so they still had time to do something about it. They ⁶*had run / ran* to the police station in the airport to apply for an emergency passport. Meg ⁷*was going / went* with Shaun to the photo machine while Liam ⁸*had filled in / was filling in* the forms. The passport was ready in an hour, so they ⁹*hurried / were hurrying* back to check-in and finally ¹⁰*caught / had caught* their flight.

a Underline the adverb(s) or adverbial phrase(s) and correct the sentences which are wrong.

We're going to be unfortunately late. ✗ Unfortunately, we're going to be late.

We rarely go to bed before 11.30. ✓

- She likes very much the theatre.
- Dave was late for work yesterday.
- Immediately the ambulance arrived.
- They go usually jogging after work.
- I was extremely tired last night.
- They won easily the match because they played brilliantly.
- I forgot your birthday almost.
- We luckily had taken an umbrella.
- She always eats healthily.
- He's been apparently sacked.

b Put the adverbs in brackets in the normal position in these sentences.

Sadly very
I don't speak ~~to~~ good English. (sadly, very)

- The building was damaged in the fire. (badly, last week)
- We need to do something. (obviously, quickly)
- Ben is at his friend's house. (often, in the evening)
- She walked out and she didn't say goodbye. (just, even)
- He drives fast. (always, extremely)
- She danced at the ballet. (beautifully, last night)
- She wasn't injured when she fell. (luckily, seriously)
- He broke his leg when he was skiing. (apparently, nearly)
- My father sleeps in the afternoon. (usually, a bit)

3A passive (all forms), it is said that..., he is thought to..., etc.

the passive (all forms)

present simple	Murderers are usually sentenced to life imprisonment.
present continuous	The trial is being held at the moment.
present perfect	My car has been stolen.
past simple	Jim was arrested last month.
past continuous	The cinema was being rebuilt when it was set on fire.
past perfect	We saw that one of the windows had been broken .
future	The prisoner will be released next month. The verdict is going to be given tomorrow.
infinitive with to	People used to be imprisoned for stealing bread.
infinitive without to	You can be fined for parking on a yellow line.
gerund	He paid a fine to avoid being sent to jail.

- Use the passive when you want to talk about an action but you are not so interested in saying who or what does / did the action.
- If you also want to mention the person or thing that did the action (the agent), use by, e.g. Prison sentences are decided by judges. However, in the majority of passive sentences the agent is not mentioned.

it is said that..., he is thought to..., etc.

active	passive
1 They say that the company may close. People think that prices will go up.	It is said that the company may close. It is thought that prices will go up.
2 People say the man is in his 40s. The police believe he has left the country.	The man is said to be in his 40s. He is believed to have left the country.

- This formal structure is used especially in news reports and on TV with the verbs know, tell, understand, report, expect, say and think. It makes the information sound more impersonal.
- 1 You can use It is said, believed, etc. + that + clause.
- 2 You can use He, The man, etc. (i.e. the subject of the clause) + is said, believed, etc. + to + infinitive (e.g. to be) or perfect infinitive (e.g. to have been).

3B future perfect and future continuous future perfect: will have + past participle

I'll have finished the article by Friday, so I'll email it to you then.
They'll have built the new terminal in six months' time.

- Use the future perfect to say something will be finished before a certain time in the future.
- This tense is frequently used with the time expressions by Saturday / March / 2030, etc. or in two weeks / months, etc.
- By + a time expression = at the latest. With in, you can say in six months or in six months' time.

future continuous: will be + verb + -ing

Don't phone between 7.00 and 8.00 as we'll be having supper then.
This time next week I'll be lying on the beach.

- Use the future continuous to say that an action will be in progress at a certain time in the future.

⚠ We sometimes use the future continuous, like the present continuous, to talk about things which are already planned or decided, e.g. I'll be going to the supermarket later.

3C conditionals and future time clauses (with all present and future forms) zero conditional

If you want to be fit, you have to do exercise every day.
If your muscles ache every day, you are probably doing too much exercise.
If you haven't been to London, you haven't lived.

- To talk about something which is always true or always happens as a result of something else, use if + present simple, and the present simple in the other clause.
- You can also use the present continuous or present perfect in either clause.

first conditional

If the photos are good, I'll send them to you.
If you're not going, I'm not going to go either.
If I haven't come back by 9.00, start dinner without me.
I'll have finished in an hour if you don't disturb me.

- You can use any present tense in the if clause (present simple, continuous or perfect) and any future form (will, going to, future perfect, future continuous) or an imperative in the other clause.

future time clauses

I'll be ready as soon as I've had a shower.
We'll probably be watching the Cup Final when you arrive.
We're not going to go out until the rain has stopped.
I'm not going to work overtime unless I get paid.
Take your umbrella in case it rains.

- When you are talking about the future, use a present tense after these expressions: as soon as, when, until, unless, before, after, and in case. This can be any present tense, e.g. present simple, present continuous, present perfect.
- We use in case when we do something in order to be ready for future situations / problems. Compare the use of if and in case:
I'll take a jacket if it's cold. = I won't take one if it's not cold.
I'll take a jacket in case it's cold. = I'll take a jacket anyway because it might be cold.

3A

a Rewrite the sentences in the passive (without by...).

- They'll hold a meeting tomorrow.
- The inspector fined them for travelling without a ticket.
- The police can arrest you for drink-driving.
- Miranda thinks someone was following her last night.
- They had sold the house five years earlier.

- The road...
My handbag...
My house...
A meeting...
They...
You...
Miranda thinks she...
The house...

b Rephrase the sentences to make them more formal.

People think the murderer is a woman.
It is thought that the murderer is a woman.
The murderer is thought to be a woman.

- Police believe the burglar is a local man.
It... The burglar...
- People say the muggers are very dangerous.
It... The muggers...
- Police think the robber entered through an open window.
It... The robber...
- Police say the murderer has disappeared.
It... The murderer...
- Lawyers expect that the trial will last three weeks.
It... The trial...

3B

a Complete the sentences using the future perfect or future continuous.

- They'll be playing in the park _____ it gets dark.

4A unreal conditionals

second conditional sentences: if + past simple, would / wouldn't + infinitive

- 1 If there was a fire in this hotel, it would be very difficult to escape.
I wouldn't live in the country if I didn't have a car.
- 2 If you weren't making so much noise, I could concentrate better.
- 3 If I were you, I'd make Jimmy wear a helmet when he's cycling.

- 1 Use second conditional sentences to talk about hypothetical or improbable situations in the present / future.
- 2 In the if clause you can also use the past continuous. In the other clause you can use could or might instead of would, e.g. If you weren't making so much noise, I could concentrate better.
- 3 With the verb be you can use was or were for I, he, and she in the if clause, e.g. If he was / were here, he would know what to do. However, in conditionals beginning If I were you... to give advice, always use were.

third conditional sentences: if + past perfect, would / wouldn't have + past participle

- 1 If you had studied more, you would have done better in the exams.
I wouldn't have been late if I hadn't overslept.
- 2 He would have died if he hadn't been wearing a helmet.
If they had known you were coming, they might have stayed longer.

- 1 We use third conditional sentences to talk about a hypothetical past situation and its consequence.
- 2 You can also use the past perfect continuous in the if clause. You can use could have or might have instead of would have in the other clause.

second or third conditional?

- 1 If you studied more, you would probably pass the exam.
- 2 If you had studied more, you would probably have passed the exam.

- Compare the two conditionals. 1 = You don't study enough. You need to study more. 2 = You didn't study enough, so you failed.

⚠ We sometimes mix second and third conditionals if a hypothetical situation in the past has a present / future consequence, e.g. He wouldn't be so relaxed if he hadn't finished his exams.

4B past modals

must / might / can't, etc. + have + past participle

- 1 I must have passed the exam. I'm sure I got all the answers right.
You must have seen something. You were there when the robbery happened.
- 2 Somebody might have stolen your wallet when you were getting off the train.
He still hasn't arrived. I might not have given him the right directions.
- 3 They can't have gone to bed yet. It's only ten o'clock.
They can't have seen us. It was too dark.

- Use must / may / might / can't / couldn't + have + past participle to make deductions or speculate about past actions.
- 1 Use must have when you are almost sure that something happened or was true.

⚠ The opposite of must have is can't have NOT ~~mustn't have~~.

- 2 Use might / may have when you think it's possible that something happened or was true. You can also use could have with this meaning, e.g. They could have stolen your wallet when you were getting off the train.
- 3 Use can't have when you are almost sure something didn't happen or that it is impossible. You can also use couldn't have.

should + have + past participle

It's my fault. I should have told you earlier that she was coming.
We've gone the wrong way. We shouldn't have turned left at the traffic lights.

- Use should + have + past participle to say that somebody didn't do the right thing.
- You can use ought to have as an alternative to should have, e.g. I ought to have told you earlier.

4C verbs of the senses

look / feel / smell / sound / taste

- 1 She looks tired. That smells good! These jeans don't feel comfortable.
- 2 He looks like his father. This material feels like silk. This tastes like tea, not coffee.
- 3 She looks as if she's been crying. It smells as if something's burning. It sounds as if it's raining.

- 1 Use look, feel, etc. + adjective.
- 2 Use look, feel, etc. + like + noun.

⚠ feel like can also mean 'want / would like', e.g. I don't feel like going out = I don't want to go out.

- 3 Use look, feel, etc. + as if + clause.
- You can use like or as though instead of as if, e.g. It sounds like / as though it's raining.

4A

5A gerunds and infinitives verbs followed by the gerund and verbs followed by the infinitive

- 1 I enjoy listening to music. I couldn't help laughing.
- 2 I want to speak to you. They can't afford to buy a new car.
- 3 It might rain tonight. I would rather eat in than go out tonight.

- When one verb follows another, the first verb determines the form of the second. This can be the gerund (verb + -ing) or the infinitive (with or without to).
- 1 Use the gerund after certain verbs and expressions, e.g. admit, avoid, can't help, can't stand, carry on, deny, enjoy, fancy, finish, give up, keep on, imagine, involve, mind, miss, postpone, practise, risk, stop, suggest.
- 2 Use the infinitive (with to) after certain verbs and expressions, e.g. agree, appear, be able to, can't afford, can't wait, decide, expect, happen, have (got), help, learn, manage, offer, plan, pretend, promise, refuse, seem, teach, tend, threaten, want, would like.
- 3 Use the infinitive (without to) after modal verbs, e.g. can, may, might, must, should, had better, would rather, and after the verbs make and let.

- ⚠ In the passive, make is followed by the infinitive with to. Compare My boss makes us work hard. At school we were made to wear a uniform.
- ⚠ Some verbs can be followed by the gerund or infinitive (with to) with no change of meaning, e.g. begin, start, continue.
- ⚠ like, love, hate, and prefer can also be used with either, but the gerund is more common when you are talking generally, and the infinitive when you talk about a specific occasion. Compare I like skiing (in general). I like to ski in February or March (specific).

verbs that can be followed by either gerund or infinitive with a change of meaning

- 1 Remember to lock the door.
I remember going to Venice as a child.
- 2 Sorry, I forgot to do it.
I'll never forget seeing the Taj Mahal.
- 3 I tried to open the window.
Try calling Miriam on her mobile.
- 4 You need to clean the car.
The car needs cleaning.

- Some verbs can be followed by the gerund or infinitive (with to) with a change of meaning.
- 1 Remember + infinitive = you remember first, then you do something. Remember + gerund = you do something then you remember it.
- 2 Forget + infinitive = you didn't remember to do something. Forget + gerund = you did something and you won't forget it. It is more common in the negative.
- 3 Try + infinitive = make an effort to do something. Try + gerund = experiment to see if something works.
- 4 Need + gerund is a passive construction, e.g. The car needs cleaning = The car needs to be cleaned. NOT needs to clean.

5B used to, be used to, get used to used to / didn't use to + infinitive

I used to drink five cups of coffee a day, but now I only drink tea.
When I lived in France as a child I used to have croissants for breakfast.
I didn't use to have a beard.

- Use used to / didn't use to + infinitive to talk about past habits or repeated actions or situations / states which have changed.
- ⚠ used to doesn't exist in the present tense. For present habits, use usually + the present simple, e.g. I usually walk to work. NOT I use to walk to work.
- You can also use would to refer to repeated actions in the past. When I lived in France as a child I would always eat croissants for breakfast. But you can't use would with non-action verbs. NOT I didn't recognize him. He wouldn't have a beard.

be used to / get used to + gerund

- 1 Carlos has lived in London for years. He's used to driving on the left.
I'm not used to sleeping with a duvet. I've always slept with blankets.
- 2 A I can't get used to working at night. I feel tired all the time.
B Don't worry. You'll soon get used to it.

- 1 Use be used to + gerund to talk about a new situation which is now familiar or less strange.
- 2 Use get used to + gerund to talk about a new situation which is becoming familiar or less strange.
- You can't use the infinitive after be / get used to. NOT He's used to drive on the left.

5C reporting verbs structures after reporting verbs

- 1 Jude offered to drive me to the airport.
I promised not to tell anybody.
- 2 The doctor advised me to have a rest.
I persuaded my sister not to go out with George.
- 3 I apologized for being so late.
The police accused Karl of stealing the car..

- To report what other people have said, you can use say or a specific verb, e.g. 'I'll drive you to the airport.'
Jude said he would drive me to the airport.
Jude offered to drive me to the airport.

- After specific reporting verbs, there are three different grammatical patterns.

1 + to + infinitive	2 + person + to + infinitive	3 + -ing form agree	advise	apologize for offer	ask	accuse sb of refuse	convince	admit
promise	encourage	blame sb for threaten	invite	deny persuade	insist on remind	recommend
	tell	regret
	warn	suggest

- In negative sentences, use the negative infinitive (not to be) or the negative gerund (not being), e.g. He reminded me not to be late. She regretted not going to the party.

5A

6A articles

basic rules: a / an / the, no article

- 1 My neighbour has just bought a dog. The dog is an Alsatian. He got into the car and drove to the Town Hall.
- 2 Men are better at parking than women. I don't like sport or classical music. I stayed at home last weekend.

- 1 Use a / an when you mention somebody / something for the first time or say who / what somebody / something is. Use the when it's clear who / what somebody / something is (e.g. it has been mentioned before or it's unique).
- 2 Don't use an article to speak in general with plural and uncountable nouns, or in phrases like at home / work, go home / to bed, next / last (week), etc.

institutions (church, hospital, school, etc.)

My father's in hospital. They are building a new hospital in my town.

- With prison, church, school, hospital, and university, etc. don't use an article when you are thinking about the institution and the normal purpose it is used for. If you are just thinking about the building, use a or the.

geographical names

- 1 Tunisia is in North Africa.
- 2 Selfridges, one of London's biggest department stores, is in Oxford Street.
- 3 Lake Victoria and Mount Kilimanjaro are both in Africa.
- 4 The River Danube flows into the Black Sea.
- 5 The National Gallery and the British Museum are London tourist attractions.

- We don't normally use the with:

- 1 most countries, continents, regions ending with the name of a country / continent, e.g. North America, South East Asia, islands, states, provinces, towns, and cities (exceptions: the USA, the UK / United Kingdom, the Netherlands, the Czech Republic).
 - 2 roads, streets, parks, shops, and restaurants (exceptions: motorways and numbered roads, the M6, the A25).
 - 3 individual mountains and lakes.
- We normally use the with:
- 4 mountain ranges, rivers, seas, canals, deserts, and island groups.
 - 5 the names of theatres, cinemas, hotels, galleries, and museums.

6B uncountable and plural nouns

uncountable nouns

- 1 The weather was terrible, but at least there wasn't much traffic. The scenery is beautiful here, but it's spoiled by all the rubbish people leave.
- 2 We bought some new furniture for the garden. That's a lovely piece of furniture.
- 3 Iron is used for building bridges. I need to buy a new iron. My old one's broken.

- 1 The following nouns are always uncountable: behaviour, traffic, weather, accommodation, health, progress, scenery, rubbish, work, politics (and other words ending in -ics, e.g. athletics, economics).
- They always need a singular verb, they don't have plurals, and they can't be used with a / an. These nouns are also uncountable: furniture, information, advice, homework, research, news, luck, bread, toast, luggage, equipment. Use a piece of to talk about an individual item.
- 3 Some nouns can be either countable or uncountable, but the meaning changes, e.g. iron = the metal, an iron = the thing used to press clothes. Other examples: glass, business, paper, light, time, space.

plural and collective nouns

- 1 Your clothes are filthy! Put a pair of / some clean trousers on.
- 2 Our staff are very efficient.

- 1 Arms (=guns, etc.), belongings, clothes, manners, outskirts, scissors, trousers / shorts are plural nouns with no singular. They need a plural verb and can't be used with a / an.
- If they consist of two parts, e.g. scissors, trousers, shorts, they can be used with a pair of or some.
- 2 Crew, police, staff are collective nouns and refer to a group of people. They need a plural verb.

6C quantifiers: all / every, etc.

all, every, most

- 1 All animals need food. All fruit contains sugar. All (of) the animals in this zoo look sad. The animals all looked sad.
- 2 Everybody is here. Everything is very expensive.
- 3 Most people live in cities. Most of the people in this class are women.
- 4 All of us work hard and most of us come to class every week.
- 5 Every room has a bathroom. I work every Saturday.

- 1 Use all or all (of) the + a plural or uncountable noun. All = in general, all (of) the = specific. All can be used before a main verb (and after be).
- 2 All can't be used without a noun. Use everything / everybody, + singular verb, e.g. Everything is very expensive.
- 3 Use most to say the majority. Most = general; Most of = specific.
- 4 We often use all / most of + an object pronoun, e.g. all of us, most of them, all of you, most of it.
- 5 Use every + singular countable noun to mean 'all of a group'.

⚠ every and all + time expressions: Every day = Monday to Sunday. All day = from morning to night.

no, none, any

- 1 Is there any milk? Sorry, there is no milk. There isn't any (milk).
- 2 Is there any food? No, none. / There is none. But none of us are hungry.
- 3 Come any weekend! Anyone can come.

- 1 Use no + a noun and a \oplus verb, or any + noun + \ominus verb to refer to zero quantity. Any can also be used without a noun.
- 2 Use none in short answers, or with a \oplus verb to refer to zero quantity. You can also use none of + pronoun / noun.
- 3 Use any (and anything, anyone, etc.) and a \oplus verb to mean it doesn't matter when, who, etc.

both, neither, either

- 1 Both Pierre and Marie Curie were scientists. Neither Pierre nor Marie was / were aware of the dangers of radiation. Marie Curie wanted to study either physics or mathematics. In the end she studied both subjects at the Sorbonne in Paris.
- 2 She and her husband both won Nobel prizes.
- 3 Neither of them realized how dangerous radium was.

- Use both, either, and neither to talk about two people, things, actions, etc. both = A and B; either = A or B; neither = not A and not B.
- 1 Use a \oplus verb. The verb is plural with both, and either singular or plural with neither.
 - 2 When both refers to the subject of a clause it can also be used before a main verb.
 - 3 We often use both / either / neither of + object pronoun, e.g. us, them, etc. or + of the + noun.

7A structures after wish wish + past simple, wish + would / wouldn't

- 1 I wish I was taller!
My brother wishes he could speak English better.
- 2 I wish the bus would come. I'm freezing.
I wish you wouldn't leave your shoes there. I almost fell over them.

- 1 Use wish + past simple to talk about things you would like to be different in the present / future (but which are impossible or unlikely).
 - After wish you can use was or were with I, he, she, and it, e.g. I wish I were taller.
- 2 Use wish + person / thing + would to talk about things we want to happen, or stop happening because they annoy us.

⚠ You can't use would for a wish about yourself, e.g. NOT I wish I would...

wish + past perfect

- I wish you had told me the truth.
I wish I hadn't bought those shoes.

Use wish + past perfect to talk about things that happened or didn't happen in the past and which you now regret.

⚠ You can also use If only instead of I wish with these tenses, e.g. If only the bus would come. If only I hadn't bought those shoes.

7B clauses of contrast and purpose clauses of contrast

- 1 Although the weather was terrible, we had a good time.
I went to work even though I was ill.
I like Ann though she sometimes annoys me.
- 2 In spite of / Despite his age, he is still very active.
being 85, he is still very active.
the fact that he's 85, he is still very active.

- 1 Use although, though, even though + a clause.
- Although and even though can be used at the beginning or in the middle of a sentence.
- Even though is stronger than although and is used to express a big or surprising contrast.
- Though is more informal than although. It can only be used in the middle of a sentence.
- 2 After in spite of or despite, use a noun, a verb in the -ing form, or the fact that + subject + verb.

clauses of purpose

- 1 I went to the bank to in order to talk to my bank manager.
so as to
- 2 I went to the bank for a meeting with my bank manager.
- 3 I went to the bank so that I could take out some money.
- 4 I wrote it down so as not to forget it.

- Use to, in order to, so as to, for and so that to express purpose.
- 1 After to, in order to, and so as to use an infinitive.
- 2 Use for + a noun, e.g. for a meeting.

⚠ You can also use for + gerund to describe the exact purpose of a thing, e.g. This liquid is for cleaning metal.

- 3 After so that, use a subject + modal verb (can, could, would, etc.).
- 4 To express a negative purpose use so as not to or in order not to NOT ~~not to~~. You can also use so that + subject + wouldn't, e.g. I wrote it down so that I wouldn't forget it.

7C relative clauses

defining relative clauses

- 1 She's the woman who / that lives next door. That's the book which / that won a prize.
- 2 That's my neighbour whose dog never stops barking.
- 3 James is the man (who) I met at the party. That's the shop (which) I told you about.

That's the drawer in which I keep my keys.
- 5 She told me what she had seen. What I like best about London is the parks.

- Use who, which, whose, whom, and what to introduce a defining relative clause, i.e. a clause which gives essential information about somebody or something.
- 1 You can use that instead of who / which.
- 2 Use whose to mean 'of who' or 'of which'.
- 3 When who or which are the object of the verb in the relative clause, you can leave them out.
- 4 After a preposition, use whom for a person and which for a thing.
In informal English, it is more common to leave out the relative pronoun and put the preposition after the verb.
- 5 Use what as a relative pronoun to mean 'the thing' or 'things which'.

non-defining relative clauses

- 1 My aunt, who doesn't like cats, was given a kitten for Christmas.
The palace, which was built in the 12th century, is visited by thousands of tourists.
- 2 Adriana hasn't come to class for two weeks, which is a bit worrying.

- 1 A non-defining relative clause gives extra, non-essential information about a person or thing.
- In written English, this kind of clause is separated by commas, or between a comma and a full stop.
- You can't use that instead of who / which.
- 2 Which can also be used to refer to the whole of the preceding clause.
